HORNER ORDERS EXTRA SESSION; OPENS MONDAY

Sales Tax Extension Coming Up.

Democratic leaders slate State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney as party organization candidate for United States senator in 1936; back Mayor Kelly for election to full term; ready to support Gov. Horner for second term if he decides to run again. Details on page 6.

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick, Ind., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner today announced he had issued a call for a fourth special session of the Illinois legislature to meet a week from today to consider a proposed extension of the 2 per cent sales tax.

The executive made the announcement after a conference here with Democratic leaders. He explained at the conference that this money is necessary in order that the state tax levy commission may know when it meets next month whether the sales tax will operate throughout the next year.

Expires Next June.

Unless it is extended, the sales tax will end on June 30, 1935. In the event it is prolonged, the state commission may then follow its action last year in levying no state property tax for 1935. Last year the commission met shortly before the first of the year and decided that no state property tax would be levied for 1934.

Until the commission decides the question, county clerks in the state's 102 counties are unable to compute the tax levy for the next year, hence the necessity for action on the question as soon as possible. The clerks must know whether there will be a state property tax and, if so, its amount.

New Assembly Decisions Later.

The governor is declining to take up with Chicago leaders now the problems presented by the necessity for organizing the new general assembly in January. His attitude is that it is not a matter to be determined by leaders without something like a caucus of legislators which, although there are plenty of them here, has been found inadvisable because all elements are not represented.

Mayor Kelly has presented to Gov. Horner his proposal to save the cost of a pre-primary registration, estimated at about $300,000 for Chicago alone and a material expense to other cities where registration is compulsory under the law. The governor has told him that he hopes to see clock work speed by the special session with the call for it limited to the extension of the sales tax.

Hopes for Rapid Consideration.

He has written the call designating 4 o'clock on Nov. 19—next Monday—as the hour of convening. He plans to have his bill introduced on that day in one house and passed on Wednesday. Then he expects it to be sent to the other house the same day and passed there on Friday, thus attaining the statutory minimum of five days for the whole program. Even a day's delay, as he sees it, would be serious, as it would require the members to return the second week.

The governor expressed the opinion that a bill eliminating the registration can be rushed with identical speed at the opening of the regular session in January, thereby accomplishing the mayor's purpose.

Mayor Kelly does not agree.

Called Unnecessary Expense.

"The registration is an unnecessary expense," he said. "We have just had a registration and an unusually thorough revision. Qualified voters not now on the books may enroll themselves at the election board office any day from now until a few days before the primaries. Those who move in the meantime and new voters have the same right.

"Unless the bill doing away with the primary registration is passed before the regular session we must appropriate for the expense. All the necessary notices must be issued and other arrangements made. If the registration is eliminated by the regular session it would be impossible for us to transfer the appropriations and the law forbids us from appropriating for the registration cost as a contingent appropriation in excess of our revenue—one that would not be used if the registration is not required.

"Therefore, I am going to talk to the governor again and ask him if it is not possible to hold a second special session almost coincident with the first he has decided upon and get our bill through before the first of the year. We hope other election board cities will join in our request."

FATHER WAITS IN N. Y. HOTEL TO RANSOM CHILD

New York, Nov. 12.—[Special.]—For nearly a week Alfred E. Distelhurst Tennessee representative of a publishing company, has been waiting at a hotel here for word from the supposed kidnapers of his 6 year old daughter.

The girl, Dorothy Ann, disappeared Sept. 19 while on her way from a kindergarten to the Distelhurst home at 2021 Scott street, Nashville, Tenn. Since then the father received one post card and four letters demanding $5,000 ransom for the return of his daughter.

Mr. Distelhurst said today he was ready to pay the ransom, but had been unable to establish contact with the kidnapers.

Inserts Ad in Paper.

Carrying out instructions contained in a letter received at his home, he came here last Wednesday, registered at the hotel New Yorker, and inserted an advertisment in a morning newspaper. Still following instructions contained in the letter, he paced the lobby of the hotel at frequent intervals each day and night and also walked periodically up and down the streets adjoining the hotel.

Worried tonight over the failure of the kidnapers to communicate with him, Mr. Distelhurst issued the following statement:

"To whom it may concern: I have followed instructions implicitly and am waiting contact. If further instructions are necessary, I can be reached safely at designated place."

Meanwhile the department of justice announced at Washington that an investigation had been ordered in an effort to solve the disappearance of the child.

Never Officially Notified.

They said they did not have any definite information that the girl had been kidnaped, but hoped an investigation would clear up the case.

Police officials here were not notified at once of Mr. Distelhurst's mission it was learned. He said he feared the kidnapers had failed to fulfill their agreement to communicate with him in the belief that they were being watched by police or department of justice agents.

"I hope the kidnaper or kidnapers will send me something to identify themselves," he said. "I wish they would send me something to show they are holding the child, a piece of clothing or even better, something written by her, a note, card, or letter."

Mr. Distelhurst said the letters he received were postmarked New York City, and the messages showed an intimate knowledge of Nashville and the surrounding area.

New York Car Near Home.

On the afternoon the child disappeared, Mr. Distelhurst said, a sedan with a New York license was noticed near his home.

Two days after Dorothy Ann disappeared, Mr. Distelhurst received a postcard informing him that a letter concerning the disappearance of his daughter would follow in a few days. Two days later he received a letter demanding $5,000 ransom. A few days later he received the letter ordering him to come here. He sent a friend instead.

On Oct. 12 he got a third letter advising him to come here himself and not leave negotiations to others. However, he still postponed coming until last Wednesday.

ROBBERS FLING RED PEPPER IN WOMAN'S EYES

Two young gunmen threw a handful of red pepper in the face of Miss Beatrice James, 41 years old, 3249 Warren boulevard, last night after robbing her of $700.

Miss James, a collector for the Dutch Mill Candy company, was driving east in the 2800 block of Warren boulevard when the robbers curbed her machine. They seized her brief case containing the money, hurled the pepper, and sped away.

Stumbling blindly about the street Miss James screamed for help. A police squad heard her and took her to the Washington boulevard hospital. There her eyes were treated, and she was allowed to go home.

Boy Is Killed as Condemned Building Falls

A condemned vacant two story frame house at 611-13 North Paulina street, one of 3,000 condemned structures in the city, collapsed last evening crushing to death Bruno Sak, 14 years old, 1651 West Huron street. The boy had been playing in the building.

The city building department condemned the house a week ago and last Saturday Paul Wasilewski, his wife, and their eight children moved from the structure to 2342 Fullerton avenue. The Racine avenue police were notified to place a watch on the condemned building.

Wood Thefts Weaken Building.

During the daytime squads maintained the watch, but at night residents of the neighborhood broke into the house and stole wood for their stoves. The thieves, according to Fire Marshal Michael Corrigan, had even chopped away some of the supports and so weakened the structure.

Unaware of this a group of boys played in the building and their running last night, Marshal Corrigan said, must have shaken the structure down on young Sak. The boy appeared to be alive when he was removed from the debris, but he died before reaching the county hospital.

Warning Issued to Parents.

Approximately 3,000 other condemned buildings are standing about the city, George Shaefer, in charge of the state housing board's demolition project, said last night. Many of these have been weakened by vandals.

Shaefer pointed out that it was impossible for the police to maintain a watch at each structure and issued a warning to parents to guard against their children entering such houses.

Chief Deputy Coroner Victor L. Schlaeger announced that an investigation of the ownership of the Paulina street building, which was swept by fire several months ago, would be made today by his office. He said the owner would be instructed to appear at the inquest.

Sixty Detectives Search Flats for John Hamilton

Sixty picked detectives, armed with smoke bombs, sawed-off shotguns and machine guns, surrounded an apartment building at 3030 North Halsted street last night in response to information from the Evanston police that John Hamilton, desperado companion of John Dillinger, was reported living there. A search of the eight apartments in the building disclosed no trace of Hamilton, who, agents of the United States department of justice believe, has been dead for some time.

225 PANHANDLERS, ARRESTED IN LOOP, FACE JUDGE TODAY

More than 225 men who have been making a living in the loop by demanding "Just a nickel for a cup o' coffee, mister," from passersby will face charges of vagrancy this morning before Municipal Judge Gibson Gorman.

They were arrested during the last three days in a drive ordered by Commissioner of Police John Allman.

The prisoners comprise probably the largest group of professional "panhandlers" ever gathered together by the police. There is not an amateur in the jail load. Each was arrested on the beat assigned to him by the "brotherhood" for certain hours each day.

Typical of those held is Jack Belmont, 41 years old, 628 West Madison street, who admitted he averaged $2 a day for 3 hours begging. He quit a job as a baker to take up this more lucrative profession.

POLICE DEPEND ON BULLETS TO SOLVE MURDER

The science of ballistics assumed some of the properties of magic last night as the Chicago police prepared to prove that a man they have never seen murdered William Leichtfeld Jr., 37 years old, 2414 Kimball avenue, with a revolver they have never had in their possession.

Accused of the shooting, which took place on Oct. 20 during the robbery of a clothing store operated by Leichtfeld at 4433 Fullerton avenue, is Ernest M. Weber, ex-convict being held for another robbery in Fond du Lac, Wis.

Weber was linked with the shooting by a ring of keys found in the store. Leichtfeld died of his wounds on Nov. 7 in the Grant hospital, and during the post-mortem physicians removed a .32 caliber bullet from his body.

Fond du Lac officials are holding Weber's revolver for his trial there, but they agreed to fire a shot from the revolver into a sawdust filled bag and send the bullet to Chicago.

If the marks on the Wisconsin bullet correspond with those on the bullet taken from Leichtfeld's body it will be evidence that Weber did the shooting, the police say.

Three Stunt Men Hurt in Movie Tower Collapse

Huey's Show Flops as Grid Star Runs Out

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Abe Mickal, Louisiana State university's ace football player, tonight refused to be seated as Huey P. Long's latest creation in state senators.

As a result, the Kingfish's scheduled floor show in the halls of the Louisiana legislature for the opening of the special session was a "flop."

No star, no show, but master of ceremonies, Long had an explanation for the collapse of his widely advertised determination to have the football star, a native of Syria and a resident of McCombs, Miss., sit through the session as state senator from East Baton Rouge parish and draw the regular $10 daily pay of the office.

"Had to Stay in and Study."

Said Huey:

"Our good friend Abe needed to stay in his dormitory and study."

But in other quarters it was reliably reported that "Senator" Mickal, elected at a massmeeting of students of the L. S. U. campus last Friday supervised by the Kingfish, had ideas of his own about the whole farcical procedure and decided to forego his starring rôle in the scheduled burlesque.

A crowd of several hundred spectators that jammed all available gallery space in the senate was disappointed.

When the senate met at 10 o'clock, Senator Harvey Peltier, an administration floor leader, moved that "Senator Mickal" be given a "five day leave of absence" so that he could "practice football and study."

Legislature Gets 44 Bills.

After a brief meeting the house adjourned until tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, receiving 44 bills and promptly referring them to the ways and means committee. The senate adjourned until Wednesday at 2 p. m.

Proposed laws give the state government [Senator Long] power to control municipal and parish elections throughout the state of Louisiana. The governor through a civil service board, will have power to name all police officials throughout the state. The present liquor law placing issuance of licenses in the hands of the supervisor of public accounts, Alice Lee Grosjean, is strengthened, taking all regulation out of the hands of city and parish authorities.

The state is also empowered to amend existing laws for levying taxes on incomes and all other taxes. State institutions and state officials are given authority to borrow more money. Provision is made for the suspension of laws relative to the collection of debts to provide a commission to pass upon postponement and suspension of laws affecting debts and obligations. The governor is given authority to name a board to declare a moratorium on debts of individuals and corporations when the proper presentations are made.

Oust 3 State Police; Allege 'Shakedowns'

Three state highway policemen in Lake county, two of whom are also members of the Democratic county committee, were suspended yesterday. Their superior, Sergt. Arthur Stanton of Elgin, announced that among many "disgraceful" charges filed against the trio were many alleging "shake downs" of truck drivers.

News of this action immediately threw the Lake county Democratic central committee into a commotion. One of the policemen, William Morley, is a precinct committeeman from Antioch. Another, Irvin Moody, represents Wauconda. The other suspended man is Stanley Dady, 1205 North Lewis avenue, Waukegan.

Thomas Glass Deuell of Highland Park, well known broker, and a member of the executive board of the committee, at once came to the defense of the three men, and announced he would confer with Gov. Horner, upon the latter's return from French Lick and demand their reinstatement.

Plan to Fight Issue.

He charged that Sergt. Stanton brought about suspension of the men to fill their places with persons he favored. Both Deuell and the policemen denied the charges of Sergt. Stanton and asserted they would see the matter through to the end.

The letter of suspension was signed by Ernest Lieberman, chief engineer of the highway division, who directed the policemen to turn in their equipment to Sergt. Stanton. Six highway policemen, however, visited their homes last night and seized all state equipment.

Although the letters referred only to their failure to carry out orders of their superiors and obey department rules, Sergt. Stanton, who admitted the men were suspended on his recommendation, said:

"As a matter of fact the charges are so disgraceful they will not be made public unless we have to. But we will blow the lid off this case if they try to put on political pressure as they have threatened.

Chief to Confer on Matter.

"I have seventeen pages of charges which will be turned over to the press if I am forced to do so by their actions.

"Many complaints have been made by trucking companies that their drivers were being shaken down by these men. William Taylor, who is chief of the policemen, will confer here in Elgin with me on this matter today."

Deuell declared that while he knew the Chicago Motor club had received many of these trucking complaints, he was certain none of the three suspended policemen were implicated in them. He also revealed for the first time that ten days before the election he received threats on his life if he did not refrain from campaigning for the election of Bart Tyrrell for sherif. A state highway policeman was assigned to guard his home.

Cardinal Forbids Catholics to Marry German Pagans

MUNICH, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The prohibition of the church against marriages between Catholics and persons of other faiths was extended by an ordinance of Cardinal Faulhaber today to include marriages between Catholics and so-called German pagans. The papal commission charged with formulating an authentic interpretation of conon law that recently prohibited marriages between Catholics and members of "Godless organizations."

STUART DENIES HEAVY PROFIT IN BOND MARKET

Jurors Hear Story of Cyrus Eaton.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY

Harold L. Stuart, president of Halsey, Stuart & Co., La Salle street bond house which has financed two billions' worth of Insull securities during the last twenty-five years, testified yesterday that the profit from these transactions was not more than 1 per cent, or 20 million dollars. He was not sure it was this much.

"That sounds high to me," Mr. Stuart said when pinned down as to some estimate of his profits by Special Prosecutor Leslie E. Salter in the mail fraud trial in which he and Samuel Insull are among the most prominent of the seventeen defendants.

"It sounds high to me, too," said the prosecutor.

Millions Become Small Change.

Millions were tossed about like small change in the testimony heard during the day in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court, where the trial entered its seventh week. Mr. Stuart said that his company had lost 12 million dollars through the failure of the Corporation Securities company, the Insull financing concern, which brought about this trial.

Mr. Salter, however, contended that this was mere "paper profit," something that might have been, whereas the percentage from the sale of the billions in bonds was real money. Mr. Stuart thought he had lost plenty in this Corporation Securities affair, no matter what the government said about it.

Cyrus Eaton a Witness.

An unheralded feature of the trial was the appearance as a witness of Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, whose 56 million dollar war with Samuel Insull in 1930 has formed an important part of the evidence in the case. The payment of this money to Mr. Eaton by Corporation Securities and the subsequent necessity of finding new funds from banks and public had a good deal to do with the Insull crash.

Mr. Insull's side of this picture has been told from the witness stand, but Mr. Eaton's version was never made public before yesterday. He was called as a character witness for Mr. Insull and gave him a fine reputation as a business man. The defense found value in his testimony, showing that Insull stocks were considered of high value at that period.

A Question for the Jury.

The government found satisfaction in establishing that Mr. Eaton promptly sold the Corporation Securities stock that he had acquired as part of this big deal. Whether he forced the Insull people to buy it back, regarding Insull an an "angel," as the government sought to show, or whether it was such a small affair that he could not recall was left to the jury to decide.

Edward J. Doyle, president of the Commonwealth Edison company, was the last witness of the day. He told of his long association with the former utilities magnate and said that during these years and during his service as director of Corporation Securities he had never had a suggestion from Mr. Insull that would lead him to a dishonest motive or act. He will be cross-examined this morning.

Same Beginning for All.

Nearly all these defendants, from Mr. Insull and Stanley Field down, it has developed, began life as office boys or messengers and worked their way slowly along the road to the control of millions. This is true in both the utilities group and in the Halsey-Stuart group. These smooth, prosperous looking men, whose words were law and judgment in their fields of force, were once negligible looking boys, innocent of "higher education," who forged their way, driven by some inner impulse, by working days and studying nights.

Samuel Insull Jr. comes in a different category. He always had his father to back him. He remains as the most important, and possibly the last witness in the trial. Charles B. Stuart is expected to follow his brother, Harold, to the stand, and market experts will go on to offset the "market rigging" charges of the government.

Story of Harold Stuart.

It was Samuel Jr. who was sent to New York by his father in the winter of 1931 to see what could be done about getting help from the banks to stave off the ruin of the Insull empire, it developed yesterday. Harold Stuart told of this.

The effort, he said, was to get both

STUART TELLS TWO BILLION DOLLAR BOND DEALS IN INSULL MARKET

Chicago and New York banks to enter into a "stand-still agreement" on Insull loans for six months to give the Insull companies time to recover. Most of the banks agreed but one or two held out and the effort failed.

Mr. Stuart concluded his direct and cross examination during the afternoon. The cross examination was comparatively brief, Prosecutor Salter contenting himself with two or three points. The witness was unruffled and firm in his justification of all his acts as one of the inner circles that guided the Corporation Securities affairs.

Denies a "Handsome Profit."

"You and Mr. Insull," the prosecutor said, "Handled two billions in securities—more than any other two men in the country. You must have made a handsome profit on that.

"We never did really," said the witness." We paid high prices and handled on a minimum basis."

Q.—Well, 4 per cent would be $80,000,000. A.—Yes, but we did not get that.

Q.—What did you net? A.—It would be a guess.

Q.—Two per cent, or $40,000,000? A—Maybe one per cent, $20,000,000 in 25 years.

Q.—Well, you were not in it for your health? A.—I did it to build my business.

Q.—You were intimately acquainted with Insull's business methods? A.—Yes.

Q.—And all you lost was $12,000,000 in paper profits? [The witness had testified that in the original buying of stock for the formation of Corporation Securities he had acquired stock that could have been sold at one time for a $12,000,000 profit]. A.—Is that all we lost? [Mr. Stuart looked grim but did not expand on this].

Organization of Insull Utility.

Mr. Salter then went into the organization of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., of which Mr. Stuart was a director. The testimony has shown that securities were purchased from the Insull family for $4,500,000 by Halsey-Stuart, and the next day sold to the Insull investment company at the same price.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that you had an understanding with Insull to purchase these securities and buy them back at the same price? A.—I may have had —I don't recall it.

Q.—Wasn't this put through indirectly so they could get four and a half million cash? A.—I don't recall. It looks that way.

Mr. Salter then began to question Mr. Stuart about matters he had testified to in the senate investigation of the securities markets, but this raised such loud objections from the defense attorneys that the jury was sent out and arguments were heard. This referred to $6,000,000 of stock of Insull Utility Investments bought at par value by Halsey-Stuart. Judge Wilkerson ruled that the prosecutor could inquire from the witness if he had made certain statements before but that he was bound by the answer. The point was not pressed by the prosecutor and not referred to again.

Says Par Was His Idea.

Q—Was it Insull's idea that the stock should go on the market at par? A—It was my idea.

There was then a dispute over what the prosecution called a "writeup" of the stock and what the witness called its market value. The stock, which Mr. Stuart had thought would be worth around $15, went up to $100, and at one time $150.

Q—Didn't it go against your grain to see it so inflated? A—It was not inflated at $100. The public had bought it at $150.

Q—And you don't believe your action in buying this stock had anything to do with the rise? A—Not the slightest.

In connection with Corporation Securities, in which Mr. Stuart served as a director and member of the executive committee, he was questioned as follows:

Q—When common stock was offered for sale in March, 1930, did you then approve the action of putting it on a dividend basis? A—I did.

Shows Change of Mind.

Q—Was it against your better judgment? A—No, not finally.

Q—In a telegram to C. T. MacNeille [secretary of Halsey-Stuart and also a defendant] on March 20, did you not say it was not the thing to do? A—That was my first reaction. I changed later, after discussion with Martin Insull.

Q—Did he think you could not get distribution of the stock without a dividend? A—No, he thought the company was earning the money and the stockholders were entitled to it.

Q—Do you mean to tell this jury that your about-face was not made to induce the public to buy? A—I most emphatically do.

PLEA TO THE BANKS

Mr. Stuart was first called to the stand for his direct examination by his attorney, Harry Ditchburne. His story of the failure to reach the "standstill agreement" with the New York and Chicago banks came during the conclusion of this testimony.

"In the last part of 1931," he related, "the country's financial condition was not good. Utility Investments and Corporation Securities had large loans from New York and Chicago banks, about forty or fifty million dollars, mostly on demand. Because of declining market prices the banks wanted added collateral. The companies had reached the point where they had no great amount of marketable collateral.

"So the Chicago banks were interviewed—not by me—to see what could be done. These banks suggested a standstill agreement—that is, they would let the loans remain as they were without added collateral.

"It was necessary to see the New York bankers and Mr. Insull decided to send his son. He asked me to go along and introduce Junior to the bank presidents, whom I knew well. I said I would.

dle of December, 1931. The banks appeared willing to coöperate and questioned us closely. Some asked for additional information. The agreement was planned to last six months, as we all believed the situation would be greatly improved at the end of that time.

"One New York bank said it would sign the agreement after it had further information. Another one said it would sign only after all the others had. The agreement never went through."

Details of Stuart's Life.

Earlier, Attorney Ditchburne led Stuart through the details of his career. He was born in Providence, R. I. 53 years ago and came to Chicago when he was 10 years old. He went to work when he was 13 and later attended Lewis institute.

"I always wanted to get into the investment business," Stuart said "and I did in 1895, with N. V. Halsey & Co. I did everything there was to do in an investment office. At 19 I was a bond salesman, and on Sept. 1 1903, when I was 22, I became manager of the firm's Chicago office. I was given a small interest in the profits and the business grew.

"On June 11, 1911, Mr. Halsey died and a corporation was formed by his estate. I became president of the company.

"In August, 1916, the name was changed to Halsey, Stuart & Co., and I have been president ever since.

"In 1911 we had 80 employés and did a $40,000,000 business. In 1929, for comparison, we had 1,000 employés in 40 agencies and did $700,000,000 business. From 1928 through 1931 our aggregate volume of business was three and a half billion dollars. We dealt always in bonds, not stocks."

During the war Stuart was director of sales for the first four Liberty Loan drives in the Seventh federal reserve district, which includes the Chicago area. The facilities of his organization were always at the government's service, Stuart said, and he was often consulted by federal officials on the securities market.

His Relations with Insull.

Q. [By Ditchburne]—When was your first meeting with Mr. Insull? A.—In 1904. Our first business transaction was in the spring of 1907 when we purchased $5,000,000 in gold notes of the Commonwealth Edison company from him. I don't think two men ever did so much business together in all the history of finance. In 25 years we did two billion dollars' business, entirely in the purchase of bonds and notes by my company.

Q.—What were your relations with Insull? A.—Always cordial.

Q.—What is your opinion of his ability? A.—[Dramatically, turning to the jury]—I think he is the greatest business man I have ever known. I thought it then and I think it today. His integrity is of the highest. We never had a dispute on any important matter.

Q.—What caused you to become associated with Insull in Utility Investments? A.—He had talked of forming a company to insure the future management of his companies under his direction. I was a member of the finance committee and a director.

Q.—You held the same positions in Corporation Securities? A.—Yes. When Utility Investments was formed it gave preëmptive rights to stockholders; that is, they had a pro rata chance to buy new stock issues. It soon became evident Utility Investments was growing so rapidly that the Insull family would not have the money to exercise its preëmptive rights and might become only minority stockholders. Corporation Securities was formed to enable us to exercise preëmptive rights on Utility Investments stock. There was no preëmptive stock right in Corporation Securities.

A Letter to Insull.

A letter from Stuart to Insull in England, written on Aug. 29, 1929, before the formation of Corporation Securities, was introduced in evidence. It disclosed that Stuart had told Insull if the new company was going to be active, Stuart and his assistants would just act as directors while Insull would manage. A cablegram sent by Insull on Sept. 8, 1929, to Stuart approved the arrangement.

Stuart was questioned concerning his attitude on the market support for Corporation Securities stock and the failure to disclose to the public the contents of the company's portfolio. He said that support was needed to maintain an orderly market and that it was recognized practice for investment trusts not to divulge their assets for fear of adverse trading by outsiders.

The government maintains that the defendants did not legally support the market but "rigged it" and that the contents of the portfolio were misrepresented to the public in offering circulars.

Says He Declined Profit.

Attorney Ditchburne brought out that Stuart could have sold 152,070 shares of Utility Investments in October, 1929, for more than $15,000,000, a profit to him of $12,000,000. Instead, Stuart said, he contributed the stock to Corporation Securities, receiving $3,500,000 and 1,000,000 shares of the latter company's common stock.

His employés and other officials of his company purchased more than $4,000,000 of stock units issued by Corporation Securities at $75 a unit. "I personally bought 1,000 units for $75,000," he declared. "I gave each of my sisters $25,000 and gave the rest away here and there. I told my sisters never to sell their stock, whatever happened, as it would always bring them an income."

Stuart testified that he had sent business to Corporation Securities which brought it a profit of nearly $1,000,000 in three transactions.

Never Got a Salary.

He never received a salary, but got $20 for each meeting of the executive committee and board of directors that he attended. He attended nearly every meeting.

In response to another question by Attorney Ditchburne, Stuart said that he had known each of the other defendants for many years.

"I knew Samuel Insull Jr. when he was only 8 years old," he said with a smile. "I have known Stanley Field since I worked as a stock boy at Marshall Field & Co. He didn't know me then."

Stuart concluded his direct examination by categorically denying there was any attempt to defraud the public in the operation of Corporation Securities. He was then cross-examined

Doyle on Witness Stand.

Mr. Doyle, the president of Commonwealth Edison, followed Mr. Stuart on the stand. He was questioned by his attorney, William G. Condon. He said he was 55 years old, was born in Chicago, went to the grade schools and started work at 16 as office boy for Samuel Insull, then president of the Chicago Edison company. William A. Fox helped him at night with shorthand and in 1900 he started taking dictation, becoming secretary to Insull in 1910.

From there he went to the head of Commonwealth Edison in 1930. He became a director of Corporation Securities at the request of Mr. Insull, and attended his first meeting Sept. 9, 1930. His experience and description of how the company was conducted was much like that of Stanley Field, another director who testified last week.

EATON'S TESTIMONY

Cyrus Eaton, the Cleveland financier, a tall white haired man clad in a dark gray business suit, took the stand at the beginning of the morning session. He said he is a director of the Midland Steel company and the Sherwin-Williams Paint company and a trustee of the University of Chicago.

His acquaintance with Insull dated back many years. He said that while he had never been officially connected with any utility company he had held large interests with his associates in utility concerns. His holdings included stock of the American Light and Traction company, the United Light and Power company, and the Continental Gas and Electric corporation.

Questioned by Attorney Floyd E. Thompson, counsel for the Insulls, Eaton said that between 1926 and 1929 one of his companies, Continental Shares, Inc., had wished to diversify its interests and had acquired large blocks of stock in the Commonwealth Edison company, the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company, and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

Meets Insull in Chicago.

"In December, 1929," Eaton related, "I came to Chicago to discuss my holdings in the operating companies with Insull. I wanted to assure him that our large investments in these companies would not affect his control. I told him that Continental Shares was organized as an investment company, not for quick turnover, and that we acquired his stocks as they offered the best opportunity in the utilities field.

"My associates and I had faith in the future of the territory in which Insull operated. We thought it was the most promising in the country for the development of electric power. We thought highly of his organization and wanted to be associated with such management, but never wanted to interfere in it. I told Insull that if we ever decided to sell the shares of his operating companies we would give him first chance to buy.

He Makes a Proposition.

"In May, 1930, I had a conversation with Insull in his office. Martin Insull, Samuel Insull Jr. and Harold L. Stuart were also present. I told them that my associates were planning to put our assets in a holding company and wanted to know if Insull would consider joining in the foundation of this company. I was anxious to devote my time to the steel business and wanted to learn if he would take charge of our utilities holdings and management."

Eaton said that Insull believed he was too old to engage in so large an undertaking and offered to buy the operating company holdings "if my main objective was to get cash." Insull offered $350 a share [for 160,000 shares], all in cash or part cash and as much as one-third of the price in stocks of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securities.

"I told him we preferred not to sell," Eaton continued, "but if he was against joining our enterprise we would sell at $400 a share. There was no deal and I returned to Cleveland and wrote Insull on May 12, 1930.

Sends Letter to Insull.

This letter, introduced in evidence, said:

"Dear Mr. Insull:

"On my return from Chicago I discussed our conversation with my associates and found they shared my disappointment at your hesitation in joining us in a larger picture and likewise felt no enthusiasm at the idea of selling the stock for $350 per share.

"In going to Chicago, it was my particular desire that a way be found whereby this block of stock might constitute a basis for working together along some lines. On the other hand, if you had been disposed to pay the price which I mentioned and preferred to obtain the stock rather than to enter into the transaction which I outlined, my inclination was to let you have it. I am hesitant, however, in attempting to press my associates to accept a price which they think is substantially less than the intrinsic value of the stock, particularly as I share their views of its real value."

A week later Eaton decided to sell at $350 a share, he said, and concluded the transaction in Insull's office. He received $48,000,000 in cash over a period of some months and $8,000,000 in stocks of the two Insull investment companies [Insull Utility Investments and Corporation Securities].

"Our statistical department had made an intensive study of the investment companies," Eaton stated, "and had calculated what cash we had to take and what in stock. In taking stock we were willing to go along with what we thought was the great future of these enterprises and took all the stock we could, getting Utility Investments at 65 and Corporation Securities at 25."

Attorney Thompson then asked the witness whether stocks—particularly utility stocks—did not have a greater value per share in a large block than in units held separately. Eaton replied this was true because it was difficult to acquire a large block of stock widely held as this acquisition always resulted in an advance in the market.

Knew Contents of Portfolios.

Q.—Did you know the contents of the portfolios of Utility Investments and Corporation Securities? Did you regard it as unusual that these details were held from the public? A.—I knew the contents, but knew nothing unusual in not disclosing them to the public. Investment companies don't usually reveal their large holdings.

Q.—In 1931 didn't you sell the Utility Investments and Corporation Securities stock you had acquired in the transaction? A.—Yes. In September, 1930, Continental Shares had borrowed large sums from the banks, hopeful that the bottom in the bad market had been reached. The depression was in even greater force, however, and we had to reduce our debt, so we sold these stocks in February, 1931.

Q.—When you took these stocks were they intended for permanent investment? A.—Yes. When we sold them we sold through brokers, all in blocks, because my officers and directors thought that advisable.

THE CROSS-EXAMINATION

On cross-examination by Prosecutor Salter, Mr. Eaton said he was "not sure" to what company the Insull stocks had been sold.

Q.—There's no question, is there, but that you sold the stocks back to Insull? A.—I'm not sure. I was away at the time and it was handled by my assistants.

Q.—Haven't you found out yet to what company you sold the stocks? A. [hesitatingly]—I didn't get the record of the sale.

Q.—When you started to unload, you were forcing Insull to buy back the stocks, weren't you? A.—That is untrue.

Attorney Thompson interrupted to say that it was known the stock was sold back to Insull, but Judge Wilkerson allowed the prosecutor to continue his line of questioning.

Q.—Wasn't it to your advantage to find a private buyer for the stock at market price because if you sold on the market you would get a lower price? Who would your associates be more likely to find than Insull as a buyer? A. [smilingly]—I can't say.

Asked About "Angel" Insull.

Q.—Insull was sort of an angel to you, wasn't he? Whenever you needed money you went to him? A.—He had a fine credit and a fine reputation. I believed in him thoroughly.

Q.—You knew that in June, 1930, Insull had gotten $31,000,000 from the sale of Corporation Securities common stock? A.—I remember.

Q.—Your companies were in bad shape and you wanted some of that money, didn't you? A.—My companies were in good shape.

Q.—How much did you owe the banks when you had your first dealings with Insull? A.—My companies had borrowed $30,000,000 but had assets of $125,000,000.

Q.—How much did the operating company stocks you sold Insull in 1930 originally cost you? A.—They were purchased over a long period, the final purchases being at about $400 a share. I don't know the average price.

Q.—Is that an honest answer? A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't you tell Insull your companies had to raise money? A.—No. I said they were considering the advisability.

Denies Any Intent to Control.

Q.—Didn't you suggest to Insull that if he didn't go in with you in the new company you were planning you would attempt to take control of his companies? A.—If I owned 99 per cent of his stocks there would still be no interference in the management of his companies.

Q.—He turned you down flat on going in with you? A.—He was not agreeable.

Q.—But he said if all you wanted was the money for your stock he would get it for you? A.—Not in those words.

Q.—Why wouldn't you sell only part of the operating stocks you held? A.—My associates and I considered that carefully. We concluded we were doing permanent financing and wanted to have or sell the entire block.

Q.—Isn't there a feeling of security—the weight behind the club—in trading a large block instead of a small? A.—There is a decided additional value.

Back to the Cost.

Prosecutor Salter then returned to his effort to learn the original cost of the stocks to Eaton. The witness insisted that he did not recall the figure.

"Didn't you give your associates the benefits of your experience by instructing them as to what finesse to use in getting Insull to take the Utility Investments and Corporation Securities stock off your hands?" Salter asked.

"I told them to use their best judgment," Eaton answered.

"Do you mean to say that you didn't know until you arrived in court today that the stock had been sold back to Insull?" Salter inquired.

"I assumed the purchaser had some connection with the Insull companies," Eaton replied.

Four Character Witnesses.

Four character witnesses were called to the stand yesterday.

William M. Dewey, managing director of the Edgewater Beach hotel, said that Defendant Doyle was of an irreproachable reputation."

Robert J. Graf, vice president of H. M. Byllesby & Co., and Robert J. Hinley, secretary of the Otis Grain company, also testified to Doyle's good repute and integrity.

Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, commanding the 66th infantry brigade of the Illinois National Guard, testified for Attorney Waldo F. Tobey, a defendant, who has not yet taken the stand. Gen. Hammond is president of the Whiting corporation in Harvey and is a neighbor of Prosecutor Salter in Flossmoor.

SANITARY EXPERTS STUDY DISEASE RISKS OF AIRPLANE TRAVEL

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Whether there may be danger in the scaling down of traveling time in the tropics through the growing use of airplanes came before the ninth pan-American Sanitary conference which assembled here today.

"While the risks of airplanes spreading disease now appear of little importance," said Dr. Gregorio Aaraoz Alfaro of Argentina, chairman of the organizing committee, "they can reach dangerous proportions in the case of certain epidemics."

The United States is represented by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming, Dr. Bolivar J. Lloyd, United States public health service and medical director of the pan-American sanitary bureau, and Dr. Kendall Emerson, managing director of the National Tuberculosis association.

HERMIT BANKER PLEADS GUILTY; DELAY SENTENCE

Nicholas A. Schwall, 40 years old, pleaded guilty yesterday of embezzling $57,000 from the First National bank of Wilmette, of which he was assistant cashier and auditor. The bank closed in June, 1932. Schwall was arraigned before Federal Judge John P. Barnes who deferred hearing evidence and sentencing the banker until Nov. 26.

Schwall promised Assistant United States Attorney James C. Leaton and Receiver Melvin B. Ericson he would help straighten out the accounts of the bank during the ensuing two weeks There is little hope that the depositors may recover any of the money taken by Schwall, but the receiver said he would be able to obtain something on Schwall's bond.

Appears in Woodsman's Garb.

In court yesterday Schwall wore a red mackinaw jacket and high boots the clothing of his recent occupation as a woodsman near Conover, Wis. whither he fled in 1932 and where he was arrested last Saturday. He smiled and chatted amiably while awaiting the arrival of Judge Barnes.

His sister, Mrs. Louise Hochstetter 4611 North Western avenue, had sent Attorney Victor G. Nardi to aid him, but Schwall said he wanted no lawyer and he was ready to take his punishment and go to prison.

"You are charged with embezzling $57,000 from the First National bank of Wilmette," Prosecutor Leaton informed him in the presence of the judge. "There are two counts. Are you guilty or not guilty?"

Ex-Auditor Quite Laconic.

"Guilty," said the ex-banker, and then Leaton told the court of Schwall's promise to help untangle the accounts from which he had been stealing. Being auditor of the bank as well as dealing with the depositors, he was able to make fake entries and the receiver had only the word of the depositors as to what their proper balances should be. It was arranged that Schwall would be kept in the Waukegan county jail while awaiting sentence, as the books of the closed bank are kept in that city.

Though the judge consented, the marshal refused to let Schwall visit his wife en route to jail.

At the Schwall home, 3110 Wilmette avenue, Wilmette, Mrs. Schwall refused to see all callers. She gave birth to a daughter a few months after her husband deserted her and fled to the north woods.

Last night Schwall's son, Nicholas Jr., 12 years old, and his daughter, Frances, 14, visited their father in the jail. Their grandfather, father of the prisoner, took them. Schwall had a $5 bill given to him on Sunday by a friend. He sent it home to his wife, who since his departure has been on the relief rolls, according to neighbors. The children said their mother sent her love.

THE FAIR STORE AWARDED RELIEF SHOE CONTRACT

Contracts for supplying and servicing 130,000 pairs of shoes for "clients" of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission have been awarded to The Fair store, it was learned yesterday. The contracts will aggregate $189,200. Previously this year 190,000 pairs of shoes had been purchased.

The Fair was the low bidder on all but one item, 15,000 pairs of men's work shoes, and because of the problem of servicing the shoes, the Fargo-Hallowell Shoe company asked to be released from its low bid on this item. The Fair has already established shoe repair stations in various parts of the city.

Items making up the contracts are: 12,500 pairs little gents' oxfords at $1.24; 10,000 pairs youths' oxfords at $1.39; 12,500 pairs boys' oxfords at $1.42; 21,000 pairs men's dress oxfords at $1.58; 4,000 pairs of men's dress high shoes at $1.73; 15,000 pairs men's high work shoes at $1.66; 5,000 pairs infants' shoes at 77 cents; 10,000 pairs children's oxfords at $1.24; 10,000 pairs misses' oxfords or strap slippers at $1.34; and 30,000 pairs of women's oxfords or strap slippers at $1.58.

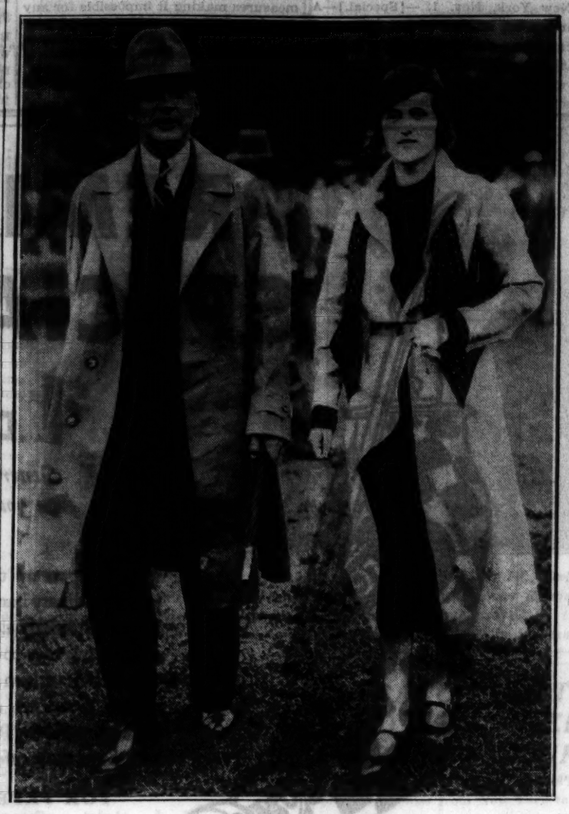
Divorce Suit to Be Filed Tomorrow



MR. AND MRS. MARSHALL FIELD III.

MARSHALL FIELD TO FACE DIVORCE SUIT TOMORROW

Wife, at Reno, Sets Date for Action.

Reno, Nev., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. Audrey Coats Field, friend of the Prince of Wales and a goddaughter of King Edward VII., will file her suit for divorce here Wednesday against Marshall Field III., grandson of the Chicago department store founder, it was learned today.

It is expected the case will be tried in a private uncontested hearing on Wednesday afternoon. The grounds Mrs. Field will use have never been announced.

Donovan Her Attorney.

Mrs. Field will be represented by William J. Donovan, New York attorney and Republican candidate for governor of New York in 1932, and George B. Thatcher of Reno. Field's counsel in the matter are George A. Bartlett of Reno and George Hite Jr. of New York.

Mrs. Field has been living in a private home here for the last six weeks. For several months before her coming here there had been recurrent rumors in fashionable circles that she contemplated divorce proceedings. Following her return from Europe last summer her husband stayed at their Long Island country place while she occupied their New York apartment.

Married in London.

She married Field in London on Aug. 19, 1930, just two weeks after his first wife, Mrs. Evelyn Marshall Field, obtained a divorce here on a charge of desertion. It was reported Field created a trust fund which provided an income of a million dollars a year for the first Mrs. Field.

Field's present wife was famous as an international beauty and a member of the prince of Wales' hunting set. Her mother, Mrs. "Willie" James, prominent London hostess, had likewise been a friend of the King Edward VII. when he was the Prince of Wales.

Mrs. Audrey Field's first husband was the late Dudley Coats of London, son of Sir Stewart Coats, the thread millionaire. Dudley Coats died of wounds incurred in the world war.

ROOSEVELT UNVEILS CLARK STATUE IN KENTUCKY FRIDAY

New York, Nov. 12.—[Special.]—A monument entitled "The First Permanent Settlement of the West," depicting Gen. George Rogers Clark and his followers setting out for the northwest in 1778, will be unveiled by President Roosevelt in the New Memorial park at Harrodsburg, Ky., Friday afternoon.

Those who attend the ceremony will notice that the figure of Clark, when seen from an angle which shows a three-quarter view of his face, bears a striking resemblance to Mr. Roosevelt.

Ulric Ellerhausen, the sculptor, interviewed at his studio today, said the resemblance is purely coincidental. In substantiating this statement he said the funds for the memorial were appropriated by congress in 1930 and that he did the actual modeling of Clark's face in 1931 before the President was a candidate for office. Mr. Ellerhausen did not himself notice the resemblance until an engineer working in the park brought it to his attention a short time ago.

JUDGE TO RULE ON LEGALITY OF STATE NRA ACT

Superior Court Judge John J. McGoorty indicated yesterday that he would rule on the constitutionality of the Illinois NRA law in the first alleged violation case to reach the Cook County courts. The case is that of Joseph Weiss, head of a watch repairing company at 62 West Washington street.

In the hearing on the case yesterday, which was the only one in the County building because most offices in the building were closed in observance of Armistice day, Judge McGoorty took the matter under advisement. He gave the plaintiff, the Jones and Baumrucker company, 31 North State street, seven days, and Weiss five days, in which to file briefs. The Jones and Baumrucker concern is seeking an injunction to prevent Weiss from advertising his prices for watch repairing.

Irving L. Block, counsel for Weiss, charged that the jewelry repair interests were racketeering with high repair prices. Mandel Mendelson, counsel for the complainant, asserted that Weiss was guilty of false advertising and violation of the code which proscribes advertising of prices.

STEALS $1,000 FUR COAT.

Woodlawn police were hunting yesterday for a robber who held up Mrs. Jean C. Weis, 6724 East End avenue, Sunday night in Jackson park near 67th street and Stony Island avenue and escaped with her fur coat valued at $1,000.

ARIZONA SENDS TROOPS TO DAM AS "WAR ZONE"

"No Reason for That," Ickes Tells Moeur.

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Commanded to "repeal an invasion" of Arizona's rights, National Guardsmen today were mobilized and ordered by Gov. B. B. Moeur to proceed immediately to the site of the Parker dam to prevent any construction work on the Arizona side of the Colorado river.

At that place the Six Companies, Inc., is constructing a temporary bridge preparatory to actual work on the dam. The Arizona side at that point was placed under martial law Saturday by Gov. Moeur.

In Washington, Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, said he could "see no reason for the Arizona governor's calling out troops in the Parker dam controversy.'

Half the power to be originated at the dam had been allotted tentatively to Arizona, Ickes said.

Ickes Answers Gov. Moeur.

"Arizona is to be congratulated that its financial condition is such that she can afford to call out the National Guard," Ickes told newspapermen. "However, I believe there was no occasion for calling out the troops in this instance because it is a matter which ultimately will have to be settled in the courts."

Arizona's governor went to the National Guard armory today where the troops were preparing for an Armistice day parade. He issued the mobilization orders for 107 men and officers, then reviewed the guardsmen.

The state soldiers, including machine gunners, wore on their coat collars their regimental insignia, a gila monster and the motto: "Cuidado"—beware in Spanish.

"This is our last stand," said Gov. Moeur in addressing the officers and men at the armory.

Will Use Boats.

The troops will be in Parker, 180 miles from Phoenix, by morning, said Maj. Leroy Weyrick, under whose direction the men will be moved. From Parker, 18 miles below the disputed dam site, the guardsmen will go up the river by boats.

High rugged cliffs rise back of the shore line of the martial law zone, which comprises a portion of the bank of the Bill Williams river and the sandy shores of the Colorado.

Any one found violating the governor's martial law proclamation will be tried by court martial. It was believed the troops would remain in the district until Gov. Moeur, the Arizona legislature, the Colorado river commission, and the federal government come to an agreement.

Arizona, under the contract, is given 2,800,000 acre feet of water from Boulder dam and half of the power produced at the Parker diversion dam, which will send water through a large aqueduct crossing the California desert to Los Angeles.

U. S. Supreme Court Moves to Open Tom Mooney's Case

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—The Supreme court of the United States today agreed to give at least preliminary consideration to the case of Tom Mooney, who has served 18 years of a life sentence for complicity in the San Francisco Preparedness day bombing in 1916.

The court ordered the warden of San Quentin prison to show cause within forty days why counsel for Mooney should not be granted leave to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. The order of the court does not mean that it will review the case, a question that would be determined after the filing of the petition. Whether the petition even may be filed will depend, in a large measure, on the answer of the California state authorities.

Mooney's Counsel Pleased.

Nevertheless Mooney's Washington counsel, John F. Finerty, was jubilant over the ruling and expressed confidence that it would result in a final review and vindication by the Supreme court.

"Nothing could do more to restore a fast waning confidence of a large body of the people in the courts as a means for the protection of their fundamental rights than the action of the Supreme court today," Finerty said.

Wilson, Others Study Case.

Mooney's case has been a cause célèbre ever since his commitment to the penitentiary. Every avenue of freedom had been closed by the courts and the governors of California. Mooney originally was sentenced to death, but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment after President Woodrow Wilson and many others interested themselves in the case. Once before, in 1918, the case came before the United States Supreme court on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. At that time the highest tribunal declined to review it.

Since the trial various witnesses have admitted that their testimony was perjured. The case was one of the campaign issues of Upton Sinclair, Socialist candidate for governor of California on the Democratic ticket.

He said his first act, if elected, would be to free Mooney.

Attacks California Evidence.

The present petition for a writ of habeas corpus is a sworn document alleging that the state of California deliberately used perjured testimony to convict Mooney, and, though it has subsequently admitted the perjury, still denies him any judicial means whereby the conviction could be set aside.

EVANSTON WILL REQUIRE SAFETY TESTS OF AUTOS

Automobile owners of Evanston must subject their cars to semi-annual tests to determine if they are mechanically safe, or be liable for a fine ranging from $1 to $200.

An ordinance to this effect was adopted last night by the Evanston city council. The yearly fee for the tests was set at 75 cents. Apparatus for testing will be set up in January, and all cars must have safety certificates by June 30, 1935.

Ald. George Paddock, head of the police committee, in introducing the ordinance, said:

"We believe this will better safety conditions. Evanston and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE have conducted safety lanes for several years. In the last TRIBUNE lane 40 per cent of the cars tested were found to be mechanically defective, and Evanston had a similar percentage."

Adoption of a similar ordinance has been urged on the Chicago city council by Ald. John Toman [23d].

Robbers Kidnap Evanston Dentist from His Garage

Surprised by three bandits as he was putting his car in a garage back of his home at 612 Michigan avenue, Evanston, Dr. Herman S. Deutsch, a dentist, was kidnaped last night and robbed of $17 and a watch valued at $50. The men forced the dentist to drive them to the elevated station on Crawford avenue in Niles Center. There they robbed him and took his car. When he protested he had no money to get home they gave him 25 cents.

Robbers Hold Up Four Conductors; Obtain $92

Two robbers obtained $92 last night in the robberies of four street car conductors. They obtained $18 from Robert Schlitz, 5052 South Wells street, conductor of a Racine avenue car which they boarded at 69th street; $33 from Robert Deisch, 116 West 109th place, on a State street car at 77th street; $20 from Albert Otto, 2609 West 73d street, on a Clark street car at Archer avenue, and $21 from Peter Larkin, 2601 South May street, on a 39th street car at Union avenue.

Ottenhoff Admits Contract Was Voluntary.

Defense attorneys concluded yesterday their three-day cross-examination of Conrad Ottenhoff, excavating contractor, in the trial of 15 business men and labor leaders on charges of racketeering and conspiracy through the Trucking and Transportation exchange, the "TNT," and its affiliates.

The state considers Ottenhoff a star witness. He was on the stand in all three and one-half days telling of the alleged racketeering methods of the defendants and their organizations.

On direct examination by the prosecution, Ottenhoff told how racketeers and hoodlums blocked his excavating projects and all but drove him out of business.

Case Drags Endlessly.

Nevertheless, the battery of defense lawyers, led by Attorneys Benedict J. Short and Michael Ahern, declared they had destroyed the effect of his testimony by their unusually rigid cross-examination.

Judge William V. Brothers is presiding over the trial, which is moving unusually slowly and gives indications of lasting four or five months. The judge heaved a sigh of relief when the defense announced yesterday afternoon that the cross-examination was finished. Ottenhoff is the fifth witness to testify in nine days. The prosecutors say they have 300 or more witnesses. A session of court was held yesterday despite the holiday.

Under cross-examination by Defense Attorney Thomas Johnson Jr., Ottenhoff admitted yesterday that he never was asked to pay any one extortion money.

Accuse Witness of "Chiseling."

He signed voluntarily, he admitted, a contract for one year to employ the services of the Engineering Service corporation, one of the alleged affiliates of the TNT. This concern performed engineering services for him, he said. Most of his troubles arose from his fights with labor unions, he admitted.

Defense Attorney Ahern attempted to get Ottenhoff to admit he was "chiseling" on certain contracts. The witness took exception to the word "chiseling," but admitted that on some contracts which were taken in the name of his son, Henry, the price at which the jobs were taken was "so ridiculously low" that he could not afford to pay engineering service. For that reason the son took the contracts in his own name and used his father's equipment.

BELGIUM CONSIDERS FINANCIAL DICTATOR TO GUIDE RECOVERY

EMILE FRANCQUI.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The possibility of a financial dictator's appointment to straighten out Belgium's affairs was widely discussed tonight. Count Charles de Broqueville, Belgian premier, will hand in the resignations of his ministers at the opening of parliament tomorrow because of dissention over the government's drastic plans for national recovery.

It was considered likely in political circles that King Leopold would ask Emile Francqui to become financial dictator as he did in 1926 when he stabilized the franc. Foreign Minister Henri Jaspar and Minister of Finance Gustave Sap were considered the most likely successors to Count de Broqueville as premier.

Disagreement in the government arose over several new decrees ready for publication, all pointed toward bolstering the recovery plan instituted during the summer. These provide for a 5 per cent reduction in public salaries and pensions, and the opening of the frontiers for larger food importations, with a view to slashing the cost of living.

BRITAIN ADMITS IT IS RECRUITING POLICE FOR SAAR

Ex-Officers Examined for Duty During Plebiscite.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald today admitted in the house of commons that British former officers were being recruited for police duty in the Saar territory, with the aid of the British war office and the foreign office.

For several days Socialist and anti-government newspapers have alleged that Great Britain had promised to furnish a quota of these men. The details as to their pay and allowances were published.

Answers Labor Question.

Replying to a question by George Lansbury, Labor leader, MacDonald told members of the house that the British government, in common with other governments, at the request of the league of nations, has agreed to act as a contact between applicants for jobs on the Saar police force and the Saar authorities.

The prime minister said applicants were examined. Men who passed the physical examinations and otherwise qualified were put in touch with the Saar authorities, who hired the men on their own responsibility.

Neither the British government nor any other government, MacDonald said, had any responsibility to or for the men.

So far, out of twenty officers recruited by the Saar authorities, only two are British, MacDonald added. The officers are being recruited for police duty in the forthcoming plebiscite when inhabitants of the Saar will vote on whether to join France, return to Germany, or remain under the jurisdiction of the league. The police forces are being strengthened to insure a free vote.

Nazi Air Fleet Worries France.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Fresh warnings of an armed menace in Germany coupled with domestic disorders attending the armistice celebrations inspired Premier Pierre Etienne Flandin tonight to issue an appeal to French political parties to forget their differences.

Chancellor Hitler's air fleet and Germany's reputed ability to produce 900 planes monthly were causing grave concern to the new premier and his cabinet. Defense minister of air, war and the navy are expected to ask parliament for additional appropriations in conformity with Air Minister Victor Denain's warning that "Germany is ready."

The total air fleet across the Rhine was admitted to be still a mystery, but aviation experts were quoted as saying Germany already has more modern planes built for transformation into bombers than has France.

PUBLIC LIBRARY CIRCULATION UP 60,000 IN MONTH

Trustees of the Chicago public library were informed yesterday that the payment of back salaries to the city's school teachers had had a noticeable effect on the distribution of books by the library during October.

"Sixty thousand more books were distributed by the library and its branches during the month of October, an increase which we attribute almost wholly to the demand by pupils for books used supplementary to classroom texts," said Librarian Carl B. Rodin in presenting his monthly report at the board meeting. "This is evidence that payment of teachers has brought back their morale and that they are again giving their best to the classroom."

The board authorized the issuance of $138,000 in tax anticipation warants to meet November and December pay rolls. The warants will be sold to the city or to the library pension fund and not in the market, according to Mr. Rodin.

98 OR 99% TAX ON INCOMES IN WAR IS URGED

New York, Nov. 12.—[Special.]—A wartime tax of 98 or 99 per cent on all incomes in excess of $10,000 a year was advocated by Senator Gerald P. Nye, head of the senate committee investigating the munitions industry, in a speech tonight at an Armistice day meeting.

The North Dakota senator also said that the federal government should create a monopoly in the manufacture of munitions, and should adopt measures making it impossible for any one to profit one penny out of warfare. He was the principal speaker at a meeting of the New York League of Women Voters, attended by about 1,500 persons, and devoted to a discussion of munitions and war.

"JAFSIE' KNOWS I'M INNOCENT," SAYS SUSPECT

Hauptmann to Testify in Own Defense.

Flemington, N. J., Nov. 12.—Special.]—Bruno Hauptmann submitted to an interview—by proxy through his local attorney—today, answering a series of questions and again denying any connection with the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, beyond having some of the ransom money in his possession when arrested.

The interview was prompted by reports that Richard Whitney, an investigator for Hauptmann, had visited Washington over the weekend and had offered to help the department of justice in finding the "real kidnapers" of the child..

Answers Series of Questions.

Hauptmann, in his proxy interview answered a series of questions as follows:

Q.—Did Whitney plan Washington trip at your suggestion and what did you tell him? A.—Mr. Whitney has been attending to the business affairs of Mrs. Hauptmann.

Q.—Does the invitation to Dr. John F. Condon [Jafsie] to talk to you again still stand? A.—I will be only too glad to talk to Dr. Condon or to any one else in connection with this case at any time, assuming the interview is in the presence of a member of my counsel. I have been misquoted so frequently in my conversation with officials that I do not care again to have any conversation with any officials unless it be in the presence of my counsel. I would be glad to talk to Dr. Condon. In our last conversation Dr. Condon indicated to me that he knew I had nothing to do with the kidnaping or with the procuring of the ransom money.

Wants to Take Stand.

Q.—Do you want to take the witness stand in your own behalf? A.—I certainly do, and the sooner I can be on the stand and tell my story to the world, the sooner I will be freed of this awful charge. I am absolutely innocent. I know nothing whatever of the kidnapers and I am confident when I have told my history my innocence will be proved.

Q.—Did you ever know Betty Gow or any person employed by either the Lindberghs or the Morrows? A.—No.

Q.—Do you want a change of venue? A.—No. I am perfectly satisfied to permit my case to be rested with the Hunterdon county jury and to permit them to pass on the facts in this case.

3 SISTERS HELD IN CHRISTENING PARTY "SUICIDE"

Three sisters were being held at the Racine avenue police station last night while police investigated their story that the husband of one of them committed suicide during a christening party for his daughter.

Carl Adamowicz, 44 years old, 915 North Damen avenue, died early yesterday from a bullet wound. The women held were his widow, Helen, 21 years old; Miss Lottie Wojas, 19, and Mrs. Sophie Wojas Adamowicz, 24. Police were told that Adamowicz obtained a divorce from Sophie last summer and married Helen.

SOAR 26,500 FEET OVER VOLCANOES; TEST COSMIC RAY

Set Altitude Record for South America.

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Cosmic ray observations were conducted today from an airplane which set a South American altitude record by reaching 26,500 feet over towering volcanoes in the southern Andes.

The purpose of the flight was to permit Prof. S. A. Korff of the California Institute of Technology to record the effects of cosmic rays in this equatorial region. Scientists have said that valuable contributions could be made by such observations.

Use Air Liner.

A Pan-American Grace air liner was used for the altitude flight. It was flown by Lieut. Col. Baltasar Montoya of the Peruvian army air corps and J. F. Jardine, United States commercial pilot. They were up three hours.

Jardine said the lowest temperature recorded on the flight was about one degree above zero, Fahrenheit. The two flyers and the scientist said they experienced no discomfort.

Pass Over El Misti.

The big air liner passed over the volcanoes El Misti and Ubinas, two of the highest peaks in the Peruvian Andes. El Misti is 18,262 feet high. They are located in the vicinity of Arequipa.

Korff said he could make no statement yet about the results of his cosmic ray experiments, but he felt sure they would contribute greatly to the sum of knowledge on the subject.

Evanston Girl Becomes U. S. Judge's Secretary

CHICAGO ARTIST AND PAIR SAVED AS YACHT SINKS

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 12.—(AP)—A projected cruise from New York to the West Indies in a thirty foot auxiliary sailing yacht by Leslie Ragan, New York artist; his wife, and Robert Velie of Chicago, also an artist, ended in disaster off the South Carolina coast early today and the party's narrow escape with their lives.

Their craft, the Departure, struck some undetermined object off Cape Romain and was sinking when the Clyde-Mallory liner Henry R. Mallory sighted her distress signal and rescued the three adventurers.

Capt. J. E. Wood, master of the Mallory, ordered the liner brought to the lee of the little craft and the trio were enabled to come aboard by climbing the Departure's shrouds.

Ragan and his companions praised the able maneuvering that brought the rescuing steamer to them from the windward in the face of difficult conditions.

No attempt was made to save the boat.

HUNTER KILLS SELF.

Belleville, Ill., Nov. 12.—(AP)—A coroner's jury last night decided Rivin W. Rosenberg, 26, Belleville grocery store manager, accidentally shot and killed himself while hunting near Damiansville, Ill., yesterday.

SKIPPER DOCKS BATTERED SHIP; SAVIOR OF CREW

Sailors Call Him 'Bravest Man Living.'

HULL, England, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A stirring story of one man's relentless and successful fight against a violent north Atlantic storm was brought to this port today by the crew of the trawler Earl Kitchener of Hull, which came home after having been reported lost.

The hero of the little craft's turbulent voyage was Walter Harrison, skipper, whose sailors called him, "the bravest man living." All said they owed their lives to Harrison.

Wheel Washed Away.

A violent gale struck the trawler north of Iceland. The wheelhouse was washed away, but Harrison, constantly deluged by ice water, clung to the wheel.

For 26 hours he stood the frigid watch. Finally he fell in a heap on the deck. But, lying down, he clung to the wheel.

Then a wave tore away the wheel and washed it overboard. So Harrison operated the steering gear with his hands.

Another wave swept away the vessel's compass, and the dauntless skipper held to his course by occasional glimpses of the stars through flying clouds.

Wreckage Picked Up.

After he had stood for 28 hours without a wheel the crew finally disobeyed orders. Sailors tore him from his post, carried him below and revived him with hot drinks. After a short rest Harrison returned to his station and finally brought the trawler safely to the little port of Akureyri, Iceland. Wreckage identified as part of the trawler had been found on the coast, and its discovery led to reports the ship had foundered.

U. S. AIRMAN PLANS 2 STOP HOP AROUND WORLD IN 104 HOURS

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Clyde Pangborn, American aviator, said today he is planning to fly around the world in 104 hours. Pangborn said he would fly a plane designed by Vincent Burnelli, Italian-American designer, which is now under construction. He plans only two stops—Moscow and Chita, Siberia.

Col. Roscoe Turner, Pangborn's flying companion, said Howard W. Barlow, aeronautical engineering instructor at the University of Minnesota, was planning to build a plane capable of 400 miles an hour, with which he plans to attack all existing speed records.

In 1931 Pangborn and Hugh Herndon made the first nonstop flight across the North Pacific, from near Tokio to Wenatchee, Wash. They were on a projected flight around the world at the time. Pangborn and Turner finished third in the recent London to Melbourne air race.

Franz Tomayo Is Elected New President of Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Nov. 12. — (AP) — Franz Tomayo, former chancellor, apparently was elected president of Bolivia in yesterday's general election. He was the candidate of the Republican party and was opposed by Juan Meria Zalles, the Liberal party nominee. The new president will be inaugurated March 5, next year, and his term will extend to 1939. He will succeed president Daniel Salamanca.

JOHNSON FIGHTS TO RETAIN POST IN G. O. P. TODAY

Opponents Claim Enough Votes for Ouster.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Friends of Justus L. Johnson of Aurora, Republican state chairman, were working hard last night, trying to convince downstate members of the state central committee that they should not join Chicago committeemen in voting to oust Johnson today. His removal will be considered at a special meeting in the Hamilton club this afternoon and if the motion carries, Johnson will probably be succeeded by John H. Searing of Carbondale.

The ten Chicago committeemen signed the call for the meeting after a secret meeting last Wednesday night in a loop restaurant. Smarting under the Republican defeat in Cook county, they turned their wrath upon the chairman, declaring he ran the campaign "in a high handed manner" and authorized all campaign expenditures himself.

County Leaders Oppose Ouster.

Cook county central committee leaders do not share this feeling. Last night Chairman William H. Weber, and Secretary Edward F. Moore said they were "not in sympathy" with the move to oust Johnson. "Nor have we any complaints as to the manner in which the campaign was handled," Weber added. Another county chief declared that although all ten committeemen signed the call, "four or five of them won't vote to throw Johnson out."

The voting power of the committeemen is based upon the number of Republican votes cast in their districts at last April's primary when, for the first time in years, downstate outvoted Cook county. Cook cast 408,047 votes to the 565,356 tallied in the other 101 counties. Thus, in order to carry the meeting, the Chicago committeemen must hold their ten members as a unit and in addition, obtain the aid of three downstaters in order to poll a majority of 486,702 votes.

Claim 600,000 Votes.

A spokesmen for the anti-Johnson group declared last night that more than 600,000 votes were "assured" against Johnson's continued tenure. Committeemen Searing, William R. Allen of Peoria, and Jesse M. Hoyt signed the call last week but Hoyt, Johnson's friends report, will not be here today. It was said the Chicagoans were attempting to win over Myron E. Mills of Beardstown. Where the rest of their claimed 600,000 votes were coming from was not predicted.

Chairman Johnson was in a combatant mood yesterday, asserting that he hoped a quorum would be present so that he could fight his own case. Instead of recognizing the claim that his "autocratic manner" alone brought the breach, he declared a principal cause to be the dissatisfaction of Charles H. Porter, manager of the Illinois News bureau, Republican publicity agency, over the fact that bills for his services are in arrears. Porter's weekly news releases attacking the Democratic state administration have been widely printed in the downstate press.

"Porter insisted that his services were a first lien on any funds the state committee might obtain," Chairman Johnson said. "I insisted that I had a campaign to conduct which was a first charge against any contribution."

To the charges Porter declared the chairman "gives me credit for far too much power."

"I am an employé of the committee," he added, "and I have no criticism to make of any member. I take my orders through the regular channels and am in no position to comment."

Johnson has ordered the bureau closed until sufficient funds have been obtained to resume its operations. Porter disregarded these orders and instructed his staf at Springfield to continue work. If Johnson is ousted the Chicago members, it was believed, would wish the propaganda work resumed.

Courtney for U. S. Senator in 1936, Democratic Plan

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick, Ind., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Thomas J. Courtney, now state's attorney of Cook county, will be the Democratic organization candidate for United States senator from Illinois in 1936.

Opinion and sentiment among the party leaders from all parts of the state gathered here in a post-election roundup crystalized on the subject with unexpected rapidity today. The development clarified the whole picture of the organization's program. It will be topped with Mayor Kelly for a full term in the city hall, starting next year, and for the following year it will be Courtney for senator and Gov. Horner for a second term, if he determines to run again.

To some here 1936 looks a long way off, with the possibility of big events in the meantime, but the leaders point out that the state candidates in the presidential election must be agreed upon during the next year, as the nominations for the big quadrennial contest will be made less than eighteen months from now.

Swing to Courtney.

There has been no effort during the four days of chatting here to rush decisions even on minor questions up for settlement and the sudden swing to Courtney for senator came spontaneously. To a large extent it was a result of the never ceasing talk about the mayoralty race next year, one topic for early action since the city primaries are only five months away.

If a vote were taken here it would be unanimous for Kelly. The one particle of doubt in the air was whether some influences, mostly outside the party, were seeking to build up Courtney as a possible entrant and had aroused in him a desire to make the race. That doubt has been removed. Courtney, who, like Kelly, feels that the time has not come for public statements on this score, has privately given the mayor definite assurances of 100 per cent support.

With that point disposed of, the consideration of Courtney's own future brought into focus the fact that his forte and his desires always have been in the legislative field rather than in the executive, such as the work in the state's attorney's office or in the judicial branch of government.

Expect Lewis to Retire.

Although there has been no announcement from him, the organization has believed for some time that Senator James Hamilton Lewis will retire with the expiration of his present term. When Michael L. Igoe was slated last spring for congressman at large, a post he won last week, it was with the thought of some that he might be chosen as the candidate for Lewis' seat. The Courtney development has changed all that. Igoe is here and has not discussed his plans but it is believed he would not run against Courtney.

There also has been some talk about Gov. Horner's possible lack of desire to run for a second term at Springfield. One frequent suggestion has been that his personal wish would be for an appointment to the federal bench. That has been terminated by things he has said in private here. The indications are the organization will stand ready to back him again for the governorship if he wants to seek it.

SEE NEW TVA FOR NEW ENGLAND IN WATERWAY DEAL

U. S. Estimates Saving of 194 Million on Power.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—An attempt by the administration to duplicate the Tennessee valley experiment in New York and the New England states, contingent upon ratification of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty, was presaged today. The White House released a "yardstick" for electric rates compiled by the New York power authority.

If the administration is successful in its attempt to obtain ratification of the treaty with Canada in the next session, it will then have under way four "yardsticks," one in each corner of the nation, with a total ultimate cost of more than one billion dollars. This country's share of the St. Lawrence development, as estimated by its proponents, is 272 million dollars.

Estimates 194 Million Saving.

The White House release, based on a report submitted by the New York power authority, of which Frank P. Walsh is chairman, estimates that a saving of 194 millions a year would result to consumers from the use of the "yardstick" in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New England.

An implied conclusion in the report is that the production and distribution of electric energy by water power is virtually as costly as by the steam process, for the "yardstick" rates set up by the New York power authority follow closely those established by the Tennessee Valley Authority. The TVA rates are based upon hydroelectric power, while those set up as fair by the New York group are based upon costs to private companies using steam.

Conclusion Is Drawn.

The conclusion of the report is that the cost of distributing electricity to homes and farms in New York state warants a rate schedule of not more than 3½ cents a kilowatt hour for the use of 50 kilowatt hours a month "instead of the 6 cents which these customers are now paying." For a monthly use of 100 kilowatt hours, the report sets up a price of $2.70 as fair, for 200 kilowatt hours $4.20, and for 400 kilowatts, $6.80. The TVA rates are 3 cents for the first 50 kilowatt hours, only half a cent less than those proposed for New York, 2 cents for the second 50, 1 cent for the third, and then 4 mills.

The proposed New York rates, like those of the TVA, are based upon a greatly increased use of electricity, the report stating:

"The monthly savings would be even greater for the increased use of electricity which will follow such rate reductions." This means that instead of a saving of $1.35 a month on the cost of 50 kilowatt hours, the consumer would save more if he installed a range, a water heating device and space heating equipment.

Fifty kilowatt hours, according to Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the TVA, is enough to operate lights and small appliances such as percolators and toasters. To use more, the customer would have to install new appliances.

"The general electrification of our homes," says the report of the United Chamber of Commerce, "with the prices quoted above, would require an investment of 15 or 20 billion dollars for appliances alone, not including air conditioning.

"The fact that the national average cost of service to the domestic customer is 5½ cents per kilowatt hour shows that really low prices are available where the use exists. In order to get the benefit of lower rates through increased use the customer usually must increase his investment in electrical appliances, and a point is soon reached where interest and depreciation on this investment equals or exceeds his bill for electric current."

JAIL GUARD FIRED AFTER 'KANGAROO COURT' INITIATION

Thomas Mahon, a guard at the county jail, was discharged yesterday by Warden David Moneypenny as a result of an investigation into the hazing of Albert Sewiec, 18 years old, 4725 South Throop street, a prisoner.

Sewiec reported that he was dragged on the floor and cut and bruised during an "initiation" in a "kangaroo court" conducted by John Habura, 19 years old, 69 North Sangamon street, as "judge" and other inmates. Habura, held for carrying concealed weapons, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction and fined $100 by Judge Lambert K. Hayes in the Boys' court last Saturday for his part.

RALLIES WOMEN TO JOIN FIGHT ON RADICALISM

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin Issues the Call.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Women of the nation were invited today by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin to join the fight of the American Liberty league against radical measures of the New Deal.

Mrs. Sabin, who was a bulwark in the struggle to repeal the prohibition amendment and who has participated in many public spirited movements, has been elected a member of the executive committee of the league.

She and two other well known women, Mrs. James Ross Todd of Kentucky and Mrs. Henry B. Joy of Michigan, who also are newly elected to the league's executive committee, will be active in enlisting women into the battle against radicalism.

Shouse Tells Appointments.

The appointments of the trio of women were announced today by Jouett Shouse, president of the league, and one of its founders along with Alfred E. Smith, Irenée du Pont, John W. Davis and others.

Mrs. Sabin, who is one of the few genuinely feminine women to achieve public and political prominence, greeted newspaper men in Washington today, and explained her purpose in joining the league.

"I think that the women of this country," she declared at one point, "have a particular interest in the success of the league's program. The security of the home is menaced whenever a nation embarks upon a course involving disregard for the rights of its citizens, impairment of savings, and economic safeguards for the future and meddlesome burocratic intrusion in private affairs. Most women, we believe, would not care for the prospect that their children might be called upon to live under a social system in which such policies have become dominant.

Should Avert Starvation.

"Of course, there can be no doubt about the obligation of the government to prevent its citizens from starving when they are unemployed through no fault of their own. That has been done and it should be continued while the necessity exists, but the need for such federal activities should be eliminated as soon as possible.

"We believe that most women would not favor a social system in which their families would be supported permanently by the federal treasury. What they want is an opportunity for employment for their husbands and for themselves.

"We hope for—and we are confident we will receive—the enthusiastic cooperation of millions of women throughout the nation."

Mrs. Sabin insisted, as Mr. Shouse has done before, that the league has no partisan purposes, and she declared it was not anti-Roosevelt. Neither was it anti-New Deal in a sense that it would oppose "everything that has been done since the Roosevelt administration took office," Mrs. Sabin added.

"I think," she said in giving one concrete example of women's interest in the league, "that a woman who has sacrificed greatly to help pay the premiums on her husband's insurance is greatly concerned to receive assurance that the policy would be paid in the same value of dollars as the premiums were paid."

Sees Educational Need.

A New Dealish reporter asked querulously whether the recent election didn't show the people were in favor of the permanency of the New Deal.

"The overwhelming support of the people for the administration's policies," replied Mrs. Sabin quickly, "is perhaps all the more reason for the league's activities. Perhaps the American people need education along these lines. To my mind, the election has shown a great need for the American Liberal league."

THREE BARNSTORMING FLYERS DIE AS PLANE CRASHES IN FLAMES

Ritzville, Wash., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Three men died in the blazing wreckage of an airplane which crashed near here today, and authorities tonight said there were indications the victims were barnstorming flyers from Wenatchee.

Prosecutor E. W. Schwellenbach of Grant county said he learned the three, Earl and "Doc" Archers, brothers, and Art Brennin, had been at Neppel, near by, this afternoon. The Archers purchased the plane recently and planned to fly it to their home at Ashland, Ky.

Sherif Melvin Oestreich of Ritzville had the bodies brought here, but identification was impossible because of their charred condition. The plane, too, had been burned beyond identification.

PLANE BURNS; 3 DIE.

CHERBOURG, France, Nov. 12.—(AP)—A French military seaplane fell in flames today, killing three of the five man crew.

7 MEN KILLED IN 7,500 POUND POWDER BLAST

Avalalon, Catalina Island, Cal., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Seventy-five hundred pounds of blasting powder, set off like a great roaring torch at a rock quarry near here today, burned seven men fatally and another may die.

The cause of the sudden blaze which trapped most of the victims where they worked remained a mystery.

One Missing in Navy Yard Blast.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 13 [Tuesday].—(AP)—An acetylene gas tank exploded in the center of the Charlestown navy yard here shortly after 2 a. m. It could not be learned immediately whether any one was hurt, but windows were reported broken throughout a wide area surrounding the yard. The Boston fire department reported that the attendant of the gas plant was missing. The building was on fire, but other structures in the yard had not caught.

NEGRO ADMITS SLAYING SON OF MISSIONARIES

Robbery Apparent Motive for Killing.

Los Angeles, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Police Captain A. S. Bradley announced late today that Russ Griffin, 19 year old Negro, confessed he shot and killed Lawrence Leonard Lyons, 30, son of New York missionaries, claiming he did so in self-defense.

Lyons was found early today in Little Harlem, Negro section of Los Angeles.

Capt. Bradley related that Griffin, alias George Johnson, told him he was walking home from a beer parlor armed with two pistols when he met Lyons and an argument started. Griffin said Lyons wrested one of the guns from him and shot at him, the officer said.

Tells of Shooting.

The Negro youth assertedly described drawing his remaining pistol and shooting Lyons in the forehead. Griffin admitted, however, fleeing from the scene and exchanging shots with Policemen C. E. Drew and J. A. Schiller, Capt. Bradley said.

Griffin was arrested with Willie Smith, 24, Negro, who was said to have owned one of the pistols. Griffin, police reported, said he took the gun from Smith earlier in the evening.

Lyons, a graduate of Yale and Columbia, was the son of Dr. and Mrs. D. Willard Lyons, of New York, who recently made a survey of missions in the Far East for the Rockefeller Foundation. He had been studying at the medical school of the University of California.

Had Dead Man's Wallet.

Police Officers B. J. St. Charles and George C. Lindstrom said they found Lyon's wallet in the room which Smith and Johnson assertedly occupied. Also in the room, police said, were a blue sweater similar to the one worn by one of the men who killed Lyons and a pair of torn trousers.

Close to the scene of Lyon's death was found his automobile. In it, police said, was a pint of whisky of a type purchased earlier in the evening by Johnson and Smith when the two took occasion to brandish guns at a small liquor establishment.

Held Up in Auto.

Police reported Lyons had been playing bridge earlier in the evening, and apparently was held up as he was driving alone in his car, and was forced by the two gunmen to drive to the Little Harlem district. Here, instead of surrendering his wallet, he attempted to fight his captors, and the fatal shooting followed.

Dennis Wells, who said he saw the fight, told police Lyons put up a desperate fight that led his attackers to start beating him with a gun. Lyons continued to battle, Wells said, until one of the men turned the gun on him and fired.

RATION WATER IN CRESTON, IA.; 5 GALLONS DAY

FERA Halts Financing of Shipments.

Creston, Ia., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Creston's 9,000 residents to day were skimping along on five gallons of water per day per person, the limit set by the council Saturday after the Federal Emergency Relief administration announced it would no longer finance water shipments from Council Bluffs, Ia., 100 miles west, as it has been doing since July 10.

Creston voters on Nov. 6 defeated by 42 votes a proposition to buy the privately owned water works system and issue $40,000 improvement bonds.

Shipping water has cost the FERA $60,000 in four months. Lack of funds is assigned as the reason for shutting off water aid.

Two Lakes Depleted.

The local water supply in two depleted lakes is estimated to last 75 days with rigid conservation. The private water company plans to ship water in 10 carloads, half of the amount the FERA shipped daily, being ordered for tomorrow. It is proposed to charge the actual cost of transportation to the consumer. The rate is expected to be about $6 per 1,000 gallons. The emergency rate under FERA was $1.50. The original rate was 35 cents.

If the proposition to buy the plant had carried, the FERA would have sunk a 1,500 foot well expected to produce 200,000 gallons daily, enough for emergency needs although the city's normal demand is 1,000,000 gallons daily.

Fix Third Limitation.

The new five gallon limit is the third one set by the council. In June a 20 gallon limit was set. Later a 10 gallon limit was established. The penalty for violation of the limit is $100 fine or 30 days in jail. Previously violators have been warned but no fines assessed.

The water source here is a 300 million gallon artificial lake now holding only 5,000,000 gallons. The lake nearly went dry in April. A second lake, city owned, was used for two months before it virtually dried up in July. Creston is 14 miles from the nearest river.

EARTH TREMORS JAR ILLINOIS, IOWA SECTIONS

Buildings Are Shaken by Two Brief Shocks.

Davenport, Ia., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Two sharp but brief earth tremors today jarred this section of Iowa and adjacent Illinois areas. Homes and other buildings were shaken, stovelids and dishes were rattled, and thousands of town and country dwellers distinctly felt the shocks. No damage was reported, however.

The first quake came at 8:45 a. m. and the second one about two minutes later. A railroad agent at Gerlaw, Ill., said the disturbance was so sharp there that it felt as if a truck had crashed into the depot.

Galesburg Feels Shocks.

Many cities and towns surrounding the Quad Cities, particularly those south of Rock Island, reported considerable excitement among the populace over the tremors. The shocks were reported felt at the Illinois towns of Galesburg, Roseville, Aledo, Monmouth, Alexis, Moline, East Moline, and Rock Island.

At Galesburg dishes were shaken from shelves in an apartment building and in the country housewives reported that stove lids rattled and frame houses shook.

A Rock Island woman who formerly resided at Santa Barbara, Cal., declared that the shocks were as distinct as any she ever had experienced in California.

Blames Surface Faults.

Dr. F. M. Fryxell, professor of geology at Augustana college in Rock Island, said the shocks were caused by faulting in the earth's surface. He said scientists had not been able to determine the exact cause of similar shocks in the midwest.

Today's disturbance was the eleventh to occur in the state in the last 62 years, according to records kept by Mrs. Vernon Seeburger of Des Moines, who has made the study of earthquakes a lifetime hobby. She plans to establish a seismograph station in her home within the next few weeks.

None of the Iowa tremors has caused serious damage, Mrs. Seeburger said. The most serious ones occurred in 1905, when the shock rang bells and cracked floors at Keokuk, Ia., and in 1909 when chimneys were knocked down and furniture was broken in the same city. The last tremor felt in this section was Jan. 2, 1912.

Issues Warning Against Forest Preserve Hunting

A warning to forest preserve hunters was issued yesterday by Emmett Whealan, president of the forest preserve commissioners. Fifty policemen will patrol the preserves during the present hunting season, he said, and any one caught hunting pheasants, quail, rabbits or any other game at any time, in season or out, will be arrested and prosecuted.

'STREAM' TRAINS GIVE BUS LINES CAUSE TO WORRY

But High Rail Fares Are Cheerful Factor.

BY HAL FOUST.

America's bus industry, child giant of the nation's transportation system, has grounds for concern over the development of light weight, streamlined trains for rail service.

"We really don't have to worry until the railroads are able to match our prices," said Chester Moore, president of the Illinois Bus Operators' association. "Our surveys indicate that low fares are practically the sole reason for our patronage.

"This single appeal, low cost, is so strong, however, that folks will continue to ride the buses, no matter how fast and comfortable are the streamliners, so long as the rail fares are higher. If the railroads cut their rates to meet ours, buses will be removed from the highways."

Maintain Steam Train Fares.

The fares on these first streamliners will be the same as on the conventional steam trains. This is true of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad's Zephyr, which on Sunday started a schedule of a daily round trip from Lincoln, Neb., to Omaha, Neb., to Kansas City, Mo., as the first regular passenger service in America utilizing this new type of vehicle. It is also true of the streamliners to begin operation next year between Chicago and St. Paul, between Chicago and St. Louis, and between Chicago and Los Angeles.

"We'll retrieve passenger business that has been captured by the buses without any changes in fares," said Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington. "Between Lincoln and Omaha, for example, the Zephyr fare is $1.10, as compared with $1 on the buses. The buses in the last year have received 60 per cent of the common carrier business between these two cities.

Points to Advantages.

"For the additional 10 cents fare between these two points the Zephyr now offers a fifty-five minute trip in a comfortable air conditioned coach with radio entertainment, drinking water, toilet facilities, and light lunches at moderate cost. The bus takes one hour and fifty-five minutes—and you know what a bus trip is like.

"We are going to operate the streamliners on regular train tarifs at the start, but no one knows what the future will bring. The use of this equipment is a business experiment."

Estimates of operating costs for this high speed rail equipment indicate that they might be able to compete with the buses on a strict price basis. Mr. Moore of the operators' association estimates that the cost of running a thirty seat intercity bus is 27 cents a mile. The Zephyr, with only half its floor space devoted to passengers, is expected to pull seventy-two passenger seats at less than 40 cents a mile.

Lower Operating Costs.

The bus costs are 9 mills per seat mile, as compared with 5.5 mills per seat mile on the streamliner. Furthermore, with only half of its floor space devoted to passengers, the Zephyr is not entirely dependent upon this patronage for its revenue. Its mail contract and its revenue from its baggage and express compartment are sufficient by themselves to pay all of the operating costs, leaving the passenger business to support the roadbed and to pay profits.

The operating cost of a streamliner is approximately half that of a conventional train of similar capacity. Weight reduction and aerodynamics share credit for this economy. The Zephyr, weighing 104 tons, has displaced two steam trains of 404 tons each that formerly performed the same service.

The benefits of the streamlining are less generally understood than the obvious benefits of the weight reduction. At 75 miles an hour the Zephyr uses but 56 per cent of the power that would be required to propel a vehicle of the same size and weight, but of the shape of a convention train.

Statistics indicate the importance to the railroads of retrieving the bus passenger business. Rail travel dropped 47.4 billion passenger miles in 1920 to 31.2 billion passenger miles in 1929 and to 17 billion passenger miles in 1932.

MEXICAN REVOLT CALL SOUNDED IN A 'MANIFESTO'

General Reported to Be Heading Movement.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 12.— (AP) —A local newspaper today published a purported manifesto by Gen. Antonio Villareal, defeated presidential candidate in the July election, calling for open revolution against the Mexican government. The newspaper said it believes the "manifesto" was false.

The alleged document called Villareal "the chief of the revolution" and said the movement stood for freedom of religion and the press. It outlined alleged plans for a military uprising Nov. 20.

Whereabouts Uncertain.

Villareal's present whereabouts is uncertain. He was said at one time to be in the United States and then to have gone to southern Mexico.

Charges of incitement to rebellion against two high Catholic leaders, now in exile, has resulted from an investigation of an alleged church campaign to overthrow the government.

Police were ordered to arrest Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, papal delegate to Mexico, and José de Jesus Manrique y Zarate, bishop of Huejutla, Hidalgo state, should they try to reenter the country. They are now in the United States.

Denies He Incited Revolt.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, living in exile here, expressed little surprise today when informed that orders for his arrest had been issued by the attorney general of Mexico on a charge of inciting rebellion.

Archbishop Ruiz y Flores said he felt it was his duty as apostolic delegate to Mexico to protest against the "prejudicial persecution of the church in Mexico by politicians," but denied there was anything in his letters to Archbishop Pascual Diaz of Mexico that might tend to "incite rebellion."

MRS. ROOSEVELT OPENS HOLIDAY DISPLAY ROOMS

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Business in Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's Val-Kill furniture shop of Hyde Park has "picked up a little in the last couple of months," the President's wife declared tonight at the opening of the annual exhibit of hand made furniture in the Roosevelt town house.

With an eye to the Christmas trade, Mrs. Roosevelt and her three associates cleared the first two floors of their home and turned them into display rooms for copies of early American pieces, made here in the shop on the Roosevelt estate.

Visitors crowded the rooms to examine the maple and walnut butterfly tables, benches, ladderback chairs, lowboys, dressers and bedsteads. New items in the line this season are wooden salad bowls, cheese trays and bread boards, as well as assorted small items such as cigarette boxes and muddlers for making cocktails.

GERMANY PUTS NEW WARSHIP INTO SERVICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Germany's small navy was strengthened today, when the second 10,000 ton pocket battleship, Admiral Scheer, was placed in commission at Wilhelmshaven.

"The name Scheer is indissolubly linked with the navy's greatest day of honor," Chancellor Adolf Hitler said in a message to the ship's captain. "I expect the crew to prove always worthy of the spirit of the battle of Jutland."

The third pocket battleship, Admiral Spee, is nearing completion, while the keel of the fourth has been laid at Kiel.

NRA PUBLISHERS' BOARD STARTS HEARING HERE

The industrial board of the American Newspaper Publishers' association opened a seven day meeting in the Palmer House yesterday. The board is the National Recovery administration's authority for the settlement of disputes between newspaper owners and their employés. Twenty-six cases involving newspapers of the Missouri valley area will be decided by the group.

The first case yesterday involved a wage dispute between the Typographical union of Wichita, Kas., and the publishers of the Wichita Eagle and Beacon. A strike of last April was temporarily settled when both sides submitted to arbitration by local mediators.

Judge Fred C. Gause of Indianapolis, former justice of the Indiana supreme court is impartial arbiter. Harvey J Kelly and Merrill Lord of Chicago Emanuel Levi of the Louisville Courier-Journal, and Edward Harris of the Richmond, Ind., Paladium and Item represent the publishers. Arthur Rehage of the International Photo Engravers' union, Leon De Veze of the International Stereotypers' union, Claude M. Baker, representative for the International Typographers' union, and H. W. Matheson of the Newspaper Guild of America, a reporters' union, are acting for the employés.

BOLIVIA CLAIMS ROUT OF FOE BY CAVALRY ATTACK

Reports Troops Recaptured Fort in Chaco.

BY HAROLD TATAM.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 12.—Dispatches from La Paz, capital of Bolivia, today announced a decisive Bolivian victory over Paraguayan forces in the Gran Chaco war. The Paraguayans, according to the La Paz ministry of war, sustained heavy losses. The Bolivians reported that a cavalry attack routed a force of 20,000 Paraguayans. The fort "27th of November" was recaptured, the communique said.

Dispatches from Asuncion, Paraguay, announced that the Paraguayans had repulsed a Bolivian attack on Fort Long.

Saves Spy from Death.

President Dr. Eusebio Ayala of Paraguay commuted the death penalty for Walter Maas, a confessed spy, to 10 years' imprisonment. Maas, who is a native of Germany, was convicted of espionage for Bolivia, although recent Bolivian communiques said that the La Paz government never heard of him.

Maas, at the eleventh hour, appealed to the Salvation Army at Buenos Aires, to intercede in his behalf with the daughter of Gen. Estigarribia, Paraguayan military commander. Miss Estigarribia is now in Argentina. The Salvation Army commander replied:

"It is impossible to comply with your request. Make your peace with God and repent what you have done."

League Asks Aid of U. S.

GENEVA, Nov. 12.—(AP)—A league of nations' committee decided today that it needed the aid of the United States and Brazil to end the bloody war between Paraguay and Bolivia in the Chaco Boreal.

A resolution instructing the secretary general of the league to select an opportune moment at which to ask the two big western nations' collaboration was adopted unanimously by the Chaco consultative committee.

The resolution was immediately communicated by J. A. C. Avenol, secretary general, to Prentiss Gilbert, United States consul. It was understood he cabled to Washington.

The resolution followed a suggestion by Spain that the United States and Brazil be issued an official invitation to aid in the Chaco peace efforts immediately, but as adopted it leaves the invitation up to the officials.

Even as the resolution was being adopted, Bolivia declared to the league that Paraguay was waging war in order to obtain Bolivian oil deposits while Paraguay informed the league that she could not accept a cessation of hostilities until the conciliation of differences should be undertaken.

SCIENTISTS MEET IN JUNGLE; STUDY NEGRO RITUALISM

Savants View Weird Shadow Dances.

RECIFE, Brazil, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Weird shadow dances and canticles performed by Brazilian Negroes for the benefit of science and art were witnessed here today by savants gathered for a four day congress investigating Afro-Brazilian totems and taboos.

Under the branches of giant trees in a jungle glade far removed from the heart of the city were gathered some of Brazil's most luminous personages of arts, letters, and science studying at first hand manifestations of mental diseases hitherto believed induced by ritualism.

It was believed that many Brazilians examined by psychiatrists and interned in special hospitals may benefit from the studies.

"Induced Hallucination."

African jungle magic and ritual traced to Negro influences are held to be the origin of much mental suffering. One authority here described the results of ritualistic practices common in Brazil as "induced hallucination" and said usually the adept is won over after a seance to which he goes in the hope of allaying "unrest brought on by some intimate disorder."

"The 'patient' is kept awake several nights and put through weird, exotic rites," this authority said. "In the end, by the power of suggestion, he is allowed to go in the belief he has been cured of his mental malady, and he is from then on a sworn believer.

Typical Dances Arranged.

To illustrate the lectures and discussions typical dances and canticles have been arranged. Negro immigrants and their descendants from Africa have been brought here to perform before the congress in typical jungle settings.

Special studies in several branches of research, scientific, artistic, and even political in nature, are included in the tropical program. Some of the listed themes are: "The Revolutionary Potential of the Negro in Continental America," by Aderbal Jurema; "Afro-Brazilian Psychology," by Geraldo Andrade; "The Influence of the Negro in Brazil," by Concalves Fernandez.

Much attention will be given to diseases specially prevalent among Negroes. Many famous composers, musicians, and artists are here for the meetings.

BUT— THERE'S A WAY MEN AND WOMEN CAN OFFSET THIS HANDICAP. (DIAPEPSIN HELPS THE PERSON WITH A SLOW STOMACH TO DIGEST WHATEVER IS EATEN WITHOUT DISTRESS)
P

Men and women who work in offices, getting little exercise, or outdoor life, frequently have "slow stomach." Nothing really wrong, a stomach just as strong as the more active man or woman, just slow digestion accompanied by sourness, gas, even acute pains.

This is rarely a serious condition, because it is easily remedied. Years ago, a man named Pape discovered a simple way to relieve this acid indigestion. Diapepsin, in tablets that are eaten just like candy, has brought happiness to many who thought they had a "weak stomach." If you have distress after dinner, any acid discomfort at all, your stomach may be slow in emptying. If you will relieve this condition with Pape's Diapepsin, you can eat in greater comfort—that's sure. Mr. Pape's discovery has ended "food fear" for many who used to suffer severely.

Try it! Carry the pocket tin and take a tablet or two after meals until your digestion is improved and all that sourness is gone. Pape's Diapepsin; remember the name.

COOKING SCHOOL TO OPEN TODAY ON WEST SIDE

Economy Dishes Will Be Demonstrated.

Cooking for the family isn't so very expensive if you know how—and you can learn how today when THE TRIBUNE opens its fourth annual cooking school at Guyon's Paradise ballroom, 128 North Pulaski road [Crawford avenue].

CAPT. TIM HEALY

On the stage before the eyes of some 5,000 housewives who are expected to be present, Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, home economics expert, will prepare a veal loaf, sufficient to serve twelve persons with bountiful helpings, for a total cost of just 62 cents.

And Mrs. Chitwood says this veal loaf will contain not only meat, but vegetables, bread, and, in short, everything that is needed for a perfectly balanced meal.

For the hostess who is thinking of something for that afternoon bridge party, Mrs. Chitwood will prepare a huge tray of sauted little delicacies in the shape of hearts, spades, diamonds and clubs.

And those are only two of the many things that she will teach at the cooking school.

The day will not be devoted solely to the culinary arts. Radio and stage artists will be on hand to entertain. A community sing, led by Carl Craven, with Leon Benditzky at the piano, will start things off.

Another entertainer will be Capt. Tim Healy, known for his Ivory Stamp Club of the Air. An expert philatelist, Capt. Tim will speak on the origin and history of the Red Cross stamp.

Others on the program will be Roy Cropper, tenor, who was the original "Student Prince"; Joel Lay, baritone, concert and radio star who was the chairman of the music division of A Century of Progress; the Doring Sisters, harmony trio of W-G-N; Russ Russell, announcer, and "Rube Appleberry," also of W-G-N—Geoffry O'Hara, composer of "K-K-K-Katy" and other well known songs, and some 30 or 40 children, pupils of the Ideal dance studio, directed by Miss Mayblossom MacDonald.

Phil Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE will act as master of ceremonies and short talks will be made by Rhea Seeger, fashions editor, and Anna Nangle, whose writings are seen in THE TRIBUNE under the name of Sally Joy Brown.

Headlining the entertainment tomorrow will be Sophie Tucker, as well as Art Millet, W-G-N staf announcer, and Lum and Abner, W-G-N artists. Thursday will bring Francis X. Bushman, former screen star and present radio artist, while the main attraction on Friday will be Ireene Wicker, the Singing Lady of W-G-N.

ELLEN M'ADOO AND HUSBAND HERE FOR HOUR

The former Ellen McAdoo and her husband, Raphael Lopez De Onate, passed through Chicago yesterday on "just the sort of a journey a honeymoon ought to be." Mrs. De Onate, daughter of United States Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, used that expression in telling of the indefinitness of the plans which she and her actor husband have made. The couple, married in Albuquerque, N. M., last Saturday, arrived here at 6:45 a. m. and departed an hour later for Washington, D. C., where, according to reports they are to meet the bride's mother.

Mrs. De Onate, a tall young woman, clung to the arm of her taller husband while photographers snapped their picture, and then admitted that she had been pleasantly surprised when her father had finally given his blessing after opposing the marriage. He had wired her, she said, that "love laughs at locksmiths," and she added: "He isn't usually romantic."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Bavaria's famous beer has been reduced in price by agreement of the state's brewers. Henceforth Bavarian dark beer will cost 18 cents a quart. Minister of State Esser negotiated the beer pact. He stressed that the "price of the main necessities of life must be reduced for a wide circle of consumers." Inasmuch as beer is considered "the people's nourishment in Bavaria," he induced the brewers to agree to a 10 per cent cut.

JUDGE REJECTS SECOND HAND AUTO SALE CODE

Holds It Invalid for Intrastate Deals.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught today held unconstitutional the price fixing provisions of the NRA retail automobile dealers' code. He ruled that the government does not have jurisdiction over the private transactions of individuals within a state.

The decision in the matter was given in connection with the court's dismissal of indictments against J. A. Kinnebrew of Oklahoma City, and O. G. Ledbetter of Norman, automobile dealers. They were charged with buying and selling cars at prices lower than those specified by the code.

Balks at Second Hand Trade.

"The purpose of the act was to regulate industry in so far as it affected interstate commerce," the judge said, "but it can hardly be contended with any degree of reason, that the sale or purchase of a second hand automobile in Oklahoma City between two persons, both of whom live in the same locality and within the same state, constitutes interstate commerce or affects or burdens interstate commerce.

"If it be true of a second hand automobile, it would be true of a worn out suit of cloths, a pair of shoes, or a discarded shirt. Yet if a private citizen cannot dispose of such articles in which he actually has a property right without complying with some provisions of a code assumed to have been made by virtue of an act of congress, then congress seeks to regulate and control those matters of regulation which under the constitution were not only denied to congress but were delegated to the states."

Compromise Coal Code Case.

East St. Louis, Ill., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Agreeing to a decree of injunction to restrain them from violations of the price fixing provisions on their bituminous coal code, criminal action against the officials of the Elinor Coal company of Belleville was dismissed today in federal court. The company's officials cited were Edward Randle, president, John Ervins, vice president, and William Randle, secretary treasurer. Judge Fred L. Wham said the form of the decree prevented the court from discussing the issue involved.

It was charged the company sold 25 tons of coal to St. Louis dealers for $1.25 a ton while the code set a price of $1.95.

"I SAVED $27.23 On My Car Insurance by dealing direct with one of the strongest insurance companies in America . . ."

"I USED to give the insurance on my Cadillac to an insurance friend of mine. Never asked him what it cost. But when my income went down, I was forced to reduce my living expenses.

"I had read Liberty Mutual advertisements telling how they saved money on car insurance, but my insurance friend always persuaded me to keep renewing with him year after year, until the leanness of my income forced me to do some investigating and thinking for myself.

"I sent for Liberty's free booklet—'How You Could Have Saved 20% on the Cost of Your Automobile Insurance.' It told me how Liberty Mutual had become the largest, strongest mutual liability insurance Company in America.

"I found that they settle 99% of accident cases out of court and give the kind of claim service that causes 115,000 policyholders to renew their policies year after year.

"The book explained how Liberty Mutual earns the money for the 20% dividends it has paid to its policyholders, every year for 22 years. The company has no stockholders. Profits are paid to policyholders who own and manage Liberty themselves and share in the profits by receiving cash dividends. Profits and dividends have always been large because Liberty sells direct . . paying no commissions to brokers or agents. Also, Liberty solicits insurance from only careful drivers. This reduces losses from accidents.

"Liberty's June 30, 1934 balance sheet shows Assets of $28,862,292; Liabilities and Special Reserves $24,635,155; Surplus $4,227,137. Liberty has continued to earn and pay its regular 20% dividends to policyholders and at the same time, it has increased its resources and surplus each year during the depression.

I was thinking about you late last night!

The wife and I dropped in on George and Sally Grayson—who were playing double solitaire and drinking ale. This was a surprise! Not the solitaire but the ale.

"George," said I, "do you mean to tell me that after all these years you have finally caught up with the most sensible cold-weather drink in the world? What happened? . . . a miracle?"

George was turning up an ace. "No," said he thoughtfully, "it wasn't a miracle. Just horse-sense, I guess. I've always liked beer, as you know. So when my business partner explained to me that ale, with its higher alcoholic content, is the logical winter step-up in taste and effect, I tried it. And, believe me, I'm going to stick to ale this winter and every winter . . . that is, if I can get this particular brand!"

He was pointing to the label which read, "Blue Ribbon Genuine Ale." No wonder he liked it!

On our way home (after having helped get away with six more bottles) my wife said: "What a thoroughly enjoyable evening! And such a relief that you don't have to force down Blue Ribbon Ale because it's the thing to do. It's delicious and vigorous, too—yet it never carries you beyond the point of enjoyment. Why doesn't everybody prefer Blue Ribbon Ale?"

Yes, I was thinking about you. I wondered if you, too—whoever you are—had discovered mellow, tangy, full-flavored Blue Ribbon Ale. Who am I? I'm a Sales Manager, and I know a deservedly popular product when I see one! I mean . . .

SEA AIR SERVICE WITHIN 3 YEARS FORESEEN BY ACE

Pacific Line First, Capt. Rickenbacker Believes.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Both trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific air service on regular schedules will be a reality within three years, Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker declared today.

This opinion from America's leading ace in the world war carries weight. He has played a leading part in the development of transcontinental aviation. Last Thursday he helped set a new California-New York record for transport planes, flying from coast to coast in 12 hours and 3 minutes at an average speed of 216 miles an hour.

It is time for American aviation interests to consider seriously the inauguration of air service to Europe and to the far east, the flyer asserted. He pointed out that France already has under construction a gigantic seaplane, designed to carry 70 persons in a regular service across the North and South Atlantic.

May Begin in Spring.

If the tests of the French air liner, the 165 foot wing span of which will exceed that of the Dornier DO-X, are successful, it may make its first ocean cruise next spring.

"I believe that the flying boat type of plane must be used for the first couple of years in transocean flying," Capt. Rickenbacker said. "It will be multi-motored, of course, having at least four and probably six engines. Eventually, in my opinion, the land plane will be used because you cannot combine speed and pay load in the flying boat as you can in the land plane. The land transport with a range of 5,000 miles and still a good pay load will ultimately solve the problem."

Somewhat surprising to the landsman may be Capt. Rickenbacker's opinion that air service over the Pacific ocean will probably precede that over the Atlantic.

Talks of Pacific Flying.

"In fact, Pacific flying is now feasible with the new Douglas planes in which the Los Angeles-New York flight was made in twelve hours last week," he said. "I can easily visualize in the near future a fan of air lines centering on Hawaii from Seattle, San Francisco, and Los Angeles and then spreading out again from Hawaii to the Samoan islands, New Zealand, Australia, the Philippines and Japan."

The dirigible also cannot be left out of any discussion of trans-oceanic flying, Capt. Rickenbacker declared, because of its long cruising range and carrying capacity.

"The dirigible will also inspire many to ride who otherwise would not care to chance an ocean flight," he said. "Recent improvements have made the dirigible one of the safest means of trans-ocean trafic."

After New Mark Today.

Tomorrow, Capt. Rickenbacker will attempt a dawn-to-dusk round trip between New York and Miami. The plane will be the same Douglas transport ship in which last week's record was set. It has been christened the "Florida Flyer," and will inaugurate the new daily one-schedule Douglas service between the two cities which will begin Thursday. The present 12 hour elapsed time over the route will be slashed to 8 hours, with stops only at Washington, D. C., and Jacksonville.

Leaving Newark airport at 6 a. m., tomorrow, the plane is scheduled to arrive at Miami at 12:30 p. m. Promptly at 1:30 p. m. the return trip will be started and arrival back in New York is set for 8 p. m.

Douglas planes will also be placed in service soon between Chicago and Miami, it was announced. A daily schedule of 8½ hours is contemplated for that route, with only one or two stops. More details of the Chicago-Miami run are to be made public later.

KIPLING COMPOSES ODE FOR DEDICATION OF ARMISTICE SHRINE

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Rudyard Kipling, the poet of the British empire, has composed a new ode closely linked with Armistice day. It was written in connection with the dedication by the duke of Gloucester of Melbourne's "Shrine of Remembrance" and reads:

So long as memory, valour, and faith endure
Let these stones witness through the years to come,
How once there was a people fenced secure
Behind great waters girdling a far home.
Heedless and headlong as their unyoked seas—
Lavish o'er all, and set in stubborn pride
Of judgment nurtured by accepted peace.
Thus, suddenly, war took them—seas and skies
Joined with the earth for slaughter. In a breath
They, scoffing at all talk of sacrifice,
Gave themselves without idle words to death.
Thronging as cities throng to watch a game,
Or their own herds moved southward with the year,
Secretly, swiftly, from their ports they came,
So that before half earth had heard their name
Half earth had learned to speak of them with fear;
Because of certain men who strove to reach
Through the red surf the crest no man might hold,
And gave their name forever to a beach
Which shall outlive Troy's tale when time is old;
Because, of horsemen, gathered apart and hid—
Merciless riders whom Megiddo sent forth
When the outflanking hour struck and did
Them close and bar the drove-roads to the north;
And those who, when men feared the last march flood
Of western war had risen beyond recall,
Stormed through the night from Amiens and made good.
At their glad cost, the breach that perilled all.
Then they returned to their desired land—
The kindly cities and plains where they were bred—
Having revealed their nation in earth's sight
So long as sacrifice and honor stand
And their own sun at the hushed hour shall light.
The shrine of these their dead!

Boy on Bicycle Dies as Rope Snaps and Breaks His Neck

Howard Hanley, 22 years old, of 1011 Liberty street, Joliet, a Western Union messenger boy, the victim of a freak accident, died en route to St Joseph's hospital in Joliet yesterday. The youth was riding his bicycle past a rope barricade set up for an Armistice day observance when an autc driven by George Erb, 203 Sherman street, Joliet, drove into the rope and snapped it, causing it to recoil around the youth's neck. The force of the blow jerked Hanley to the pavement breaking his neck and fracturing his skull.

ARMISTICE DAY EVENTS HELD BY MILITIA GROUPS

Schools and Banks Close for Legal Holiday.

Schools, banks, and many business houses remained closed yesterday as Chicago officially celebrated Armistice day. Monday was a legal holiday because Nov. 11 fell this year on Sunday.

Although most celebrations and memorial services took place on Saturday and Sunday, a number were scheduled for yesterday. The largest of these was the annual Armistice review of the 122d field artillery of the Illinois National Guard, which took place last night.

Many Veterans Take Part.

Milton J. Foreman, war time colonel of the regiment, reviewed and inspected the unit in the armory at 234 East Chicago avenue. All participating officers of the rank of captain or above saw service in the 122d in France.

The heavy fighting in which the 131st infantry, Illinois National Guard, took part from Oct. 9, to Nov. 11, 1918, as a part of the 33d division in France was recalled last evening by Maj. George N. Malstrom, now superintendent of mails of the Chicago post office. He addressed members and veterans of the regiment in the regiment's armory at 15th street and Michigan avenue.

Regiment Never Forced Back.

In some of the hardest fighting in which American troops were involved, Maj. Malstrom related, the 131st infantry never was forced back, and until Nov. 9, 1918, when the Germans captured two men, it had had none taken prisoner. Its casualties totaled 2,700 men.

Once when the regiment was with the British at Chantilly, the major said it advanced so rapidly that it captured an artillery colonel in his headquarters with his whole staf and an airplane.

As part of this year's Armistice celebration the Chicago Historical society placed on exhibition yesterday priceless military documents of early American history. Manuscripts signed by George Washington, George Rogers Clark, Count de Rochambeau, Baron von Steuben, Commodore Perry, Admiral Farragut, Robert E. Lee, and Ulysses S. Grant are among those on display.

DIES OF POISON IN HOSPITAL.

Martin Paradowski, 55 years old, 4809 South Hoyne avenue, a laborer, died in the County hospital yesterday from the effects of swallowing poison in his home Sunday.

JAPANESE ARMY CLAIMS BIG AREA OF EAST SIBERIA

Argues Control Should Go to Yellow Race.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SIXTH ARTICLE.

IRKUTSK, Siberia., Capital of Buryat M. S. S. R., Oct. 30.—[By Courier and Mail.]—When Japanese military men inspect a map of Siberia, they usually point to this district as the natural dividing line between European and Asiatic Russia. They argue that all territories east of Lake Baikal belong to Asia and should be controled by Asiatic or yellow peoples, while the areas to the west belong to the Europeans.

Most neutral military men claim that in the event of a long drawn out military struggle between Japan and the soviet union, the decisive battles probably would be fought in the territory immediately to the east of Lake Baikal. They insist that Russia, because of transport difficulties, might not be able to hold the far east and ultimately would be forced to drop back to this district.

Capital of Mongol Republic.

Under the scheme of political decentralization adopted by the soviet authorities several months ago, the city of Irkutsk has made capital of what is known as the Buryat Mongolian Socialist Soviet Republic, or, as it appears on the Russian maps, the B. M. S. S. R.

Although founded nearly 300 years ago, the city has only about 100,000 people. Like Chita to the east, it was a storm center in the revolutionary struggles between the Reds and the whites. Admiral Kolchak, commander of the white armies, was court-martialed and shot here in February, 1920.

While one observes orientals in considerable numbers at all of the railway stations in the Rusisan far east, they seem to be more in evidence here than elsewhere, and also seem to be of a more upstanding and determined type. In Vladivostok one observes considerable numbers of yellow men, Coreans, wearing the Red army uniform; here they are chiefly Buryats and Mongolians.

A Strategic Point.

The reason for this is that the territory along the Selenga river, which flows into Lake Baikal from the south, provides the connecting link between Outer Mongolia and the soviet union. The soviets have improved the connection by developing a motor road from Vernkne-Udinsk, on the Trans-Siberian railway, extending southward through Kiakhta on the border, to Ulan Bator, or Urga, capital of Outer Mongolia, which Russia took over from China in 1922 following the defeat by the Red army of white contingents who had established themselves there. A soviet airline also connects both Irkutsk and Vernkne-Udinsk with Urga.

This city and the entire district surrounding Lake Baikal is, therefore, of tremendous strategic importance to the soviets and it undoubtedly constitutes the center of their military and industrial plans with respect to the maintenance of their political control in the far east.

Pending the completion of another railway extending northward from Irkutsk and around the northern end of Lake Baikal and thence eastward to the Amur river, the narrow strip of territory between the southern shores of Baikal and the Mongolian border constitute a sort of "bottle neck" which must be defended at all costs.

Fear Jap Invasion of Mongolia.

The Japanese occupation of Manchuria in 1931 and the attempt to extend Japanese influence among the Mongolian tribes both in Outer and Inner Mongolia has greatly increased the tension here, because any defection of Mongolians toward the banner of imperial Japan or Manchukuo might easily cause disaster to the soviets at this point.

Japan's gestures toward the Mongolians have been too obvious for the comfort of the soviets. These gestures include the creation of a separate Mongolian province in western Heilungkiang province of Manchukuo, with its capital at Hailar. There the Japanese maintain an aviation base and military school for the training of Mongolian cavalrymen. Of more recent significance is the extension of Japanese influence into Inner Mongolia through Jehol, Chahar, and Suiyuan provinces to the northwest of Peiping.

Many observers believe Russia's action in fortifying its Siberian border along the Amur and at Vladivostok caused the Japanese Kwantung army to change its tactics and decide upon a flanking movement through Mongolia, on the theory that the Mongolian front constituted a weak link or vulnerable spot in the soviet defense.

Seek to Split Russia and China.

However, the Japanese military leaders always have had the idea of creating a Manchu-Mongolian-Mohammedan state extending entirely across northern Asia from Manchuria to Sinkiang, thus completely severing all land connection and communication between China and Russia.

The Chinese, former rulers of these territories, are now in the position of spectators of a dramatic struggle between their two powerful neighbors for the domination of land that once owed allegiance to the Dragon throne in Peiping. Recently the Nanking government established a new consulate at Novo-Sibirsk, where the new Russian Turkish-Siberian railway extends southward from the Trans-Siberian and skirts China's western frontier, in order more closely to watch the show.

By occupying Manchuria in 1931 the Japanese obtained an initial advantage, but that advantage has now been largely offset by the soviet fortification of the Siberian border and, if one would believe the declarations of the soviet leaders, Japan's position in Manchuria will be made entirely untenable by the soviet's industrialization and development program in Siberia.

Soviets "Explain" Plans.

Whenever the Russians discuss with a foreigner, particularly an American, their plans for industrializing their far eastern territories they usually begin with a lecture on the advantages of socialistic over capitalistic development, but they finally end up with declarations about future plans that sound as though they had been copied from a prospectus issued by some western American chamber of commerce about a quarter of a century ago.

For example, they claim that 30,000,000 horse power will be developed from the streams running into Lake Baikal, chiefly the Selenga and the Angara. The writer observed one of these hydro-electrical developments in process of construction on the Uda, a tributary of the Selenga. It will supply power for a pulp mill, something greatly needed, in view of the serious shortage of newsprint and other types of paper which prevails all over the union.

It is claimed that soviet scientists have discovered iron resources in this area amounting to 150,000,000 tons and that there also are resources of coal, copper, lead, aluminum, and other metal needed in the industries. Gold there is in considerable abundance, the output this year exceeding $150,000,000, according to the soviets.

See Oil Possibility.

At Nerchinsk, on the railway, a considerable distance east of Baikal, the Reds claim to have discovered important silver-lead-zinc ores and also molybdenum and wolfram. It is claimed further that possibilities for oil development exist in the area southeast of Chita.

Lake Baikal is one of the world's most interesting bodies of fresh water. It is 380 miles long and from 20 to 45 miles wide and is said to exceed a mile in depth. In winter it is frozen so solidly that when the Trans-Siberian was built originally the tracks were laid across the ice in the winter season.

In view of the severity of the winters in these high altitudes, with streams frozen for several months, one wonders how the enthusiastic soviet engineers will solve the water power problem in the lond cold season. But, as stated, the proponents of socialist construction profess to be able to defy the elements in a manner that would give a "capitalist" engineer heart failure.

TUNNEL CAVEIN CUTS WATER MAIN IN TWO; PERILS 45 WORKERS

A street cave-in over a tunnel being built at Canalport avenue and Jefferson street yesterday morning broke a water main and for most of the day residents in an area of four blocks did without water. Forty-five workmen in the Sanitary district tunnel, under construction 17 feet below the surface, were imperiled by the inrush of water from the broken main.

Persons in the neighborhood reported that they heard a slight explosion about the time the cave-in occurred. Loran D. Gayton, city engineer, and Philip Harrington, sanitary engineer, said they believed the explosive sound was due to the breaking of the water feeder pipe and the gas main. A hole 20 feet square was made in Jefferson street, and basements along the street were flooded.

Alois Savar, 50 years old, 4433 South Kedzie avenue, a laborer in the tunnel, was slightly injured when a section of the roof of the tunnel fell on him. The accident occurred at the south end of the tunnel, which is being constructed by the Sanitary district to carry sewage from the north side to a reduction plant near Stickney. The damage was plared at $10,000.

RED CROSS GIVEN FISH BEARING ITS SYMBOL ON BACK

APPEALS; LOSES $30,000 SUICIDE INSURANCE SUIT

Mrs. Rosalie S. Cahn, 20 Cedar street, apparently lost yesterday her court fight to collect $30,000 insurance on the life of her husband, William M. Cahn, who killed himself. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a directed verdict against the widow recently returned in the District court of Judge William H. Holly.

Cahn ended his life in his office Jan. 12, 1932. His insurance contained a volding clause in the event the insured committed suicide within two years. The two year period expired five days after Cahn's suicide.

Mrs. Cahn rejected the insurance company's offer to repay $3,653.40, the amount her husband had paid in. She contended in her suit for the full amount that the two year clause should run from the date when her husband signed the application for the policy, which was nearly two weeks before the day the policy was issued.

WM. EVERITT OF OMAHA WHO GAVE AGE AT 111, DIES

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 12. (AP)—William Everitt, who claimed to be 111 years old, died tonight at Clearview home for Douglas county indigents.

Born in London, England, the English carpenter came to Douglas county 78 years ago.

Everitt first attracted attention to his advanced years when on his 95th birthday he climbed spryly up a ladder to put in a full day's work on a roof. At that time he was proud of being the oldest active carpenter in the state and that he had a son who was 75 years to the day younger than he.

FIND NEW WAY TO REFINE OIL

that will make Millions of Cars start Easier this Winter

Why Mobiloil Arctic—made by the Socony-Vacuum Clearosol Process—makes cold weather starting easier, lasts much longer, protects cars better against Winter.

Now is the time to prepare your Car for Winter...Change today to Mobiloil Arctic, the World's largest-selling Winter Oil

EXPERTS WARN US there's a hard Winter ahead. Wise car owners are making ready for it. But before you drain your Summer oil—read this story about a new method of refining petroleum.

Read it—because it will show you how to avoid a lot of hard starting this Winter.

It points the way to big savings on oil bills. It shows how you can cut the cost of repairs and engine upkeep.

Oil has to be refined to take out natural impurities that are found in every kind of crude.

How well oil is refined is much more important than what crude it comes from.

Now Socony-Vacuum has discovered a new and much better way to refine oil. We call it the Clearosol Process. By this new method we actually dissolve out the useless elements—just as soap and water dissolves dirt!

The results are really amazing.

Because tarry waste elements are gone, Winter starting is made much easier. You start faster with less drag on your battery, less strain on your engine.

Because this oil is cleaner—no gum, no sludge is deposited in your engine by Mobiloil Arctic.

This new Mobiloil Arctic flows readily at sub-zero temperatures—quickly protecting all parts of the engine. Yet it is so heat resistant that it stays on the job no matter how hot your engine gets.

With all this extra performance, you might expect a higher price. But the price has not been advanced a single cent. You pay no more than you have been paying for Mobiloil.

Now is the time to prepare your car for Winter driving. Go to the nearest Mobiloil dealer today—you'll know him by the Mobiloil sign with the red Gargoyle, or the Flying Red Horse. Drain off your Summer oil—and refill with clean, new Mobiloil Arctic. Act now—for better performance this Winter.

SOCONY-VACUUM OIL COMPANY, INC.

WHAT MOBILOIL ARCTIC DOES FOR YOU

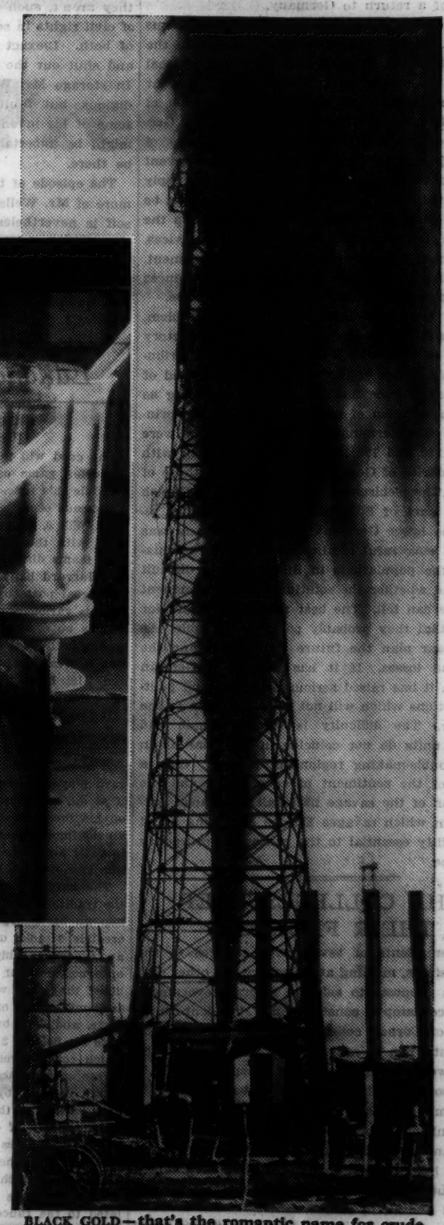
1 STARTS MUCH EASIER... which means faster starting as well as less drain on your battery, less strain on your starter and less wear and tear on your engine.

2 LASTS LONGER... by actual test gives as much as 25% greater mileage. You save up to 25% on oil purchases.

3 MUCH CLEANER... you'll have no gum, no sludge, no stuck rings or gummed valves from this oil.

4 FLOWS QUICKLY at low temperature—protecting your car against the danger of "dry" starts on cold mornings.

5 RESISTS HEAT... holds its body at high engine temperatures, giving full protection to wearing parts at all times.



BLACK GOLD—that's the romantic name for crude petroleum. But you could never use oil in this state. Good motor oil has to be made—it is not found.

THE SAAR PLEBISCITE.

On the 13th of next January the last of the plebiscites decreed by the peacemakers of Versailles will be held. Under the auspices of the league of nations and the direction of a commission which has been administering the affairs of the territory known as the Saar Basin, some 828,000 inhabitants, or so many of them as care to vote, will say whether they wish to remain under the government of the league, be united to France, or return to Germany.

The decision has not been thought to be in doubt until recent events in the German reich. The people of the Saar are with a negligible exception of German race and language. Sixty to seventy-five per cent are Roman Catholics and there is a large industrial element employed in the mines and factories. It is therefore suggested that policies of the Nazi régime may have weakened the natural desire of many of the people to be reunited to the German state at this time, but this probably is wishful thinking and the better opinion is confident that the plebiscite will be overwhelmingly in favor of a return to Germany.

If this occurs, some difficult economic problems will arise. The treaty of Versailles vested in the French state the property in the mines of coal and iron, especially coal, which make the Saar Basin the third richest coal producing region of Europe. In case of the return of the Saar to Germany, the treaty provides for the purchase of these properties by that state. In the same event important readjustments of custom and supply relations will have to be made, which need not be discussed here. The disposition of the Saar in the Versailles treaty was one of its least happy devices, and, like many other provisions of that document, will continue to produce unpleasant consequences in the economic and political affairs of Europe.

As for the immediate phase of the problem, the plebiscite, it is one of the least satisfactory examples of Woodrow Wilson's idealistic contributions to the peace of the world. It is the child of Wilson's ingenuous faith in democratic voting as a peaceful solution of racial conflicts on the principle of self-determination. Six plebiscites were held in 1920 and 1921, four of them dealing with the boundaries of Germany and two with those of Austria. The plebiscite which returned the Danish northern part of Schleswig to Denmark and retained the lower Germanic part to Germany was the most successful of these solutions. The mixture of the populations in Silesia was a difficult factor and whether the solution will be permanent only time can tell. The best that can be said for them is that they probably postponed trouble. As to the Saar plan the future must determine the gains and losses. If it has avoided a German irredenta it has raised serious economic and political questions which will not be voted down in the plebiscite. The difficulty is that economic and political units do not coincide in the Saar as in other trouble-making regions of Europe. Only a growth of the sentiment of coöperation and the mitigation of the savage nationalist or racial particularism which ravages Europe can bring about the stability essential to the peace and prosperity of Europe.

THE COLLEGES KEEP THEIR FREEDOM.

The presidents of seventy-five colleges in the central states, meeting at Galesburg the other day, tabled a proposal to ask the federal government to finance campus construction. President Burgstahler of Cornell college, Iowa, summed up the argument when he said that the acceptance of the money would mean the loss of independence.

And so it inevitably would, as banks and railroad companies have already discovered, as state and municipal governments are beginning to discover, and as individual borrowers are going to discover before long. It may look like easy money today, but the time must come when the borrower will find himself in chains.

There could be no greater threat to academic freedom in this country than a widespread indebtedness of colleges and universities to the government. The freedom of state-supported universities in this country is not always certain, as the experience a number of years ago when Bilbo sought to interfere in the management of the University of Mississippi showed, but at least a state university owes nothing to the government which supports it. A college indebted to the federal treasury would owe something and in time its note would come up for renewal. At such a time the presence on its faculty of professors who happened to be out of sympathy with the party in power could hardly fail to prove embarrassing, to put it mildly.

It is childish to pretend that the government under such circumstances would behave handsomely. Politicians as a rule are not distinguished for magnanimity when it doesn't pay. The German, Russian, and Italian universities were and are state supported. The choice was a deliberate one and was intended to preserve academic freedom against the influence of private interests. The faculties have discovered to their sorrow that he who pays the piper calls the tune.

THE DEFEAT OF THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

The defeat of the proposal to hold a constitutional convention and revise the organic law of Illinois was the consequence of a discriminating and wise decision by the voters, although they were urged in the cause of progress to authorize a rewriting with the argument that the present law is too old and therefore unsuitable to a modern age.

Advocates of change regret that special difficulties obstruct them. A majority of the votes cast on such a proposal is not sufficient. It must be a majority of the votes cast for certain candidates in the election. Formerly it was an objection that a little ballot presenting the issue would be ignored by many voters. It is said now that the proposition printed on the main ballot was overlooked.

The vote requirement is not unfair. It is just and reasonable. Constitutions are not to be put on and off as are the clothes of office. Placemen can be put in and put out and the injury bad ones may do, even if considerable, can be regarded as temporary. What is set in the organic law may affect the state for good or evil for generations.

It is reasonable that the people who vote to keep what they have, thinking it wise to do so rather than to accept the uncertainties of revision, should carry their point even if a substantial element of voters do not vote one way or the other for one reason or another. Such a referendum is intended rightly to ascertain the opinion of a majority of all the voters of the state. One who does not vote casts a vote against the proposal in effect. Otherwise a minority of the voters might commit the state.

MR. WELLS ON THE WELLS BRAIN.

Mr. H. G. Wells in his "Experiment in Autobiography" has aroused his critics and reviewers. He says that his brain was not a good brain to begin with, and that now it exhibits a "loose, rather inferior mental texture, inexact reception, bad storage, and uncertain accessibility." The proneness of the critic to disagree with the author serves Mr. Wells, who, if you care to, may be acquitted of the charge of drawing the fire where he wants it to hit. The critics respond to the self-disparagement by contending that he has an exceptional brain.

It requires a pretty fair brain to know what is wrong with it, and Mr. Wells might be allowed to have his way. Many lesser brains will be grateful to him for a description of what is the matter, not cerebral, with their own. "Inexact reception, bad storage, and uncertain accessibility." The lesser brains recognize these disabilities and could not select the one which proves most humiliating in a pinch.

Mr. Wells has given enough examples of inexact reception to prove his own case. It would account for many of the little surprises he has had along the way, finding that things are so for reasons they aren't, such as the astonishing nonexistence of civil rights in soviet Russia and the desirability of both. Inexact reception might let in a cause and shut out the effect, or the other way about. In storage Mr. Wells would be regarded as prodigious, but faulty reception might overbalance some of his inventories and then the accessibility might be uncertain. What he wanted might not be there.

The episode of the critics and reviewers making more of Mr. Wells than he wants to make of himself is nevertheless a pleasant one. So much of the reviewers' game is in opposite spirit, so much that Queensberry rules appear at times desirable; for instance, a clean break in the dichotomies and no hitting in the clichés.

Editorial of the Day

GRIDIRON NEW DEAL.
[The Baltimore Sun.]

The good will program arranged for the Harvard-Princeton game on Saturday went off according to schedule this time. The Harvard Lampoon, which on a previous occasion made the score stand Rancor 68, Good Will 0, was restrained by the device of a joint issue with the Princeton Tiger, and the players of both teams dined together after the game at one of the Harvard halls. Even the uprooting of the Harvard goal posts by partisans of the victorious Tiger team is variously described as "lacking in savagery" and as no concern of Princeton's, but only of "that type of individual who pushes over goal posts." There was a great deal of swapping of cheers and songs, and "let brotherly love resume" was the spirit of the afternoon of this notable reunion.

If this lasts it may actually be true that these two old American universities can meet in an athletic encounter without subsequent resort to malediction and abuse. The old Harvard theory that every Harvard player emerged from a combat with Princeton, if at all, with the imprint of a Princeton signet ring on his forehead ought soon to disappear along with all the implications which lay behind it. It is difficult to twist a man's ankle if you are to have dinner with him two or three hours later.

The hardest blow from all this good feeling is to the traditional football coach, whose racket it was to hop up his charges with incendiary and almost incredible attacks upon the manners, morals, courage, and sportsmanship of the opposing team. It was once common for men to take the field in the firm belief that they were crusaders in a war to rid the academic world of the assassins, brass knuckle experts, and bone breakers against whom they were to take the field at 2 p. m. That inspired hysteria, upon which coaches relied to make their players careless of the consequences and full of "fight," seemed most easily inspired by "pep talks" full of red blooded libel barked at the gaping players in short staccato sentences full of crisp hatred.

Undergraduates these days have so many other concerns than the welfare of the dear old team that the malice which used to distinguish intercollegiate athletic relations has largely disappeared, being isolated to the raucous sadism of the afternoon of the game. Football has survived fraternization and grown under it, and, if here and there a coach exists who is not above the old methods, the probability is that he is more likely than of old to encounter a healthy skepticism even among the guards and tackles, more and more of whom are willing to admit that football, even when Princeton and Harvard face each other, is just a game.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

A VERY NEAT little book by William S. Paley, "Radio as a Cultural Force," came to me the other day, and I had just started to read it when I heard a wildly excited radio announcer shriek, "Now Per-doo has the ball on Chicago's forty-three yard line—it's Per-doo's ball and——" I shut the radio right off and mailed the book, "Radio as a Cultural Force," to that announcer. But I wish I had it back. For Sunday I heard the preachers talk about the "consteetooshun" and what we must do to avoid plunging the country into "roon." And then somebody completely spoiled the day for me by talking about the "noosepapers." Oh well, culture after all is a slow growing vine.

AND THERE'S SOMETHING MUCH WORSE than roon or Per-doo or consteetooshun on the radio. It's baby talk. I expect almost any time now that baby talk on the radio will get to the point where some announcer is going to tell me: "Ooh! ooh! ooh! You big mansies oo dess listen now. If you wantie gettie nicey soapie rub in mean old whiskers when you shavie-shavie you dess listen and I tell you whattie sayie to good old druggie storie mansie, oo! oo! oo!" Oh no, it isn't that bad yet, but I can plainly see signs that it's on the way. And when that happens I don't care how much of a cultural force the radio may be; it goes flying right out the window into the back alley. Yessiree, big mansie is going to throwie itty.

TO ALL THE BRAVE.

Written after reading "Testament of Youth."

To all the brave
Who, on the fields of France or Italy,
Or on the floor of some deep rocking sea,
Sank to that all erasing sleep
Where only moon and stars the watches keep;
A dreamless grave!

Not yours to know
The bitter thoughts that leave a deepened scar
Through struggling years that follow after war,
When high flown phrases are the vogue no more,
And greed and hatred flourish as before.
And better so;

For sleep is sweet,
And hard to bear the half disdainful note
The new youth takes to the old wartime rote
Of "foolish idealism" and "hysteria's cry,"
Thinking himself so strong to pass them by;
To War's defeat.

Poor fools who weep,
The comrades who have shared your soldier's lot,
And "high white causes" that the world forgot,
Are blotted out. Then, all remembrance past,
Your youth, your fears, your hopes, will find, at last,
Oblivion's sleep.

KATE HAWORTH.

"I'VE BEEN A FOOL all my life," says Alfonso, once king of Spain, to an interviewer in Paris. Oh, Alfonso, don't moan about it. Aren't we all? Only most of us die without ever finding it out. You are certainly away ahead of most of the human race if you've discovered it before you lead the parade out to the cemetery.

SENATOR HOOEY LONG has done one good thing at least and we've got to give him credit for it. When a waiter in Baton Rouge brought him in what on the menu read "chicken dinner" Hooey looked at it a moment and then emitted a yell. "Hey, waiter," yelled Hooey, "when I was a boy all I got when we had chicken was neck and wings. Go back and see if that chicken had any legs." In this day and age we have forgotten that a chicken has legs and we meekly take the neck and wings. But look in the encyclopedia and you'll find that most chickens have legs. Yes, they have. But in the machine age when most of our food comes out of tin cans we let the cook and the waiters make us believe that all chickens are born legless. They are not and Hooey Long has proved it.

"I'VE JUST READ your article today about kidnapers and corn pones," writes H. W. S., "and as I am very fond of them I wish you'd tell me how they're made." They are made, H. W. S., by the desire of silly people to get a lot of money without working for it. Or if you meant corn pones—wait—I'm backing away from my old recipe and experimenting with a recipe of my own. I haven't got it all worked out yet, but when it's ready then I'll announce it to the whole cockeyed world.

ADOLPHE MENJOU, the Hollywood oracle, has issued his annual list of the ten best dressed women in these United States. It must be a hard thing to do. All the girls dress exactly alike and walk alike and paint their faces just the same way and I can't see that any one is in any way different from the others. Adolphe's ten, however, in their pictures, don't show all their teeth back to the backmost molars. Maybe that's why he picked 'em. There is certainly a difference there.

POETRY MEETING.

The nice little lady, the mouselike lady,
Chants in a quavering air.
(The muse walks out of the far back door, Tearing her silver hair.)

The talk goes on and the talk goes over
And somebody falls asleep,
The rest have sown poetic seed

RICHARD DUFFEY

AND SUPPOSE, just suppose, that somebody walks out in front at the next congress and says: "Is there a Republican in the house?" what would be a snappy comeback? My idea would be this, "Oh, so's your old man," or if that is too old then, "Oh, go there yourself." That's a trifle mildewed too, but there ought to be something snappy that might be said. Now, what is it? R. H. L.

ACIDOSIS.

FORTUNATELY for most of us the blood of our bodies will stand a considerable amount of abuse. In other words, the blood will permit us to assault the body with foods containing an excess of acid forming elements for quite some time without rebellion. When, however, the blood has endured our indiscretions beyond the limit of its patience it rises up in figurative wrath and tells us by means of positive symptoms that the time to stop has arrived.

Under normal conditions when the body is reasonably active and when the food intake is approximately correct there is a slow accumulation of acid in the blood. This the blood cares for without effort by combining the acid with the alkali present in the body, and the waste product, carbon dioxide, passes off from the lungs. The body also uses the kidneys to rid itself of excessive acid and the urine is usually much stronger in acid than the blood.

Whenever the normal balance has been upset for any appreciable length of time, however, the condition known as acidosis develops. This is nearly always due to faulty diet or to disease. Sometimes the body loses a large amount of alkali incident to diarrheal diseases. The same result occurs when patients purge themselves with strong cathartics.

In diabetes, acidosis is a common cause of death. This is because the diabetic patient is unable to oxidize fats beyond the acid stage. The body cannot oxidize fat completely except in the presence of carbohydrates. If the latter form of food is not present in sufficient amount, fat becomes a source of excess acid.

Children may develop acidosis rather quickly. A child may suddenly show symptoms of intestinal indigestion with vomiting, diarrhea, and slight fever. Through losses of alkali from the bowel and other digestive disturbances, acidosis may quickly result.

One of the chief causes of acidosis may be laid at the door of reducing diets that provide a poor balance of foods and that involve starvation. Because inadequate food is supplied, the individual attempts to burn his own fat in a situation in which the body cannot supply an adequate amount of alkali to neutralize the acid that is formed. Headache, intense fatigue, and nausea are the early signs of starvation acidosis.

It is difficult to recognize acidosis on a superficial examination, although a sweetish odor of the breath, if detected, will offer a definite clew. It is easy, however, to diagnose acidosis either by a blood examination or sometimes by means of a urinalysis.

A patient with acidosis demands prompt relief and measures should be taken to guard against a recurrence of the condition. Water drinking should be forced, particularly salt water—a teaspoonful of common salt dissolved in a pint of water. If organic acids are found in the urine, glucose, sugar, or corn syrup should be given—as much as half a teacupful in the course of an hour. Sometimes soda bicarbonate [pure baking soda] will serve to neutralize quickly the excessive acid. If the condition is not relieved by these substances given by mouth the physician will resort to rectal administration or to direct injection into a vein.

In all cases of diarrhea it is well to restore, as a precautionary measure, the alkali reserve of the body by administration of sodium bicarbonate or sodium chloride. Diarrhea not only depletes the body of needed alkalis, but because of the loss of water there may be a concentration in the blood of deleterious products. This means that both fluids and alkalis must be replaced by appropriate methods.

GASTRIC ULCER.

B. R. D. writes:

1. Is it possible for a man 55 years old with gastric ulcer to increase his weight?

2. What is the best fat producer for an underweight man?

REPLY.

1. Yes.

2. Milk, particularly if taken between meals and at bedtime.

HOW TO RELAX.

Reader writes: Could you tell your readers how to relax?

REPLY.

In order to relax physically one must relax mentally. Try to think of inconsequential things. Nothing depends on you. You are not going anywhere. You have nothing to do. No one wants you. You do not have to get up. You do not have to go downtown. You do not have to clean house or prepare a meal. You have no cares, no duties, no responsibilities, no fears. Nothing matters—nothing, nothing.

If you can get into this state of mind your muscles and nerves will relax.

PRENATAL DEFECT.

Mrs. A. W. writes: What could cause spina bifida? My first baby had it and died seventeen days after birth. Did I do something while I was pregnant to cause it? Will my next baby have the same defect?

REPLY.

This is a defect that occurs in the development of the embryo and is entirely beyond your control. It probably has no relation to anything that you may have done during pregnancy. Your next child will no doubt be entirely normal.

SALVAGE FEES.

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 9.—In all the articles in the papers relating to the catastrophe of the Morro Castle I have never seen one mention of the thing that may actually be back of Capt. Warm's delay in sending out his message for towing. I speak of the international marine salvage laws.

When an auto breaks down on the road the driver merely calls a garage, a wrecker or tow car is sent out, a set fee for his sized car is charged, depending on mileage to garage and condition of road. But not so the boat in distress. When a ship sends out the S O S for a tow the towing steamer, its company, and its crew all get a big slice in the salvage fee. Now this salvage fee is based not on the service rendered but on the value of the cargo, the value of the boat at the time it makes port.

Now if you were a newly made chief officer, with the responsibilities of that office on your shoulders and, within a few hours of that promotion, called on to cause your hiring company about a $5,000,000 loss by sending out a message for salvaging, you can bet your sweet life you would hesitate, too.

Why not change the international marine salvage laws to the basis of our road charges? That would put a stop to the hesitancy on the part of the captain in calling for help under circumstances similar to that of the Morro Castle fire. H. N. FLEXER.

MOVIE RELEASES.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 7.—In reply to your Mr. McCutcheon's question why Chicago gets movies after they have been shown around small towns, let me say that I received a letter from New York today saying, "We all went to Radio City to see 'Judge Priest.'"

So Chicago isn't the only large city which gets 'em late!

Tell Mr. McC., please, that in his younger days theater managers "tried 'em on the dog." They still do.

GEOFFREY O'HARA.

THE VOICE OF ARIZONA.

Scottsdale, Ariz., Nov. 5.—I have just finished reading your editorial of Nov. 1 and agree with you the Fair should be held over another year. There are hundreds of people in the southwest who are hoping to see A Century of Progress in 1935. MILDRED PRINGLE.

FROM BERWYN.

Berwyn, Ill., Nov. 9.—While your policy is blatancy, your spelling deplorable, and your general character obnoxious, I express my sincere thanks for your well directed article on misused CWA funds in Berwyn. We are few indeed who are concerned enough to undertake a general house cleaning here in Berwyn. But there is enough civic honor among us to resent the corrupt alliances of incompetent and venal politicians and to check the wave of gambling and vice that is sweeping over our city.

Give us aid and administer a purge from without in the form of more publicity directed at the disgraceful conditions that are fast depriving Berwyn of its reputation for decency.

PETER DEAN SWIFT.

FORECAST.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Will you please accept my belated thanks for the brief biographies of political candidates appearing before the election? A few of us really appreciated this opportunity to study and decide on the fitness of those seeking office, although the returns showed conclusively that the majority of voters used a single X, sweeping in the bad with the good. What a pity that this included the judiciary, and how inevitable that we shall rue the day when political tags were tied around the necks of our only safeguard.

A word on the national returns to the determined supporters of the New Deal: When all major industries are confiscated by the government [remember the gold]; when your dollar is worth—what?; when prices of all commodities in common use have soared; when you have to pay back the easy money through taxes; when you are thoroughly and hopelessly communized, I hope you have the decency not to howl your troubles to the press. You have been warned by the best editors in the country; by the most learned and experienced statesmen; by sound economists, and, if you have read, by history. You have asked for it, my Americans—now see if you can take it with courage, for take it you will. E. M. PORTER

WHY!

Bismarck, N. D., Nov. 7.—Why are you not good sports and stand up and make a motion to make the election unanimous? FRANK EDWARDS.

SCENE IN A CLOSED BANK.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—The other day I went to a west side bank which is closed but hopes to reopen if the state auditor will let up enough on his ironclad rules.

One of his good Democrats, who is learning to be a banker at the depositors' expense, was in a corner in this bank looking at a horse race form, with a big cigar in his mouth.

The other help were doing everything but working, probably wondering how long the bank would be closed so they could keep their jobs.

This bank asked us depositors a year ago to waive 60 per cent of deposits and subscribe to new stock at $125 a share. This was done and the RFC authorized a loan of over a million dollars to help them reopen. But not a dime has been paid yet.

I thought there was a law that stockholders in banks were liable to the depositor. It doesn't seem to mean anything to the state auditor. I wish he was up for election next week; maybe we would get 10 per cent of our money.

THE TRIBUNE might be radical in its political beliefs, but it is not always wrong. I am a Democrat, but I use my good sense when I judge articles about politics, and THE TRIBUNE is right in many of them in which it is thought to be wrong. Thanking you,

M. C. FRICKE.

BANK RECEIVERSHIP.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can a bank going into receivership in 1931 collect interest up to date on an unpaid straight note contracted with me six months before its closing? My deposits offset the note 36 per cent. 2. My conception is—the bank in receivership pays no interest on former deposits, so why should borrowers pay interest? I paid interest until the bank closed. M. R. S.

1. The receiver can collect the excess above your deposit and interest thereon.

2. The bank's ability to pay is measured by the extent of the assets. When they may be able to pay only a percentage of the principal, clearly they cannot pay interest. On the other hand, a solvent debtor owing money to the bank can be forced to pay in full. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Prompt construction of two giant airships, an aircraft carrier and a "flying deck" cruiser unlike any other ship now afloat was proposed privately today to the President's aviation commission.

The recommendations were delivered by a man generally regarded as an administration and a navy spokesman—Chairman Carl Vinson of the house naval affairs committee.

Without raising any war scare specters, Mr. Vinson nevertheless informed the committee that a number of things should be done to make the navy's aerial forces absolutely top notch.

Summary of Recommendations.

Briefly Chairman Vinson urged:

1. Construction of one airship to replace the Akron and another to take the place of the Los Angeles.

2. Building of a 15,000 ton aircraft carrier to replace the old and obsolete Langley.

3. Quick launching of a cruiser with a deck on which air planes may land and from which they may take off, so as to "determine definitly the naval value of this type of ship with a view to extending the usefulness of the cruiser class."

4. Provisions of funds for expansion of naval shore stations.

5. Continuance of the present 2,000 airplane program on a five to 7 year basis.

Opposes Air Unification.

6. That there be no unified air service and that the position of assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics be abolished.

7. That to the navy may be given complete responsibility for aerial sea defense of the coasts, instead of dividing it with the army as at present.

8. Modernization and expansion of the navy's flight training center at Pensacola, Fla.

9. Discontinuance of joint occupation by army and navy of the air bases at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and San Diego, Cal.

10. An increase in the number of naval academy appointments above the present three per member until treaty navy needs are fulfilled.

Establishment of a unified air force, Mr. Vinson said, would be a "grave error" and "will retard, if not nullify" naval aviation progress.

BRITAIN DENIES DEAL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald tonight officially denied the report from the United States suggesting "intense secret activity between the British and Japanese on the economic and political front" side by side with the London naval conversations. The report alleged the Japanese made Great Britain a secret offer of concessions regarding the Manchukuo and Japanese oil situations.

Continued Sneezes Peril Life of Michigan Woman

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. Pearl Wakefield, 26, of Battle Creek, is in a serious condition from continuous sneezing. Physicians have been unable to stop the sneezing which started Wednesday after a major operation.

NEGLECT OF COMMON CONSTIPATION IS A SERIOUS MATTER

Prevent This Condition with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

The first question your doctor asks is whether you are constipated or not. He knows that this condition may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. It is often the starting point of serious illness.

You can prevent and relieve common constipation so easily. Just eat a delicious cereal once a day. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this "cereal way" safer and far more pleasant than taking patent medicines—so often harmful? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If seriously ill, see your doctor—ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Lambs' Beauty Contest.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Nov. 12, 1934.

A NEW kind of experiment is to be started soon by THE TRIBUNE Auxiliary Experimental Farm. John Rawlings, in charge of sheep at the Wheaton farm, is going to try his hand in the exhibition field. Mr. Rawling's little secret, which he has been guarding ever since lambing time last spring, was revealed in the sheep barn yesterday when Bob Becker and I found him trimming the fleeces of lambs and sorting out the pick of the flock for show purposes this winter.

Mr. Rawlings is fitting eighty-six champion type lambs from which he will select 50 of the best to be exhibited in the carlot division at the International Live Stock exposition during the first week in December. This is to be the first auxiliary farm entry in the exposition. The lambs will compete with many other carloads of native lambs produced east of the Mississippi river.

This enterprise will not be Mr. Rawling's first time in the show ring. He knows the ways of the exhibitor and knows what to do to put the animals into shape.

In preparing the lambs for the show, he allowed them to run in the sheep barn at night from the middle of September until Nov. 1, having access to bluegrass pasture during the day. Since Nov. 1 they have been kept indoors day and night.

For several weeks the lambs have been fed shelled corn, oats, pea-sized bits of linseed oil meal, clover and alfalfa hay. Mr. Rawlings is feeding and trimming up more lambs than he will need for the show to make a final selection of 50 individuals of uniform finish and weight. Recently he has been feeding a small amount of molasses.

$8,000 REALIZED FROM FIRST FAIR DISPOSAL SALE

More than $8,000 was realized on the first sale of property belonging to the Fair, Commander H. D. Neuber, in charge of the series of disposal sales, said yesterday. Two thousand catalogs were sent out and two hundred bids received in return. Letters of award were being sent out yesterday and as soon as the full price is collected the purchases may be moved out.

The two largest bidders were the Cleveland Wrecking company of Cincinnati and the Barney M. Davis company of Denver. Contrary to expectations the bidding by souvenir hunters was almost entirely lacking, almost all bids coming from commercial firms. The second sales catalog will be available Thursday and bids will be opened Nov. 23. In this group are included general office furniture and equipment, fans, floor covering, showcases, and store fixtures.

GERMANY, POLAND AND RUSSIA PLAN HUGE GRAIN DEAL

Nazis Agree to Purchase Polish Rye.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 12.—Experts of three governments are cooperating with a group of Warsaw grain merchants in arranging the sale of 160,000 tons of Polish grain, chiefly rye, to Germany.

The plan, which was originated by Warsaw merchants, involves the Polish government's acceptance of German registered marks for the purpose, which is one of the largest grain deals ever negotiated in Poland. Poland has Germany's consent to deliver the registered marks to the government of soviet Russia, which will use them in meeting payments on large long term credits which the German government granted Russia.

Details of Deal Concluded.

Details of the deal already have been concluded in Berlin. Negotiations now are being conducted in Moscow as to how Russia intends to compensate Poland for the marks.

The soviet foreign trade monopoly is offering to pay the Poles partly in goods and partly in cash, but the Poles are asking the Russians to pay half the sum involved in British pounds in London and the remainder in Polish zlotles in Warsaw.

Grain Elevators Congested.

During the last grain year ending in August, Poland sold to the United States 8,000,000 bushels of grain worth $2,225,000. However, the government elevators are congested with that portion unsold from the 1933 harvest and the new crop. Consequently the government was forced to call a temporary halt in the purchasing of grain from peasants.

The local government authorities declare it is too early to announce details of the grain sale, but they report that if it is concluded the governments will be enabled to continue purchasing and storing the remainder of the present harvest.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In the story of the slaying of John Dillinger in THE TRIBUNE of July 23 it was reported that the Alexian Brothers hospital refused to let the police bring him in when it was found that he was dead and that the body was permitted to lie on the lawn in front of the hospital. The Alexian brothers say the story gave an erroneous impression of the hospital's policy, because they never refuse emergency treatment to any one brought there by the police. Dillinger's body was not removed from the patrol wagon at the hospital, but was taken directly to the county morgue.

An item in yesterday's TRIBUNE referred to Wallace Johnson, colored, 4016 Calumet avenue, as a Municipal court bailif who had been robbed of $275 and his star by a bandit at 41st street and Calumet avenue Saturday night. Johnson is no longer a bailif, hence had no star, and the robbery occurred at 40th street and Calumet avenue. The incident was reported by the City News bureau.

REPORT FOUR ADMIT $20,000 EXTORT PLOT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Confessions of four men arrested for the attempted extortion of $20,000 from Dr. Bert F. Bebee of St. Louis were announced today by the department of justice.

The department's St. Louis office, it was said, was notified Nov. 9 of the attempted extortion by a man who posed as a federal officer and threatened the doctor that unless he handed over $20,000 he would be reported to the government as an income tax evader.

After the accused would-be extortionist and an alleged accomplice, John Mullin and H. L. Shortal, were arrested, they declared that a "couple of employes of the internal revenue bureau had compiled the data with which to extort the money from Dr. Bebee."

Later two other men were taken in custody. They are Don Atterbury, who allegedly lent an automobile to Mullin and Shortal, and Julius Steane, whom the department of justice accused of being apparently the instigator of the plot.

You Demand Fresh Meat DEMAND FRESH ASPIRIN

No one has to tell you to be sure the meats you serve are absolutely fresh. But do you realize that it is just as important to demand this same absolute freshness in aspirin? For here's what the United States Pharmacopoeia says: "In dry air it is stable, but in contact with moisture it gradually decomposes. Preserve in well-closed containers."

To assure you of always getting aspirin that is fresh and completely effective, each package of St. Joseph is wrapped and sealed in moisture-proof Cellophane. That's why you can depend on fresh St. Joseph Aspirin to give faster, more complete relief from pain and colds.

2 KILLED, 3 HURT IN 3 CAR CRASH ON SOUTHWEST SIDE

Year's County Trafic Toll Rises to 1,078.

A second fatality in the three-automobile smashup early yesterday at Western avenue and 48th place occurred at noon when Harry Nosal, 18 years old, 5700 Laflin street, succumbed to injuries in the Southtown hospital. Herman Reedman, 12 years old, 645 West 62d street, died in St. Anthony's hospital shortly after the accident. Three other persons were injured.

One Driver Held by Police.

Jasinski was held by New City police, who said he had been drinking. His automobile, in which Nosal was a passenger, struck that of Reece and knocked it into a third machine driven by Robinson, police said. An inquest into the Reedman boy's death was opened yesterday but continued to Dec. 27 pending the outcome of the others' injuries.

The deaths of young Reedman and Nosal and five others increased the toll of trafic deaths in Cook county since Jan. 1 to 1,078. The other victims:

Rudolph Grams, 49 years old, bakery owner at 2645 West 63d street. Died in St. James hospital, Chicago Heights, of injuries suffered Sunday when his car plunged off Cicero avenue near 185th street and struck a tree.

Harry Hynes, 66 years old, 21 South Honoré street. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered Sunday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Peter Guraina, 1240 North Damen avenue, in front of 1941 Ogden avenue.

James Moran, 34 years old, 5904 South Kedzie avenue, a liquor salesman. Died at the South Town hospital of injuries incurred when his automobile was struck early yesterday morning by a Chicago Outer Belt Line train at 55th street crossing near Knox avenue.

Frank Altman, 18 years old, of Oak Lawn. Fatally injured yesterday evening while crossing the Southwest highway at 52d avenue, Oak Lawn. Robert Davidson of Orland Park, driver of the car, was charged with manslaughter and released on a $5,000 bond for the inquest today.

Claude Terre, 23 years old, of Calumet City, an employé of the Inland Steel company at Indiana Harbor. Killed when the automobile in which he was riding ran into the rear of a truck parked on Torrence avenue at 136th street. Jack Minsker, 20 years old, 6411 Forest avenue, Hammond, Ind., the driver of the car, was uninjured. Semaido Sidezma, 28 years old, 9030 Burley avenue, the truck driver, was held by the Lansing police for the inquest.

James Roosevelt Fails to Appear on Speed Charge

Nashua, N. H., Nov. 12.—(AP)—James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, did not apear in court today to answer to a speeding charge and the case was continued by Judge Frank B. Clancy. Thomas J. Leonard appeared for Roosevelt. Roosevelt was stopped Nov. 4 by a state policeman while en route to a political rally.

ONCE HAPSBURG FAVORITE BEAUTY DIES DESTITUTE

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Nov. 12.—One of the most famous beauties of the old Austro-Hungarian monarchy, Baroness Louise Poglodowska, has just died destitute in a Vienna hospital.

The baroness who was better known by her maiden name of Louise Robinson, was a friend of Archduke Otto, father of the late Emperor Karl. Otto feel in love with her when she was beginning her stage career at the age of 22 and established her in a large house in a Vienna suburb. No secret was made about the liaison and she frequently lived in his palace at Schoenau. Louise Robinson had two children by the union.

When Archduke Otto fell ill at an early age she was his devoted nurse and on his death Emperor Franz Josef sent her 200,000 gold crowns. Subsequently she married Baron Poglodowski of Poland and her money gradually disappeared at the international gambling casinos. Her son became an electrician and her daughter a governess in Wiesbaden, Germany. Some years ago both emigrated to America. Before she died the once famous Hapsburg favorite had to beg her night's lodging in the streets.

STOP KENTUCKY HILL SLICKERS' FRAUD ON CITIES

Postal inspectors, after months of investigation, have stopped practices by which Kentucky backwoodsmen in two years cheated mail order houses out of more than $200,000 worth of goods.

The fraudulent custom, as explained by the government agents, was for mountain families to order whatever they needed by mail from companies in Chicago and other cities. Payment was made by checks written on nonexistent banks, or on banks where they had no accounts, or by forged checks.

Investigators sent there by the companies left hurriedly, sped on their way by buckshot or businesslike squirrel guns. A year ago 8,000 complaints were turned over to the government. Ten months of investigation by federal inspectors resulted in warants for 219 of the worst offenders. Of these, 208 have been arrested, 181 convicted, and 27 await trial. In one day recently 137 prisoners were tried and convicted at London, Ky. Forty-four drew prison terms, and the rest, mostly women, were placed on probation.

ATTORNEY WHO HELPED UPSET 29 MILLION FINE DIES

New York, Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Moritz Rosenthal, prominent investment broker and famous as a lawyer who fought against the "trust busting" of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, died unexpectedly of a heart attack last night in his home at 927 Fifth avenue.

He was born in May, 1866, at Dixon, Ill. In 1890 he began his legal career before the bar in Chicago, where he lived for a number of years. He was a graduate of the University of Michigan. Three years after he was admitted to the bar his unusual ability as a lawyer obtained for him the position of assistant state's attorney for Cook county. Later he was an assistant United States district attorney.

At the end of three years as a public servant Mr. Rosenthal became a member of the firm of Moses, Rosenthal & Kennedy of Chicago. He remained with the firm for several years and during that time participated in winning one of the greatest legal battles of the period, a case on appeal in which he represented the Standard Oil company which had been fined $29,000,000 by Federal Judge Kenesaw Landis. In that period he also represented the Armours, Swifts, Morrises, and Cudahys in the celebrated "immunity bath" case.

He was admitted as a general partner in the investment brokerage firm of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. in New York in 1910.

Mr. Rosenthal is survived by his widow and two sons and a daughter.

Dr. Edwin B. Frost, 68 years old, blind astronomer and director emeritus of Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago, who is ill in Billings Memorial hospital, submitted to a minor operation over the week-end and was resting easily yesterday, hospital officials said.

Insurance Man Dies in Loop Department Store

Seized with a heart attack, Irvin B. Eberhard, 55 years old, 6256 North Artesian avenue, an insurance man, died on the seventh floor of the Davis store yesterday. Mr. Eberhard was a director of the Chicago Tennis association. He is survived by his widow and a daughter.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A royal wedding with all the trimmings is on the broadcast schedule for Thanksgiving day. CBS and NBC plan to open their airways at 4:45 o'clock the morning of Nov. 29 to report the marriage of Prince George of Great Britain and Princess Marina of Greece in its entirety. The broadcast is to begin with a description of the arrival of the parade of wedding guests and will trail the royal pair to the altar to catch even the voices of the bride and groom during the ceremony unless King George changes plans at the last minute. The entire program is expected to run nearly two hours.

Cesar Saerchinger, Columbia's European representative, started back for London the other day after spinning a few yarns about British radio. Those stories setting forth that the king always uses a gold microphone are not altogether correct, he said. There was a gold microphone for the king's first radio broadcast, but it immediately became a museum piece. And that has been the fate of all the other microphones the sovereign has used.

King George never lets any one see the manuscripts for his radio addresses before the broadcast, Saerchinger said. At BBC studios they say the king has a superstition that a royal speech will never be delivered if any one sees it beforehand.

Another Saerchinger story concerns Sir James Barrie, who loathes radio. At a public ceremony a microphone was placed before him and he was asked to say "just a word or two." Sir James looked squarely at the microphone, coughed loudly, and, turning away, said: "I hope that will be satisfactory."

Senator Borah will discuss the administration of federal relief in a radio address at 9:30 next Monday evening over NBC. The Idaho senator has charged that in some western towns the cost of distributing relief has reached more than 50 per cent of the funds allotted and that as a result "millions never reach those who need it." The relief administration will have its inning on Wednesday evening at the same hour.

BANISHED U. OF C. UNION WILL MEET UNDER NEW NAME

The University of Chicago revoked the temporary charter of the Student Union Against Fascism and War last Friday, but the action apparently has not prevented its members from arranging a meeting on the campus.

The National Student league and the Socialist club of the university have been granted permission to meet tomorrow noon in the Harper library. The memberships of these radical groups and that of the banished union are virtually identical, so the disfranchised group will meet tomorrow under two other names.

Chief among the purposes of tomorrow's meeting is to protest the action of Acting Dean William E. Scott in canceling the union's charter because its members met on the campus after Scott had forbidden them to do so. The group later met in the Chicago Theological seminary and adopted protest resolutions, which are to be submitted tomorrow.

PIONEER WOMAN DIES, 89; BORN IN COVERED WAGON

Mrs. Melissa J. Buckman, 89 years old, an Illinois pioneer in her own right, died yesterday at her home, 1034 Linden avenue, Wilmette. She was the widow of Royal M. Buckman, insurance man, and one of those who adjusted the losses in the Chicago fire of 1871. Mrs. Buckman is survived by six children, nine grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

She was born near Portland, Ill., in Whiteside county, on Jan. 15, 1845, as her parents were pushing into Illinois by ox train on their long journey from Scotland. Her father was a Methodist circuit rider between Sterling and Joliet. Mrs. Buckman often told her own children how, when she was a girl, the Indians used to come to their log house near Prophetstown to barter or to steal.

Mrs. Buckman removed to Chicago in 1874 and became active in the early days of Chicago's club life. She was a member also of the Women's club of Wilmette, where she liver for 38 years.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 1118 Greenleaf avenue, Wilmette, with burial at Rosehill cemetery.

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]
Mrs. Maurice Patrick Geraghty.

Mrs. Geraghty Selects Group for Reinhardt

Mrs. Maurice Patrick Geraghty [Helen Tieken], who has been appointed general assistant to Max Reinhardt, is well qualified to help this great German impresario, for she wrote her master's thesis at the University of Chicago on him and his influence on the stage of today, and in 1929 she studied back stage in his theaters in Salzburg, Berlin, and Vienna.

Her first job as Dr. Reinhardt's assistant was to secure two dozen tall, lovely society girls to impersonate court ladies in one of the scenes of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which is to be given its première here Thursday night as a benefit for the Passavant Memorial hospital.

They rehersed for the first time yesterday under the direction of Fred Niblo, supervising director, who with 82 members of the California cast arrived yesterday morning from the west.

Dr. Reinhardt and the seven others who will come from the west to take part are arriving this morning. The chorus of about 30—never seen and not heard except as a sort of humming accompaniment to the orchestra—and 100 others who will take part will be secured here.

Dr. Reinhardt produced "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in California at the invitation of the California Festival association, which now is trying to establish a permanent "festspiel" similar to those held each year in Salzburg and other European cities. After the Chicago engagement, which will last two weeks, the production will go on a tour of the middle west and east.

The première Thursday night will be a gala affair with every box and every main floor seat occupied by socialites.

Junior League President Quits; to Tour World

Mrs. Owings Succeeded by Mrs. Wolfe.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WITH an around the world trip in the offing, Mrs. Nathaniel A. Owings tendered her resignation yesterday as president of the Chicago Junior league. Accepted with regret by the board of directors, Mrs. Alfred E. Wolfe, the former Vera Stock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock, who is the first vice president, was automatically promoted to the presidency.

The resignation of Mrs. Owings also means that Miss Margot Atkin, a board member, will become the new first vice president. Miss Atkin was president of the league for two years prior to Mrs. Owings' election last spring.

The vacation trip that awaits Mr. and Mrs. Owings is a climax to Mr. Owings' service as one of the managers of A Century of Progress. Mr. Owings came to Chicago in 1930 to accept a position with the World's Fair and it was in 1931 that he married Emily Otis.

Mr. and Mrs. Owings will leave Chicago on the 27th to sail from Vancouver, B. C., on Dec. 1 on the Empress of Russia. Their first port of call will be Honolulu and then they will continue to the orient, India, Egypt, thence into Europe, over to England, and home. Their itinerary is elastic enough, however, to allow for any number of side trips that they may desire. They will change ships a number of times and will also cover many miles by airplane. They plan to return to Chicago about the end of April.

Mr. Owings' sister and brother-in-law, the Louis Skidmores, have indefinite plans for meeting Mr. and Mrs. Owings in Egypt and continuing the trip with them. Mr. Skidmore has also been associated with A Century of Progress.

Miss Wheeler Sets Earlier Wedding Date.

Miss Winifred Wheeler and Henry L. McIntyre will be married a day sooner than the date announced a few months ago. They have advanced the wedding to Friday, Dec. 21, but the other plans remain the same. The ceremony will take place at 5 o'clock in St. Chrysostom's church and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler, on Astor street.

Miss Wheeler's cousin, Miss Virginia Waller, will be her maid of honor, and the bridesmaids include Miss Jean Stevens, Miss Louise Brewer, Miss Anne Small, Miss Betty Smith, Miss Isabel Gordon, and Miss Mary Jean Curtis of Grand Rapids, who will be married to Frank E. Pierce Jr. on either New Year's eve or New Year's day.

Arthur Caffee of St. Louis, where Mr. McIntyre's parents, the Joseph S. McIntyres, live, will be the best man. Mr. Caffee and Mr. McIntyre were roommates at Princeton, and the former has many friends here. Among the ushers will be Robert T. Wheeler, the bride's brother; Hugh McWilliams, Theodore S. Chapman, and Frank Hammett of New York, originally from St. Louis.

Miss Waller, Miss Gordon, and Mr. McWilliams are among those planning parties for Miss Wheeler and her fiancé. Mr. McIntyre and his bride will make their home in Chicago upon their return from a wedding trip, for he is studying law here.

Social Register for 1935 Issued.

The 1935 Social Register for Chicago made its appearance yesterday, a slim little black book giving names, addresses, family groupings, club affiliations, marital status, etc., of those whose names are news in society columns.

Marriages have increased materially, 174 persons being listed as married, against 154 last year. At least one who is listed as married won't be married until the 17th of this month, however, for Georgiana MacArthur's marriage to Henry B. Gardner Jr. of Providence, R. I., won't take place until then.

Deaths are slightly higher than last year, 79 to 75, but the number still is much less than the 97 in the 1933 issue. Girls from 12 to 17 and young men from 14 to 20 are listed as juniors.

Invitations will be in the mail today for what is certain to be one of the outstanding social and musical affairs of the winter, a musical and tea for the Friends of Opera. It is to be given on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 22, at 4 o'clock in the ballroom of the Drake hotel.

Mrs. Charles H. Swift, program chairman, is arranging to have several of the artists of the Chicago

Twin Sweaters Warm You at Cold Grid Game

BY RHEA SEEGER.

New knits! Slick sweaters made with vertical ribbed effects and the new raglan long sleeves and turtle necks. The entire sweater makes its wearer ready for the coldest football game when worn under another sweater jacket of contrasting or harmonizing color. The outer cover or twin fits snugly and smartly around the waist because of the deep rows of narrow ribs that form a belt. Pockets are something that are getting better breakers on the sweaters. Some of them have two good sized affairs now instead of the former patches that seemed rather useless because they were so small.

Dress parade sweaters are good looking, especially the creamy white ones that have been imported. They are miracles of lacework with cobweb designs and meshes that would fool a lace collector. Necklines are far more flattering than the usual models and even though they are priced for a liberal clothes allowance they are worth every penny you pay for them. The yarn or wool used in these lovely numbers is just about the softest, finest stuff ever pressed between your fingers.

Striking color combines are featured in the newest "twins," a coal black sweater jacket over a canary yellow turtle neck, jade green under a bright blue, a sapphire blue under a cherry red, apple green with gold and the always faithful dramatics of white with black. Light gray with gold or bright yellow is another grand duet, while the big stripes that are wider and bolder circumspectly hide more than half their splendor under the outer twin of one solid color. Fuzzy twins in beige are knockout. This beige tone is a good healthy caramel shade, not the anemic, pallid tan of other seasons.

Match your beige twins to beige hose, and wear a black tailored skirt, with black suede sports shoes, and you have a knockout outfit to wear under your camel's hair topcoat.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. Frank N. Doubleday has closed Effendi hill, her country home on the West Shore drive, at Oyster Bay, and has returned to New York for the winter. The Doubleday home near Hog Island in Nassau, Bahama Islands, has been sold to Harry Denell of Bushkill, Pa. Mr. Doubleday died last winter in Florida.

Pitkin's Handwriting Reflects Sociable Personality of Author

BY MURIEL STAFFORD.

Are you sociable? According to Webster's I am now referring to people who are "disposed to associate and converse with others; companionable; affable." Sounds like a long description of such an easily recognized quality, but it's a very important quality, all things considered.

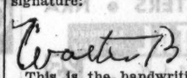
MISS STAFFORD.

It is not at all difficult to recognize sociable tendencies in a handwriting. Most people have a few of them. If there are none at all the writer is happier alone than with a companion.

Sociable people like others. They are therefore likable. Being warm hearted and unaffected as they usually are, you may expect the writing to lean forward rather than backward. They have frank and open natures very often with a tendency to be chatty. This last tendency will be reflected in the letters a, o, d, and g. The more outspoken and talkative a writer is, the wider open you will find these letters.

Some folks talk fluently without telling any of their personal business. Their letters are usually well closed, though they may be sociable enough if other signs agree.

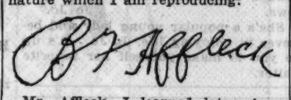
Dr. Walter B. Pitkin, author of "Life Begins at Forty" and other books, spoke in Chicago last Saturday. I analyzed his handwriting after his interesting lecture. The handwriting reflects reserve and much sociability, as you can see in the following signature:



This is the handwriting of a professor, lecturer, and well known writer with a warm hearted, sociable personality. He likes people so much that they are drawn to him by his charming personality as much as by his extraordinary vision and wide knowledge.

All the letters are very large and they flow generously toward the right. The capital "W" begins in a wavy fashion that indicates a lover of fun. The "n" in Pitkin is made somewhat like a "u". Those who make w-shaped m's and u-shaped n's are always good mixers, especially if the handwriting is exceptionally large as it is in this case. At one time, Dr. Pitkin told me, his writing was very small. We change and so does our handwriting, as I shall explain later.

A man who had listened to my analysis of Dr. Pitkin's handwriting introduced himself and submitted his signature which I am reproducing:



Mr. Affleck, I learned later, is a prominent Chicago business man. His handwriting, like that of Dr. Pitkin, has many sociable qualities.

Tomorrow I'm going to pick the handwriting of some one of the many persons in Chicago who have already sent for their charts. I'll reveal more of the secrets of handwriting analysis.

IT was during that difficult moment before dinner—cette mauvaise quart d'heure—which most hosts fill by offering another old-fashioned. The guest on this occasion did not drink and his host occupied the time by showing him his dry-points and silver-points. The guest looked at them without comment until, gazing at a particularly lovely Sainton silver-point, he murmured to his host:

"I know more about blue-points."

THE question of whether Giuseppe Bentonelli, the American who makes his debut with the Chicago Grand Opera company in "Tosca" tonight, is wiser to sing under the name in which he has sung in Europe the last ten years or his own name, Joseph Benton, has been much discussed. At a recent discussion the fact that Edward Johnson found it necessary to sing in Europe as Eduardo Giovanni, and that John McCormack sang in Italy as Giovanni Foli was stressed. In Italy, where Bentonelli appeared at La Scala, it was said that another name than Benton was of vital importance, as the Italians would think the name was French, and French singers are not liked in Italy. Hissed off the stage, in fact. Anyhow, if he goes on the radio for a series of broadcasts it is likely that he will drop the foreign appendages to his name and again become Joseph Benton. The only other thing of interest I have to report about the new singer is that if he were not a successful singer he undoubtedly could make a success as a comedian. He is said to be an excellent mime, to be able to imitate animals extraordinarily well, and to whistle in three different notes at the same time.

SPEAKING of names brings to mind that the janitor at a north side real estate office is named Jesse James and one of the salesmen is Daniel Boone. A house-hunter in the office the other day looked skeptically at the salesman as if he doubted the state of his wits, when he heard him say over the office telephone:

WORD fancier's note. [Politics incidental.] "Has it ever occurred to you," queries a letter-writer, "that the last two and present President of the United States have the letters "oo" for the second and third letters of their surname? Under Coolidge, didn't we Coo as the contented dove? Under Hoover, didn't every one ask Hoo he was for, labor or capital, Europe or U. S.? I wonder if we will Roo the day we elected Roosevelt."

WE hasten to report a little street scene observed by Elmer T. Stevens, a gentleman with the highest reputation for truth and integrity. The other evening as he walked south on Michigan avenue between Madison and Monroe streets he observed a large man hurrying north. As the two drew abreast the big man—to the astonishment of all spectators, resoundingly banged his right fist into his left hand and said in a loud voice:

"What the hell! Quit worrying." That was all. Each of the spectators hurried on to their separate destinations.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

What happened at the Civic Opera house Saturday night seems not to classify as an accident. Another performance followed last night which would seem to indicate that it is going to be a habit. The Chicago Grand Opera company put on "Andrea Chenier," and it was by a considerable margin the best performance of the work that one persistent operagoer has ever witnessed.

It was not merely that it had a new cast as far as Chicago is concerned, though that was a fact. One welcomes the debutante, Franca Somigli, who one is told, answers to the name of Marion Clark in other than operatic relations. She is going to be an important person in American opera before this brief season is over unless all indications gained from a first performance are entirely wrong, and one does not believe they are.

One gives another warm welcome to Giovanni Martinelli, less because of his several years of fine artistic service at Ravinia, but because last night he was a younger, more ardent, more thrilling artist than he had ever been before. One remembers that Carlo Morelli was a fine artist last year and a better one last night. One applauds the policy of the company of putting on young artists in rather important roles, with a special memory of the excellent performances by Miss Barova and Miss Ornstein.

But these are details. What is especially remembered is that the entire company, the long cast of principals, the chorus, the dancers, the orchestra, worked accurately and efficiently to convert themselves all into a smooth ensemble, and succeeded in the effort. I have never seen groups appear to better advantage than they did in the first and second acts of this opera. They were not merely incidents in the course of a rather spectacular performance. They became a real part of a story of the French revolution, a story of bloody cruelty, crafty spying, and the fidelity that passes all political changes.

But, still touching on details, it is necessary to speak of Miss Somigli. She is a personality. Good looking, though not too good looking, she carries herself like an assured artist, and she has a lovely soprano voice with a ping in it. I want to hear much more of her.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

It's a magnifying mirror and it tells all. It's a woman's best friend when she performs the delicate and all important task of making up her face.

For the good of your complexion and of your makeup get yourself a magnifying mirror. If you've had an idea that they were too expensive, look over the huge stock of them in one of the loop stores. They've got tons of them in a variety of finishes—and prices. Some of the prettiest have enameled backs and slender crystal handles and the good news on the price tag will cheer your heart.

Most of us think of such mirrors as things we'd like to have, but we just don't get around to owning one. It's probably been because they haven't been what you'd called inexpensive, but these really are.

The magnifying mirror, like the traditional author's wife, is your best friend and your severest critic. The tiniest flaws stand out like chains of mountains and sometimes the view in the looking glass is so disheartening you want to toss it out the window and follow it with your own frail frame. But it's always well to know the worst. Then you can do something about it.

Skin troubles won't sneak up on you if you consult a magnifying mirror every day. You can detect the little lines almost before they arrive and, armed with knowledge, see that they don't develop into deep wrinkles. You'll know the pore situation, too, and you can keep it well under control if you apply first aid.

But perhaps the thing about a magnifying mirror that will have the greatest appeal to you is this: With it you can do a really crackerjack makeup job. Your lipstick will follow the line of your lips exactly or, if you do a little art work where nature held out on you, you can do it properly. The cupid's bow of your own design won't come out cockeyed. You'll do better with mascara and eye shadow, too, if you work with a good mirror, and you can find the first tiny hairs that forecast a messy eyebrow state and yank them on the instant.

Great things—these mirrors. You should have one.

Furniture and Art Auction Opens Today in Palmer Mansion

A unique auction of valuable furniture and interior decoration pieces will be held in the old Potter Palmer mansion on Lake Shore drive beginning at 2 o'clock today, with society conducting the sales and the proceeds going to charity. In the collection of more than a thousand pieces are articles from every period, almost every country, and representations of every type of decoration.

For three days afternoon and evening auctions will be held, following a preview yesterday. An admission of $1 is charged with the ticket stub serving as a $1 credit on the first purchase. Several hundred persons yesterday paid a dollar admission to look through the collection.

The pieces were collected from the homes of prominent Chicagoans and from homes in several eastern cities.

Persons contributing pieces will receive 25 per cent of the sales price, with the balance being divided equally between the St. Luke's hospital and the Children's Memorial hospital.

The Forgotten Honeymoon

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Rhoda Cornboise's engagement to Major Ralph Stornack, of apparent position and wealth, is arranged by her ambitious mother. Rhoda is in love with Colin Briarley, who is in jail for the murder of a Canadian solicitor in a London night club. Colin was alone at the table with the Canadian when the lights went out and he was struck in the throat by a table knife. Chief witness against Colin was Major Stornack, who was the solicitor's host. Rhoda met Stornack when he called to express his regret for the testimony he had to give at her lover's trial. Jack Caermaen, an old pal of Colin's, is his warder. He plots Colin's escape by taking Colin's place as prisoner, allowing Colin to use his week's vacation. Nobody looks closely at prisoners, he explains, and warders are frequently changed. Rhoda elopes with Colin on the eve of her marriage to Stornack. They spend a brief honeymoon in Wales. Then Colin returns to prison, Rhoda returns home and feigns a lapse of memory. Her mother besieges her to marry Stornack, who is still willing. He and his confederates know she has inherited a fortune of a Canadian relative. The Canadian solicitor had come to London to tell her of it. Stornack calls on Caermaen and they quarrel. Jack suspects Stornack of the crime for which Colin was convicted. Rhoda, who is expecting to become a mother, leaves home and stays with friends of Caermaen's in London. Her mother follows with a court order placing Rhoda under her charge. She intends to take Rhoda to France. Caermaen and his solicitor, Jarroman, plan to investigate Stornack.

INSTALMENT XX.

AN INVESTIGATION STARTED.

Jarroman looked at his friend as if he doubted his sanity.

"The man who jumped over my table and landed on his feet the other side," continued Caermaen, emphasizing every word, "was the man who was the chief witness against Colin. The man who tried—and is still trying—to marry Rhoda Cornboise. In short, the man was none other than the ornamental bounder who calls himself Maj. Stornack. Anything doing, Fred?"

"Not on what you've given me so far!" said the solicitor.

"How many men can jump slap over a table 2 foot 9 inches broad without a run?"

"Yes, I know, but ——"

"The treasury man himself said it was absurd—and I've seen it done."

"But you didn't have any independent witnesses of it. And when we tell our yarn at Scotland Yard, suppose Stornack denies that he can jump over tables? Now don't fly into a passion. It's part of my job to look on the gloomy side of things. If we haven't got everything we've at least got something. What would this fellow's motive be in murdering Simpson?"

"What was Colin's supposed motive? Nothing! They didn't bother about a motive! Isn't it a bit of a coincidence that the man who can do this extraordinary circus trick is the man who is trying to marry Colin's girl."

"It's good enough for me—as Colin's friend. I am ready to start work with a positive conviction that this fellow Stornack killed Simpson. But there'll be a devil of a lot of work. I shall have to go over the witnesses again—carefully and in a roundabout way—and find out whether Stornack knew Simpson. A motive may not be legally necessary, but it helps. I'll look up his record, find out all I can about him and let you know. Have you said anything to Miss Cornboise?"

"No. By the way, she's not going to marry Stornack. You can take that as quite settled." It was as near as he wished to go for the present, for he had to remember that his friend was an officer of the law. "You may take it that Miss Cornboise believes absolutely in Colin's innocence."

"I know what's in your mind."

"Good! She may be useful. Is Stornack still hanging round her?"

"Well—I believe he was until recently ——"

"She'd be of more use to us than anybody," said the solicitor. "Get her to set him talking about himself. Any woman can do that."

"No use for the present," Caermaen interrupted gloomily. "The details don't matter but she won't be able to help us for some time."

The solicitor scowled and lit a cigaret. For a time he was silent and then: "How is Colin?" he asked.

"Making the best of it. Living on his nerves, of course. He won't last there very long if we can't get him out."

"We'll try. And I'm not saying there isn't hope. But it's a pity Miss Cornboise can't help us. . . . By the way, has she any money?"

"No . . . No, I'm sure she hasn't."

"Was he keen on Miss Cornboise before the trial?"

"No. They met after it was all over."

"Then it's probably just a coincidence that he fell in love with her." The solicitor thought it over. "But suppose—just suppose—it was not a coincidence. Then we are committed to the theory that Stornack murdered Simpson as a preliminary step in his plan to marry Miss Cornboise—whom, at that time, he had not even spoken to. Rather gibberish, isn't it!"

"Wait a minute!" said Caermaen. "Simpson was a solicitor and ——"

"I know what's in your mind. Suppose Simpson knew that some money was to come to Miss Cornboise? And that no one else knew it except Stornack?"

"Brilliant, old man! By Jove, I believe you've got it!"

"And if I have, what are we going to do with it? Simpson came from Canada. We've got to prove Stornack knew him. We've got to prove that there was money to come to Miss Cornboise. And prove that Stornack knew it." Jarroman shook his head. "If Stornack did do it, I think he committed the perfect murder. No one can ever prove it against him."

But Caermaen refused to believe that the position was hopeless.

"I have a bit of spare cash," he said. "I'll split the cost with you of making inquiries in Canada—and digging up the Cornboise history to see if there's any one who could have died in Canada and left Miss Cornboise some money."

"Right you are, Jack! But it'll take time."

It took Mrs. Cornboise ten days to make her arrangements for their sojourn in France. In that time Rhoda succeeded in writing only one letter to Colin.

The use of invisible ink was in itself simple enough. It merely meant procuring a clean nib and some lemon juice. As soon as the lemon juice dried it became invisible until the paper was heated. It was a perfectly safe device provided no one suspected that the letter had been so treated. But so close was the confinement in which her mother kept her that this simple operation became most difficult and hazardous.

She was driven to pretending that she liked to drink lemon juice in the morning before breakfast—and she would take the juice with her into the bathroom and there write part of her letter to Colin. She had to tell Colin not to write to her until she had found a safe means of receiving letters.

This enormous complication in the mere act of writing to her husband brought home to her the extent of her mother's victory.

Mrs. Cornboise was not afraid of her escaping. For Rhoda well knew that the police could then be called upon to find her. Her mother had other fears—chief of which was Rhoda's writing or telephoning. For her own reasons she had determined to keep her daughter's impending motherhood a secret.

At length the journey to Paris became an almost welcome break in the monotony. On the whole Rhoda was glad to go, for she had got over her first shrinking from the idea of her child being born on foreign soil. After all, she reflected, no place could be home without Colin.

They spent one night in a hotel in Paris and then went to L'Amerville, a small town some twenty miles outside the capital. This time they did not go to a hotel. For Mrs. Cornboise had made arrangements with a respectable but hard up family who were glad to receive them.

The family consisted of a middle aged couple, named Gouget, and their young grown up daughter, Estelle. The house stood in its own garden with a little river running at the foot of it and a wood just beyond. Rhoda found her surroundings pleasant enough.

To her own surprise she took an immediate liking to the place and to the Gouget family. For one thing, she now had her own room and her mother no longer watched her closely, for it now seemed unnecessary.

Rhoda made the best of it from the first. She had noticed with amusement that her mother could speak practically no French, although she had always contrived to imply that she was a fluent linguist. Rhoda's school French was actually of much more practical use. Both the elder Gougets had spent some time in England and could speak English fluently. But that had been before their daughter was born.

Von Sternberg Bars Others as He Makes Film

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Joe Von Sternberg, now directing Marlene Dietrich in "Caprice Espagnole," has so much confidence in himself as an all-around film technician and such distrust of others [or is it the instinct for economy?] that he permits only one other member of the camera crew on the set with him for most of his shots. This person is the youthful assistant who holds up the slate before the camera at the start of each "take" to photograph the take number. Von does his own camera grinding. He was in the camera corps in the world war.

Jack Oakie has bought a diamond ring, but nobody would know it. After he made the purchase he became afraid he would lose the ring or be robbed, so he keeps it in the watch pocket of his trousers. But to prevent the ring from being lost, he had a tailor sew up the watchpocket. Oakie goes about Hollywood asking his friends to feel his watchpocket and saying: "It's a ring, a big one; you ought to see it." But no one does.

Bill Bow, Clara's cousin, is prop man with Director Wesley Ruggles on Claudette Colbert's "Gilded Lily" at Paramount. Ray Milland and Dean Jaggers, the two leading men with Claudette, are both camera newcomers. Jaggers was a saxophone player in the Warner theater prolog band a year or two ago and went to New York and got some stage experience.

Polly Ballard, playing the heroine in the Paramount studio's little theater stage show, "Run, Hero, Run," at Music Box theater, is Bing Crosby's secretary. Jimmie Moore, the director of the show, is in the camera department.

In order to get a group of extras who didn't look too spruce and who had unkempt hair, Metro studio had to go down town to Los Angeles' Plaza park because the regular male extras couldn't fill the requirement. Twelve extras were required for the desired scene in "The Winning Ticket." They were supposed to sit in barber chairs and have their hair cut. Leo Carrillo was one of the barbers. Before the Plaza gang would work they held out for additional compensation on the grounds the studio should pay them for the quantity of hair cut off. They got the extra dough.

One of the Los Angeles newspapers published a photograph of Greta Garbo throwing her cloak over her head while she ran down a back alley after a grand opera performance in order to avoid having her photograph taken informally. The day after the photo was published a young actress called up from Pasadena community playhouse and claimed the photo was of her and not of Garbo and wanted something done about it. "My dear young woman," said the editor at the other end of the line, "do you wish to insist to me that you really wear that size shoe?" The young lady hung up.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Make Yourself Favored Suitor.

"Dear Miss Blake: When I have a date with my girl she is always there, but when we have no date she is always with three or four other fellows. Jo Jo."

She's a popular young lady and believes in enjoying life, Jo Jo. It's up to you to make yourself her favorite suitor.

Flexibility of Hips Is Key to Graceful Walk

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Here's a test for you, girls! For men, too, if they're interested!

Can you turn the hips without turning your shoulders? Can you turn your shoulders without turning your hips?

If you can, you're bound to be a better looking, more graceful looking object on your feet than if you can't. Also, you are a person of more endurance on a hiking or shopping expedition or on any exhibition of pedestrianism.

I see boys hot footing it around the park reservoir evenings, or down some highway on which they can make speed, going through bodily contortions that are comic with the extreme turning of their hips. They get along at a right smart pace, however. They're usually out in sweaters and trunks and track shoes. It's some sort of athletic workout they're following. An occasional girl or two will be seen in the procession of athletic walkers. Anyway, they're all out working for that hip flexibility by which weak men may be made strong, and graceless, undisciplined female bodies may be made to respond better to the charms that offer grace of movement.

S. Arthur Devan, a noted authority on physical development, stresses this hip flexibility and that of the shoulder as the beginning of all good walking. If you become conscious about the hips in connection with walking, you will observe how many people walk with a backward and forward alternate motion of each hip. You will note how some don't seem to use the hips at all, walking from the knees, which breeds a peculiar ugliness of gait.

See, now, if you can turn your hips without turning your shoulders. No? Then you'd better begin trying to do it. You can practice when you're sitting down or standing up simply by keeping the shoulders adamant while you turn the hips. Then trying to keep the shoulders steady [with arms stretched horizontally] while hips turn.

Always Dead Tired?

How sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? Chances are you're poisoned by clogged bowels or constipation. Take this famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 0 years—Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients. They act easily upon the bowels, help free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination.

Rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy make a success of life. Take one or two Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets at bedtime for a week. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

Dixiana Fans Enjoy Selves at New Bill

"Nellie the Cloak Model" Pleases Them.

"NELLIE, THE BEAUTIFUL CLOAK MODEL."

A melodrama by Owen Davis, revived on the showboat Dixiana, North Branch at Diversey parkway, Nov. 12, 1934.

THE CAST.

Nellie Grey	Margaret Conlon
Tom Bedford	Janet Logan
Wm. Roland Bedford	Hugh J. Adams
Mrs. Horton	Emma Boulton
Walter Hilton	Harry Owens
Jack Carroll	Robert Downing
Hortense Drake	Mary E. Gaynor
A Cash Girl	Thelma Dodge

A Waiter	Hugh Thompson
Elevator Man	John Anschutz
Ike Marcus	Harry Rankin

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The showboat Dixiana, a bright spot in the heart of darkness on the sinister waters of the North Branch, continues to explore the forgotten areas of the primitive American drama. It is now offering "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," a melodrama that seems as old as the cliff dwellers or the Aztec pyramids, but which actually dates back only to the turn of the nineteenth century.

Many a man is now alive and fairly vigorous who saw "Nellie," at the Academy of Music or the Bijou theater in Chicago, or maybe the Alhambra or the Criterion, in the heyday of his youth; and many a sturdy citizen likewise has patronized the Haymarket dance hall in New York, where Nellie comes closest to the edge of ruin.

Owen Davis wrote this ingenuous opus whose title has become a symbol for all the melodramas of its period, but he refuses to list it on his record in "Who's Who." He hangs his head in shame when "Nellie" is mentioned, and will not permit it to be revived within a day's train ride of the Broadway to which he is still contributing plays in the hope of winning a second Pulitzer prize. This is evidence that the American folk plays of the President McKinley period were generally written by men who knew better and had their tongues in their cheeks.

The heroine of this thriller is a symbol of the pure American shop girl, determined to protect her honor against overwhelming temptation. Nellie is beset by a triad of villains—the customary lecher in dude's costume, a fiend in female form for whom she works, and a drunken uncle who hopes to sell her to the highest bidder. This gang is bent on murder as well as seduction, for Nellie's death means a rich inheritance to them; and it is always rigging up traps from which the hero rescues her at the last second.

Nellie is bound hand and foot and placed in front of an elevated train. She is pinioned at the base of a freight elevator shaft, to be crushed the next time the car comes down.

With this maudlin stuff to stimulate their desire to interrupt the actors with wisecracks, the audiences on the Dixiana are making whoopee as usual. The scenery behaved in true showboat fashion last night to add to the carnival of amateur sarcasm. Janet Logan deserves a pleasant line for her conduct as the crippled boy, Tom.

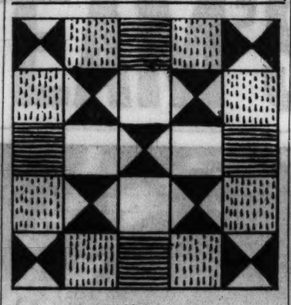
Chicago to Give Toys for Needy Children, Beginning on Nov. 24

Chicago will be Toyland for a week beginning Nov. 24, when the Chicago Association of Commerce and coöperating neighborhood organizations launch toy opening week with parades, special toy displays, and a program for providing Christmas toys for needy children.

During the week neighborhood motion picture houses will accept toys from children as admission to shows. Such toys will be gathered and distributed in baskets to the poor by benefit groups. A special poster prepared by the association will be displayed in stores participating in the observance of the week. Thousands of colored balloons, each bearing a tag exchangeable for some gift in the sending stores, will be released.

Attractive Quilt Offers Gayety in Color and Theme



Clowns.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Amusements and diversions, as well as work have proved name sources for quilt blocks in many cases. One of the loveliest and most expressive of designs is the attractive pieced block, "Clowns." Quite in keeping with the gay theme are the colors used. They are blue, red, yellow, and white, and are eminently suitable for a boy's room.

Miss Somigli Welcomed to Opera Season

It was a picture that equaled for beauty the ballroom of the De Coigny castle upon which the curtain rose for the first act of "Andrea Chenier," an Italian opera that has to do with the French revolution. It was an audience that numbered McCormicks and Swifts, Chalmerses, Fairbanks, and dozens more of the city's prominent families.

There was a smile of satisfaction on the face of Harold F. McCormick, for as honorary chairman of the Grand Opera company Mr. McCormick is keenly interested in the success of the six weeks' season.

Last night Mr. McCormick occupied a main floor box with Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed. Over a low cut gown of lime green satin Mrs. Swift wore a full length chinchilla wrap. For ornament with her black velvet gown Mrs. Fairbank had a double strand of pearls, the favorite jewels of many this year.

From fifth row seats Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, two of Chicago's most devoted opera patrons, enjoyed the performance. Mrs. Chalmers was handsomely gowned in white satin and pearls. Her wrap was black velvet furred in ermine. In the same row with the Chalmerses sat Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Sewell Avery, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Wiman and the William Butterworths came from Moline last night just as they will every other Monday night during the season. Occupying their main floor box with them were Mr. and Mrs. Vincent E. Healy. Just across the aile another box party included Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ranney, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, and Barrett Wendell.

One of the smartest of the many trained gowns was the black satin dress worn by Mrs. Jacob Baur. At the low square neckline Mrs. Baur pinned a lovely cluster of deep purple orchids. In her box Mrs. Baur had as guests Dr. and Mrs. Glenn Frank, Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, and Mrs. R. Townsend McKeever.

Grand Opera company give the musical. Mrs. Arthur Meeker is chairman of the Friends.

Several of the debutantes and their beaux will be dining and dancing tonight at the Racquet club at a party that Miss May Stillwell is giving. Miss Stillwell is a daughter of Addison Stillwell, who will give a ball for her during the Christmas holidays. Miss Stillwell is leaving for the east tomorrow to be away ten days.

Women's Clubs Hear of Community Fund.

Poise and speaking ability are a definite asset, some dozen society folk are discovering these days as they are traveling about the city explaining the worthy and necessary cause of the Community fund to women's clubs. They have been recruited by Miss Margot Atkin, who is a member of the campaign committee of the women's division of the Community fund in charge of speakers.

Today, for example, Mrs. John H. Noyes will talk to the Kaskaskia chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at noon. At 2 o'clock Miss Atkin, Miss Margaret Wilder, Mrs. Phillip W. Moore, and Mrs. Frank P. Hixon [the latter two are other members of the campaign committee] will address four more clubs, and at 3 o'clock Mrs. Ballard Moore will speak before the Chicago Commons Woman's club. Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams will tell about the fund this evening at a meeting of the American Daughters of Sweden.

About fifty of Miss Kate Buckingham's friends will go up to the Electric club tonight after the last note of "Tosca" has been sung to attend a champagne supper she is giving for her protégé, Giuseppe Bentonelli, a former Oklahoma City boy, who is making his debut with the Chicago Grand Opera company tonight.

Eden Gray Goes to New York.

Eden Gray, who was born a Pardridge, daughter of the Albert J. Pardridges, and christened Priscilla, left for New York yesterday after a week-end here that climaxed a six months' trip around the world. Miss Pardridge spent seven weeks in Russia and a fortnight as the guest of the maharajah of Mysore in India. Probably the most amusing part of her trip, however, was her arrival in San Francisco last week, when the photographers mistook her for Ann Harding, and, in spite of Miss Pardridge's protestations, photographed her in various positions for an hour or so.

Two offers for parts in Broadway productions have taken Miss Pardridge to New York. Her mother is going east next week to spend a fortnight with Mrs. Elting Warner. John A. Pardridge still is working in Newark, N. J., but he will be at home for the Christmas holidays. Mr. and Mrs. Pardridge gave a dinner for their daughter Saturday night, and Mrs. Robert R. McCormick entertained at supper for her Sunday evening.

Early yesterday the Italian consul general, Giuseppe Castruccio, arrived in Chicago after a summer in Naples with Signora Castruccio and their four children. To the regret of their many friends here, Signora Castruccio and the children have no plans for coming to this country this winter, since the children are in school in Italy. As before, Signor Castruccio will make his home at the Knickerbocker hotel.

Daughter Is Born to Gordon Kelleys.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Phelps Kelley are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter last Friday at St. Luke's hospital. She is the second daughter of the former Hortense Henry and Mr. Kelley, and the second great-granddaughter of Mrs. Edward F. Swift. The Huntington Henrys are her maternal grandparents, and the late Mr. and Mrs. William V. Kelley were her father's parents.

Smocking for Embellishment

CHILD'S DRESS.

Smocking is used with good effect on this pretty dress. It is simply cut and practical. The back of the dress has the fullness smocked and set on a straight yoke. In front the fullness is at either side of a straight center. Cotton broadcloth, plaided gingham, printed percale, printed dimity, and printed challis are lovely for this dress, and the double collars may be of the dress material, or of white linen or organdy. Wool crêpe, velveteen, and crêpe de chine are other attractive materials.

The pattern, No. 3470, comes in sizes 2, 4, and 6 years.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Weaving in and out of jail, BUTTING—and getting socked, giving and taking verbal fusillades of pungent odor, goes young Mr. Cagney this trip.

In the vocal volleys he employs that new technique, introduced by Margot in "Crime Without Passion." When you expect him to yell, he speaks softly. Tough guy gone pianissimo. Most effective!

Another novelty introduced is a socking heroine. The pretty hash slinger, who eventually becomes Mrs. Eddie Kennedy, is quite as handy with both north and south paws as is the flower of her heart with his—HEAD! [James has learned about goats since you saw him last.]

Eddie is a truck driver. He and his helper [??], Buck, are the powers behind the wheel of a machine that lurches between St. Louis and Chicago. . . . Eddie has been wishing that he could spend a nice, quiet week-end in the country.

He gets the week-end, but the quiet is enlivened by such things as a milk war, a murder, a kidnaping, and the aforementioned romance. . .

The action is exciting and tinctured with droll incident. The finale is unexpected and amusing.

When it comes to looks, neither Cagney nor Jenkins has much to offer the world. But there are no two men I know of who have more effective fingers on the trigger of public liking.

Patricia Ellis scores as the pretty, belligerent and brave Ann Reid. Spencer Charters as Messeldopp, a country jail warden; Arthur Aylesworth as a country judge, and Robert Barrat as the tragic figure of the story—Farmer Benson—all deserve a hand.

As I recollect, "The St. Louis Kid" hasn't a dull moment.

Unique Process Makes Peanuts from Soy Beans

They're Soaked and Then Fried in Hot Fat.

The Fourth Chicago Tribune School of Cookery begins today at Guyon's Paradise ballroom and will also be held there Nov. 14, 15, and 16. Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, famous home economics expert, in co-operation with Miss Mary Meade, Tribune cooking editor, will conduct the sessions. Next week the school will be held on the north side at the Aragon ballroom, Nov. 20, 21, 22, and 23.

All schools will open at 12:30 o'clock.

BY MARY MEADE.

It now develops that when a peanut's not a peanut—it's a soy bean!

"Synthetic peanuts" have been made recently from this nutritious type of legume in the chemical engineering department at Iowa State college. To our sensitive ear the method used sounds not quite kindly, consisting, as it does, of drowning the beans in salt water for 24 hours, then boiling them in oil. But we hear that the end, in delectability, quite justifies the means.

To prepare for yourself a synthetic peanut or two, soak soy beans for 24 hours in salt water. Then drop them into hot fat [340 degrees F.]. Let them fry until all the water has been heated out of them—about five minutes. When the beans are sufficiently fried they will float to the top and should be lifted out immediately and drained.

And speaking of oddments—have you ever tried dried dates and preserved ginger chopped together and mixed with a little cream? It makes a most lovable spread for dainty sandwiches.

With fall fruits romping about in the market we wonder how many meal makers have discovered that apples and quinces have a high respect for one another's flavors? Pared and sliced quinces, cooked with sliced apples for a supper sauce or an accompaniment for meat, give a new and spicy flavor.

Rice is one of the few foods which changes not at all in flavor when reheated. But, unfortunately, it does change in consistency when it cools. A simple method by which we may bring back the original fluffiness and heat up yesterday's leftover is this. Drop the cold cooked rice into boiling, slightly salted water and cook for five minutes. Then drain and allow the rice to dry out and fluff itself over a low heat.

Meats and vegetables are boosting each other's stock by flattering one another's flavor these nippy November days. Notable among these Siamese twin dishes is——

CAULIFLOWER AND HAM AU GRATIN.

1 head cauliflower
2 cups baked ham, diced
2 cups medium-thick white sauce
3 tablespoons grated cheese
1 tablespoon butter or margarine.
Salt to taste.

Wash and trim the cauliflower, then cook it until tender in boiling, salted water. When done, drain well and break into flowerets. Place these in a greased baking dish and pour over them the white sauce, to which has been added the diced ham. Sprinkle with grated cheese and dot with butter or margarine. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] for 15 minutes.

Highly Active Child Ought to Be Restrained

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"DEAR Mrs. Bevans: My little girl is a tomboy. She acts just like a boy. She is active and restless. She wanted roller skates, and I bought her some, which she enjoys greatly, riding about on them for long periods—not by herself, but with my help. Have you any suggestions for managing this kind of child?"

Perhaps this gives me a good opening to point out that the active child is just the one whose sleep and relaxation must be safeguarded.

The intense child is the one whose spirit sometimes tires out her body.

The easy going, or happy go lucky, the quiet child or the stolid one is not so apt to wear herself out.

The ebullient child, the enthusiastic child, the one who has a great deal of physical energy—this is the child who has to be watched. But not watched so that she knows it—not told, "You'll be tired, darling—come in and rest," or "Take off those skates—you'll wear yourself out." She must be watched—first, as to generel routine, and, second, for those telltale signs of fatigue or overstimulation which show themselves differently in different children—circles under the eyes, or that wan look, or irritability, or easy tears.

Perhaps I should stop to say that it is important for this active child to have much outlet for her energy besides much rest—otherwise she will suffer from the repression of it. This being understood, we can go on to suggest compensations for this great activity.

One measure for saving this type of child is scattering through the day some periods of quiet play—such as occupation with simple arts or crafts or books.

The other measure is one or two daytime rest periods and the longest possible rest at night. A mother or nurse must not wait for a child's fatigue to show itself before doing something about it.

New Greaseless Facial

FOR BLACKHEADS • OILY SKINS

● OVER-OILINESS, LARGE PORES . . . new oatmeal facial absorbs excess oiliness—refines skin texture.

● BLACKHEADS disappeared. Skin looked clear and clean.

No grease in this oatmeal facial!

That's why it clears up blackheads, combats acne and over-oiliness.

AT last a facial that does what no other facial has ever done before . . . deep-cleans, stimulates, absorbs excess oiliness. Leaves skin soft, clear and velvet-smooth.

If you don't believe Lavena is a miracle facial, then make this simple test. First cleanse your face with soap. Then cleanse it again with cold cream. Then moisten the palms of your hands, blend Lavena to a creamy lotion. Put it on. Wash it off. If your skin doesn't feel softer, more glowing, if it doesn't look cleaner, clearer, than soap or cold cream left it, we'll gladly give your money back.

LAVENA The 2-Minute Oatmeal Facial

We guarantee to refund the price of Lavena if it does not perform exactly as we say.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

SELECTING A LOWER SUIT TAKEOUT IN PREFERENCE TO A RAISE.

Yesterday I endeavored to make it clear to you that after making a takeout in a lower suit, you will have to show your trump support for your partner later and that it will then be almost impossible to sign off short of game. The sequence of bidding by the responding hand is essentially invitational, and the opening bidder cannot read it as anything else. Consequently, you must not start your bidding off in this manner unless you positively intend its later developments to be invitational. The weak lower ranking suit takeout is all right by itself and will not get you into trouble. The confusion comes when you subsequently support your partner's opening bid. You must inevitably be compelled to show that support at some time—either because game prospects have suddenly brightened because both suits fit or because you must take your partner out of a hopeless declaration for reasons of safety.

What Are the Requrements for the Takeout?

If all the high card values are in the one suit, I think it should be as good as K Q x x x; the suit may be weaker if there is compensation elsewhere in the hand. In fact, if there is something in each suit, you can make rather light takeouts because you would now welcome a three no trump contract.

If Partner Has Bid Spades.

These are about the weakest hands on which I would bid two of a lower suit. Do not distinguish between hearts and the minor suits in this particular situation, because you have your major suit game contract awaiting you in spades should no trumps not be your destiny.

Sp.—Q x x x	Di.—x x
Ht.—K Q x x x	Cl.—x x

The point with this hand is that you can not stand no trumps, but that if you get to game in spades, there will not be more than one loser in hearts unless your partner can afford it.

Sp.—Q x x x	Di.—K J x x x
Ht.—x x	Cl.—K x

Over one spade, bid two diamonds. If opener bids hearts, you must bid two no trumps, so that if you play the hand in three no trumps, the club lead will come up to your hand. If you get to four spades, your partner should not have too many losers in the unbid suits.

Sp.—x x x x	Di.—x x
Ht.—A J	Cl.—Q J 10 x x

This hand looks tempting for game unless your partner immediately signs off with two spades over your two club response. Any other rebid on his part should lead you to four spades. However, if the bidding went one spade, two clubs, two no trumps, three spades, three no trumps, I would read a fine partner for at least A x x x in clubs and adequate stoppers in the red suits and pass. With a weak partner it might be prudent to take it to four spades.

Sp.—K x x x	Di.—K 10 x x x
Ht.—Q 10	Cl.—Q x

Here you wish your two diamond takeout to result in three no trumps, unless your partner rebids only in terms of spades or else bids secondarily one of your doubleton suits, but refuses to bid no trumps when you thereupon show spade support.

Protect the Two No Trump Response.

5-4-2-2 is a bad distribution for a two no trump immediately response unless you are extremely strong in the short suits. The suit takeout is your resource in this situation, and serves to protect the soundness of the two no trump response when there is a near choice between them and one no trump would be a risky underbid, while a raise in partner's suit is either not available or would also be too weak a response.

Four Card Suit Takeouts.

Incidentally, if the choice is between a raise and a four card suit takeout, there is seldom a problem. To be biddable, the four carder must be headed by tops, so that the hand probably should be judged on distributional grounds, the choice lying between the raise and one, or perhaps two, no trumps. The suit must be strong. A K Q x if there is no other high card in the hand. To bid two diamonds over one spade, I would need

Sp.—x x x x	Di.—A K Q x
Ht.—x x x	Cl.—x x
or
Sp.—K x x x	Di.—A K 10 x
Ht.—Q x x	Cl.—10 x
or
Sp.—Q x x x	Di.—A K 10 x
Ht.—Q 10 x	Cl.—Q x

the last hand being aimed at three no trumps. The first is destined to four spades unless opener makes exceptional rebids; the second example is suitable either for four spades or three no trumps, as opener's bidding may direct. Two spades or one no trump would be dangerous underbids on each of these hands.

The comfort I declined so long:

MIDOL

"I don't know why I refused so long to believe that Midol might help me, unless it was because I had tried so many things that never did. But I'm thankful I did try it, about two years ago, and haven't had a severe time since I learned to rely on this form of relief."

Some such endorsement could truthfully be given by numbers of women who have found, sooner or later, that Midol does relieve periodic pain. In many cases, these tablets have spared women even any discomfort at this time; nearly all receive definite relief.

Perhaps you have feared to take anything that acts as quickly as Midol. Don't be afraid of its speed! It is not a narcotic. Midol is as harmless as the aspirin you take for an ordinary headache. All drugstores have these tablets; just ask for Midol—today, so that you'll be prepared.

It takes oceans of LATHER to cover his chin

MANY PUBLICATIONS which are represented to be read only by the "best people" charge a high rate for the privilege of talking to this supposedly select audience.

It's all right to lather the chins of the haughty, but the shaving cream manufacturer who depends on the millionaire trade will take it on the chin when he starts to count his profits.

We have no idea how many millionaires read The American Weekly, but we do know that more than 5,000,000 families who live in the richest buying areas of the nation find this magazine so intensely interesting that they pay ten cents to read it every week.

Their men-folks all shave, brush their teeth, use hair tonics, wear shirts, socks and drawers, write with fountain pens, smoke and buy the usual assortment of gadgets that are essential to the life of the average male.

The way to boost sales to men is to advertise the wares you have for sale in the one magazine that reaches the most buyers at the lowest cost per buyer.

For $16,000 each, at a cost of less than one-third cent per family you can deliver your advertising message in one or more great smashing color pages, double the size of any other magazine page.

That advertising will be read by some millionaires but it will also be read by the millions whose combined buying power makes volume sales possible.

Where this Magazine goes

The American Weekly is the largest magazine in the world. It is distributed through 17 great Hearst Sunday Newspapers. In 597 of America's 995 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over, The American Weekly concentrates 67% of its circulation.

In each of 134 cities, it reaches one out of every two families
In 125 more cities, 40 to 50% of the families
In an additional 165 cities, 30 to 40%
In another 173 cities, 20 to 30%

. . . and, in addition, more than 1,885,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy and read The American Weekly.

Where can you spend your advertising dollar more effectively?

Leader—Thomas.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Tony Schaller, of Chicago, and Bobby Thomas, of Kenosha, had a busy time of it but maintained their lead in Chicago's 32d International six-day bike race throughout the early hours yesterday, and throughout the sprinting and jamming yesterday afternoon and last night. At one point in last night's proceedings Letourner-Debaets rode into a mileage tie but soon faded back, leaving Tony and Bobby in the same relative position they were 24 hours earlier.

In the other flights there was much scrambling, with Ewald Wissel-Bill Grimm emerging alone in second place when the 12 o'clock standings were posted. Bob Lipsett and Paul Croley valiantly were bringing up the rear, a mere 13 laps behind the leaders.

A total of 144 laps were stolen during the two hours between 9 o'clock and 11 o'clock, bringing the total for the race up to that point to 274.

Slow Warming Up.

The evening activities were a bit slow in becoming zestful, the first jam and lap gaining coming at 9:05 o'clock, and the first spill, when Garrison and Dempsey sprawled, not happening until the second of the 9 o'clock sprints.

Schaller and Thomas, the Chicago-Kenosha pair, were in the lead at the opening of business by the margin of one lap, but during the 9 o'clock sprints Letourner-Debaets gained a lap to tie the leaders and technically were in the lead by virtue of having 71 sprint points to 49 for Schaller-Thomas. By 10 o'clock, however, Schaller-Thomas were again a lap ahead, but by this time pressed by three teams.

Heavens, a Scandal!

Scandal raised its ugly head in the afternoon phase of the race, but thanks to firm action by Frank Kramer, referee of the race and chairman of the board of control of the National Cycling association, the viper was stomped out before it had sunk its wicked fangs into the fair name of six day pedaling.

The trouble started when Mr. Kramer discovered that Gerard Debaets was a-sittin' on a spring saddle as he whirled around what sometimes is called the big pine saucer, or ten lap track. Now you may not have known it, but the spring saddle is a softy device, long frowned on in the six day profession and utterly outlaw in spectacles sanctioned by the National Cycling association.

"Get Off That Bike!"

Mr. Kramer scarcely could believe his eyes as he peeped under M. Debaets' hips and saw the patent saddle, the outlaw contraption. When Mr. Kramer became sure of his ground he shouted down from his stand on the northeast bank of the big pine saucer:

"Hey, you," said Mr. Kramer, only he used the New Jersey accent, being the police commissioner of the aggressive city of East Orange, N. J. "I see you are a-sittin' on one of those dude saddles, contrary to the statutes herein provided. Get off that bike and onto a regulation one and damn quick."

It's the Hives, Folks!

Debaets dismounted and, sure enough, there on his racing bike was a spring saddle of the type used only for pleasure outings. But Debaets was unabashed and sought to give Mr. Kramer an argument, saying he was being pestered by hives. The debate raged for 10 minutes until Mr. Kramer concluded it with the statement that if Debaets again passed the referee's stand with the spring saddle under him he would be tossed out of the race, saddle and all.

Later it developed that Debaets, in addition to his hives, had been somewhat upset because a few hours earlier Kramer had collected a fine of $200 in behalf of the Belgian Cycling association. It was not revealed whether Gerald had tried to foist a spring saddle on the Belgian public. Debaets claimed he had paid the fine, but Kramer said his dough had been placed in escrow pending further information in the matter.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

FRANK MURRAY, Marquette football coach, recently heard a high school gridiron instructor tell of his troubles in a school where only twenty-five boys were available for the team. . . . The coach picked for quarter back a boy who qualified only because he had received the highest grades in class. . . . He told him on first down to swing around end, on second to hit through tackle, and on third down [it was a muddy field] to punt. . . .

OLIN DUTRA.

HARRY DUBLINSKY

The quarter back obeyed instructions to the letter. . . . His team received. . . . On the first play it swept around end for 30 yards to midfield, on the second it found a hole at tackle for 30 more yards, and on the third play it punted over the fence. . . Olin Dutra is the first in years to lose money as national open golf champion. . . . Doctor bills and time lost from play because of amebic dysentery account for his inability to capitalize on his title. . . . Harry Dublinsky, Chicago welterweight fighter, has invested $2,400 in a west side barber shop. . . . Northwestern swimmers hold seven Big Ten records and six national collegiate marks. . . . Al Schwartz, star of the 1930 team, possesses five of them. . . . Louis Cohen last night won a ham offered for the winner of a one mile sprint at the six day bike race. . . .

Harvey Rathbone, who played football for Nebraska in 1909, remarked while watching a recent game: "If I couldn't play better football than that tackle, I'd go soak my head. I could go down there right now and handle him." . . . A few days later former Nebraska monogram men were called to meet and wear their N sweaters. . . . Rathbone thought he had better try his on the evening before, not having worn it for several years. . . . In getting into it he sprained his shoulder so badly he had to summon a doctor. . . . Only three of the Polish fighters who appeared against Chicago's Golden Gloves champions last spring—Rotholz, Sipinski, and Karpinski—were members of the Polish team which recently fought Czechoslovakia. . . . All three won their bouts. . . . Soviet Russia's boxers are touring other countries with marked success. . . .

Bill Bevan, Minnesota's star guard, started as a backfield man. . . . He never wears a headgear. . . . Milton Bruhn, who often relieves Bevan in the Gophers' line, works in his father's blacksmith shop at St. Bonifacius, Minn., during vacations. . . . Locomotive engineers do nothing except pull the whistle cord when passing through Beeville, Tex., but the town has one claim to fame. . . . It has sent three players to the major leagues. . . . One was Curt Walker, former National league outfielder; another Lloyd Brown, southpaw pitcher now with Cleveland; and the third is Robert Walter Fenner, a catcher drafted by the White Sox from the St. Paul club. . . . University of Washington hadn't scored on Oregon for six or seven years, so this year Washington sophomores vowed they never would be beaten by Oregon as long as they were in school. . . . They stepped out with a 16 to 6 victory as a starter. . . . The Belle Plaine Athletic club, 4217 Lincoln avenue, one of the oldest amateur boxing organizations in the city, has been forced to close its doors, due mainly to a loss it received in a bank crash. . . .

Frank Demaree, who has been recalled by the Cubs, hit 45 home runs in the Coast league this season. . . . It will encourage opposing schools to learn that the four big rivals around San Francisco bay—Stanford, California, St. Mary's, and Santa Clara—have the best looking freshman squads they have claimed in years. . . . Jim Jeffries says Joe Choynski gave him the hardest punch he ever received. . . . Art Lasky, who fights King Levinsky Nov. 23, cuts easily in the eyebrows. . . . Calumet, Mich., High school has sent Notre Dame four of its greatest football players—George Gipp, Hunk Anderson, Ojay Larson, and Dominic Vairo. . . . Laurence Danbom, a sophomore full back on this year's squad, also comes from there. . . . Newell Banks, world's checker champion, will defend his title against Asa Long of Toledo, Dec. 1 to 12, in Detroit. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—The Nebraska squad arrived at South Bend, Ind., ready to knock Notre Dame's hopes for a national football championship awry. . . . Seventy-two thousand were going to watch Michigan and Ohio State battle at Columbus. . . . Princeton and Yale were ready for their forty-ninth football struggle. . . . Abe Goldstein, world's bantamweight champion, defeated Eddie Shea in ten rounds at East Chicago.

Forget Statistics! Team with Most Points Still a Winner

BY WILFRID SMITH.

A football team may win without having a net gain in yards from scrimmage. It may win, in fact, without completing a forward pass, or without showing any superiority in any department of offense. Such a victory, of course, would be most unusual. It might involve only one successful scoring play, such as the run back of a kickoff, recovering of an opponent's fumble or blocked kick.

After such a game the defeated eleven might justly point to its own record on attack and convincingly argue that in all except this one case, it was the better team. But comparative figures, however interesting, won't produce a victory. The result still hinges on points scored. And this also includes the point after touchdown, one of the most important team plays in football as well as one requiring individual brilliance on the part of the kicker, the center, and the player holding the ball for the kick.

Something to Talk About.

It follows, then, that all the other "might have been" arguments, generally suggested by the team losing the game, are just as superficial. The tackler who failed, when a tackle would have stopped a touchdown run, the pass that was dropped by the receiver who was standing uncovered and certainly would have scored, and the plunge for first down that lacked a few inches of making distance may be grouped in this classification. They are subjects for interesting conversation, add to the thrills as the game is played, and replayed later, and serve to indicate in how many ways the result might have been reversed.

The penalty which prevented a score, or perhaps placed the ball in a favorable position from which the opponent scored, also falls in the same class of the possible-but-didn't-happen plays. When an official calls a penalty he has no way of knowing that the play will result in a 40 yard gain that will not be allowed. Nor does the official know how many will disagree with his ruling. In this he is at a disadvantage with players who fail to make tackles or drop passes. It's obvious these mistakes have been made. It isn't always obvious that the rules of football have been broken when the official toots his horn.

Infractions Hard to See.

Actually, most infractions of the rules cannot be seen by coaches, players or spectators. Holding and kindred fouls, generally are hidden from all except those men who are close to the scene and watching, which, incidentally, is their business. However, officials don't have this protection, if it is protection, on such fouls as pass interference and violation of restraining lines during scrimmage.

Ultimately the whole simmers down

MAROONS TAKE TURN WORRYING ABOUT GOPHERS

But Fretting Has Never Beaten Minnesota.

Clark Shaughnessy should be the most fretful football coach in the country this week. His Maroon team plays Minnesota at Minneapolis Saturday—and what to do about it? Six other coaches have fretted over the problem heretofore this season, but to no avail.

Shaughnessy has a worry or two in addition to planning a game against a great football team. Four of the regulars, Berwanger, Bartlett, Wright, and Baker, and one reserve man, Runyan, are on the doubtful list because of injuries. And the fact that the Minnesota game will be a personal homecoming for him will not act as a sedative for Shaughnessy.

Will Visit Home Town.

The Maroon coach is a former St. Paul boy and a Minnesota varsity man. Bernie Bierman, the rival coach Saturday, is an old friend, an old teammate, and a former assistant of Shaughnessy at Tulane. Doubtless he has some very good ideas about Shaughnessy's basic strategy.

The Maroon prospect is indeed gloomy. The Gophers have three times Chicago's man power. Julian Lopez, assistant coach at the Midway, who has scouted Minnesota this season, has brought back a set of notes which add no joy to Shaughnessy's life. Chicago will be facing one of the huskiest, most competent lines in the country, and a parade of at least ten Gopher backs, including Lund, Kostka, Beise, Clarkson, Alfonse, Proffitt, Seidel, Levoir, Roscoe, and Rennix.

Stars May Be Ready.

It appeared yesterday that Berwanger and Bartlett might be ready for Saturday. The chances for Johnny Baker, right end, who suffered a compound nose fracture against Purdue, and for Wright and Runyan, appeared slim.

Regulars were excused after a light workout yesterday. Reserves and freshmen scrimmaged, using Minnesota plays. For the three serious practice sessions this week Shaughnessy plans to stress pass defense.

GOPHERS GET CHALK TALK.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Coach Bernie Bierman gave the Minnesota football team the longest chalk talk of the season in preparation for the Chicago game Saturday. Bierman threw out the 33 to 0 Ohio State victory over the Maroons because Berwanger was out of the lineup, and the Maroons therefore were far from themselves. He added that Berwanger would be back Saturday and that he had to be stopped before the Gophers could hope for a victory.

Glenn Seidel, quarter back, injured his back in the Indiana game and may not be able to play against the Maroons. It was learned today that his injury is more serious than at first believed. Vern Oech, guard, also was injured in the Indiana game, but he will be ready. Butch Larson, end, who was kept out of the Hoosier game entirely, also will be set to go once more if he can supplant Maurice Johnson after his great work of the last two weeks.

PRINCETON GAME OFFICIAL DIES OF CRASH INJURIES

Montclair, N. J., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Charles A. [Dutch] Brumbaugh, 37 years old, athletic director at Caldwell High school, collegiate football official, and dean of New Jersey scholastic officials, died today from injuries suffered in an auto accident.

Brumbaugh acted as an official in the Princeton-Lehigh football game Saturday and was on his way home that night when his car skidded into a tree at Caldwell. He suffered a depressed fracture of the skull and a delicate emergency operation was performed when he was taken to the hospital. Brumbaugh failed to rally, however. His wife was at his side when death came.

Brumbaugh went to Caldwell shortly after his graduation in 1921 from Penn State college, where he was an athlete of note. His ability as catcher on the baseball team earned him a tryout with the Washington Senators, but he was farmed out to the Middle Atlantic league and soon dropped professional baseball.

St. Mary's Is Beaten, 6 to 0, by U. C. L. A.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 12.—[Special.—The Bruins of the University of California at Los Angeles added their contribution to the upsets of the football season with a 6 to 0 victory over St. Mary's college today before a gathering of 35,000 fans in Los Angeles Olympic stadium.

After scoring their touchdown on Funk's buck from the two yard line early in the third quarter following a fumble by the St. Mary's quarter back, Walt Harris, the Bruins turned back two scoring threats, one on the four yard line and another on the 14.

Fumble Leads to Touchdown.

During the first half St. Mary's penetrated only as far as the 22 yard line and the Bruins got no farther than the Oakland team's 38. Early in the third quarter Funk was compelled to punt from his own 45 yard line. Harris received the ball on the four yard line, started to run it back, but fumbled. A smother of white clad Bruins and red shirted Gaels dived for the ball and the officials ruled it was the Bruins' ball on the four yard line.

Elduyan and Yezerski turned back Funk's first plunge for no gain. Capt. Livesay made up two yards over center and on the next play, Verdi Boyer U. C. L. A.'s powerful guard, and Stawisky, tackle, opened a hole through which Funk plunged for the touchdown. Livesay's placement for the added point was wide.

Gaels Start Drive.

After the score the Gaels began an advance from their own 30 yard line. A 13 yard gain by Jim Austin on an end around play, a pass to the same player, and four bucks by 203 pound Al Nichelini took the ball to the Bruins' 28 yard line.

Austin plowed through center to the 12 yard line and after one play Mattos passed to Austin on the 3 yard line, making fourth down and one to go. Here Mattos faked a pass and tried to run his own end, but was nailed on the 4 yard line by Olson, U. C. L. A. tackle, making it the Bruins' ball.

After the game the goal posts in the Olympic stadium were uprooted by jubilant Bruin partisans for whom the unexpected victory turned the entire season from a failure to a success.

Rodak Beats De Grasse in Ten Rounds

Leo Rodak, South Chicago boxer, defeated Pete De Grasse of New York to score his 21st consecutive triumph last night at White City. Off to a fine start by dropping De Grasse with a right to the jaw for a nine count in the first round Rodak was forced to fight back as he never had fought before to hold the lead in the remaining nine rounds.

As it turned out the decision was not unanimous, Judge Rube Metz's score was 50-50, and his verdict was a draw. Referee Dave Barry's tally was 55-45 for Rodak, and Judge Ed Klein's was 53-47.

Rodak Outweighs Opponent.

Rodak, at 131, outweighed the New York Indian by four pounds. His margin of victory was small. There were some in the crowd of 1,478, who paid $1,590 gross, who favored a draw.

After suffering the aforementioned knockdown, De Grasse opened the second the aggressor. He scored with sharp, rapid lefts to the head and stomach while Rodak pawed with his left in an attempt to get the range with his right.

Rodak refused to become flustered and he piled up points in the third, fourth, and fifth with a straight left to the mouth and a series of vicious rights to the head, one of which left a good sized bump over Pete's left eye.

De Grasse Rallies Bravely.

De Grasse came back courageously in the sixth round, however. His resounding lefts to the body slowed up his opponent and gave him an opportunity to land a score of punches with both hands to the stomach.

The best round was the seventh. Shortly after it got under way both fighters stood in the center of the ring and exchanged solid wallops for a full minute. Rodak's strength asserted itself and near the end of the round De Grasse was compelled to back up.

Everett [Young] Rightmire, Sioux City, Ia., featherweight, was awarded an eight round decision over Dave Barry of Springfield, in the semi-final. The battle was bitterly contested throughout. Rightmire was superior at long range and Dave held an edge in mêlées in the clinches.

Kingfish Long Is Invited to Second Kingfish Levinsky

King Levinsky, whose eccentricities have been a continual source of diversion to boxing fans, last night sought the coöperation of another famous Kingfish, Senator Huey Long of Louisiana. Levinsky wired Long an invitation to be his second in a fight with Art Lasky at the Chicago Stadium Nov. 23. The telegram follows:

"Hon. Huey Long,
"Baton Rouge, La.

"Dear Kingfish: I am about to engage in the most important fight of my career and I would like you to second me. I know if the Kingfish of the south will second the Kingfish of the north we will show the American people that the Kingfishes are world's champions. Wire if you will make the trip at my expense, and if you come I will go south and help you when you have an important fight.

"Your pal and greatest admirer,
"Kingfish Levinsky."

Walker Is Defeated by Pirrone in Ten Rounds

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Paul Pirrone, Cleveland middleweight fighter, tonight outpointed the former champion, Mickey Walker, of Rumson, N. J., in ten rounds before 8,500 fans. Walked weighed 164, Pirrone 161.

SHOWING WITH ILLINOIS GIVES WILDCATS HOPE

40,000 to Attend Game Saturday.

After a day of rest Northwestern's football team will get down today to the business of preparing for its annual tussle with Notre Dame at Dyche stadium on Saturday. In spite of the fact that both teams have met with frequent reverses, a crowd of 40,000, the largest to see a game in Chicago this season, is expected to attend.

The game will make the first appearance in Chicago of a Notre Dame team coached by Elmer Layden. However, local fandom, and Northwestern followers in particular, still have a vivid memory of his last appearance here as a member of the famous Four Horsemen of 1924. In the Notre Dame-Northwestern game of that year it was Layden who intercepted a Northwestern pass and returned it for the touchdown which offset two long drop kicks by Moon Baker earlier in the game. The Irish finally won, 13 to 6.

Thrills Mark Series.

Since the 1924 game the two teams have met annually except for a two year break in '27 and '28. Notre Dame has won all but one of the eight games, the exception being a scoreless tie in 1931. The games almost without exception have been thrill packed.

Indications point to this year's game taking its place with these thrillers of the past. Even in defeat Saturday both teams played brilliant ball and no doubt will be out to obtain solace for the breaks that cost them victory a week ago. Notre Dame is especially upset over the outcome of its game with Navy, in which the Irish backs piled up all manner of yardage, yet scored but one touchdown.

Northwestern is apparently on the upswing after an indifferent start this season. Against Illinois the Wildcats were a hard tackling, hard charging outfit, a complete reversal from the form shown against earlier opponents. If they can retain this new power and drive they should give Notre Dame a close fight.

Tests New Quarters.

Coach Hanley plans to devote much time and effort this week on sessions with his quarter backs. After losing two first string field generals as a result of injuries, the Wildcats are in a rather tough spot. It is probable that Bob Swisher, a half back, will call signals against Notre Dame. However, Murnighan, Stanul, Adelman, Geyer and Duvall will be drilled for the position this week.

IRISH VARSITY RESTS.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Coach Elmer Layden gave the Notre Dame varsity a rest today while he worked over Northwestern plays with the freshmen and reserves who will exhibit them before the varsity in scrimmage this week.

Saturday's game will bring the Irish to another of many turning points of the year. Notre Dame has now won three and lost three, with Northwestern, Army, and Southern California still ahead. To gain an even break or better for the season it is almost imperative that Notre Dame win Saturday.

RECORD 56,000 AT NARRAGANSETT RACING FINALE

Pawtucket, R. I., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—American race track attendance records for 1934 were shattered at the Narragansett Park track near here this afternoon when 56,000 passed through the turnstiles to see an Armistice day program run off which wound up the turf season for the year in New England.

More than $700,000 was wagered through the pari-mutuel machines and many more thousands of dollars were kept from being wagered when thousands of persons in the great crowd found it impossible to fight their way up to the windows where betting tickets were sold.

A heavy muddy track prevailed, and except in the first race, won by Holster, which paid $54.90 for a $2 ticket, heavily backed horses won throughout the afternoon.

The crowd exceeded the record Kentucky crowd of this year by more than 4,000, according to attendance figures announced by officials of the Narragansett track.

JUST HOW GOOD IS POREDA? LET LOUIS FIND OUT

Bout Goes On at Arcadia Tomorrow.

Stanley Poreda, Jersey City, N. J., heavyweight, was one of the best heavyweight boxers in the country two years ago. His present status seems to be uncertain, however, and additional mystery was created yesterday when his handlers refused to allow him to box at Trafton's gymnasium. They announced he did all the boxing needed in New York. As a result Poreda will go into the fight against Joe Louis tomorrow at Arcadia Gardens more or less a mystery man.

Although Poreda appeared heavier, it was announced that he weighed 208 before doing a series of loosening up exercises. It is five and a half pounds less than he scaled against Walter Neusel at New York Nov. 21, 1933. In that bout Stanley got his fifth straight setback. These embarrassments, shortly after Poreda whipped fighters like Tommy Loughran, Primo Carnera, Ernie Schaaf, Babe Hunt, and Johnny Risko, were not understandable.

Gets New Manager.

Apparently not even Poreda could solve the puzzle and so at 25, hoping to regain topnotch rating, he has placed himself under new management. The new manager, Mushky Jackson, aid of Joe Jacobs, says Poreda has engaged in only two scraps under his guidance and he won both by knockouts.

Promoter Irving Schoenwald stated that the advance sale of tickets has been as good as his last presentation when Louis knocked out Art Sykes Oct. 24 before 2,500 who paid $3,120 gross. The complete supporting card follows:

Jack Kranz vs. Eddie Anderson [6]; John Moore vs. Red Johnson [6]; Frank Ketter vs. Danny La Marre [5], and Merril [Red] Tonn vs. Chuck Rayner [5], all heavyweights.

Perroni or Ramage.

Both Patsy Perroni, Cleveland, O., and Lee Ramage, San Francisco, Cal., have accepted Promoter Maurice Rivkin's offer for a battle against Joe Louis at the Coliseum Nov. 30 or at Broadway armory Dec. 12. . . . The promoter expects to decide today which of the two will be selected as Louis' adversary and name the exact date and site for the contest. . . . It was indicated that Perroni will be picked. . . . Stanley Poreda is scheduled to depart for Buenos Aires Nov. 29 for a match there against Primo Carnera Jan. 4. . . . Teddy Loda, eastern junior welterweight, is booked to fight Pete Gulotta at the Ridgewood Grove in New York Saturday.

Bill Reardon, Oak Park lightweight, will oppose Hugh Allen in a four round preliminary to the 10 round windup between Laddie Tonelli and Richard [Toots] Bernstein at Cicero Stadium Friday. . . . Mike [Little Pal] Primich of Indiana Harbor, Ind., sparred several rounds yesterday with Geno Salvatore for an eight round semi-final against Paul Dazzo at Cicero. . . . Salvatore will go to Pittsburgh, Pa., tomorrow to hook up with Eddie Zivic for the second time Friday. . . . Solly Dukelsky, forced out of action because of a jaw fracture, will be ready to fight again next month.

Charley Massera, Pittsburgh, and Al Ettore, Philadelphia, have been signed to meet in a 10 round scrap on the King Levinsky-Art Lasky program at Chicago Stadium Nov. 23. Massera and Ettore are two of the most promising boxers in the heavyweight division. The winner hopes to qualify for a match with Levinsky or Lasky. One of Massera's best accomplishments is a draw against Steve Hamas, a leading contender. He lost to Levinsky by a narrow margin a year ago and his showing earned him a conflict with Maxie Rosenbloom. He surprised again by whipping Rosenbloom.

Levinsky added Adolph Wiater, Green Bay, Wis., mauler, to his sparring staf yesterday at Northwest gymnasium. The staf now consists of Wiater, Tony Cancela, and Red Tonn. The Kingfish says Cancela has sharpened his eyes against left hooks to the head and body. He contends Tony has a better left hook than Lasky because his impending antagonist telegraphs the punch while Cancela doesn't.

Negotiations for a lightweight title bout between Champion Barney Ross and Tony Canzoneri, former crownholder, to be held in January at the Stadium have been opened with Sam Goldman, manager of Canzoneri. . . . Matchmaker Soldier Mickey Farr is conducting negotiations and by the time Promoter Joe Foley returns from Rochester, Minn., next week following treatments for an eye ailment arrangements may have been completed. . . . Eddie Carroll, Ottawa, Can., junior welterweight, is in town and has placed himself under the management of Benny Ray. F. M.

CITY COLLEGE IS $2,000 BEHIND ON FRIEDMAN'S BILL

New York, Nov. 12.—[Special.]—The matter of meeting the pay roll has stymied the students of City College of New York with Coach Benny Friedman still waiting for $2,000 back pay, the all-American star himself revealed today.

Coach Friedman signed for $5,000. His salary was guaranteed by the athletic association, student controled, and supported from membership tickets sold to undergraduates. This guarantee was further backed up by Dr. Frederick B. Robinson, president of the college. There was a third guarantee by Maurice Dietches, a lawyer, a Michigan university alumnus and pal of Benny's.

Friedman has received $3,000. The City College season ended Saturday and today Friedman went to work as a salesman for an ale distributor. He said he "expected to be paid."

Phoenix Prep Football Player Dies; Neck Broken

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—A fracture of the vertebrae of the neck suffered in a football game Saturday caused the death today of Charles Lemon, 16 years old, center on the Phoenix Union High school football team. Lemon was injured when he tackled Ed Brunner, a half back on the El Paso team.

DICK TRACY—After the Storm

64 Fighters Enter C.Y.O. Semi-Finals

Featherweights and middleweights will share the spotlight tomorrow and Thursday night at the C. Y. O. center gymnasium when semi-final matches of the fourth annual Catholic Youth organization amateur boxing tournament are held at 31 East Congress street.

Sixty-four boys will compete to determine finalists for the championship contests, which will be held at Chicago Stadium Dec. 5.

Star Featherweights to Meet.

Four of the best featherweights in the history of the C. Y. O. tournament will be seen in action during the semi-final round. They are Andy Scrivani, C. Y. O. and intercity champion; Floyd Walker, Tony Carlucci, and Steve Sonick. Although Scrivani is favored to win the 1934 title, Walker and Carlucci are expected to give the 17 year old Italian youngster the stiffest opposition of the meet tomorrow and Thursday night.

The middleweight division includes Charley Wozniak, defending titleholder; William Nurczyk, 1932 champion; Bill Fitzgerald, and George Sluka. After his sensational victory over Al Vandenbosch in the quarter-final round Sluka is a strong favorite to replace Wozniak as the 1934 middleweight champion.

Lovings, Wozniak Entered.

Other divisions are well fortified, particularly the lightweight and 175 pound divisions. Entered in the lightweight semi-finals are Lorenzo Lovings, Savior Canadeo, Barney Ryan, and Russell Kamp, while Ray Wozniak, Otto Fischel, Ray McNally, and Frank Kamir will battle for light heavyweight honors.

Figures Can Lie if They're About Football

No better example of what might have happened occurred in Saturday's game than at Iowa City where Purdue defeated Iowa, 13 to 6. Iowa made only two first downs in the first half to 17 for Purdue, gained 31 yards by rushing as compared to Purdue's 296, and yet the Hawks had a 6 to 6 tie. And the Hawks might have been leading 6 to 0 except that Purdue scored in the last two seconds of play. If this pass, Purvis to Loebs, had failed, or, better yet, if the preceding play, an incompleted forward pass, had not failed with the result that the field judge stopped his watch, time would have expired before the teams could line up.

Purdue gained more than 500 yards against Iowa and had possession of the ball for 107 plays as compared to Iowa's 38 plays during the game. But it was fortunate for Purdue that it finally outpointed Iowa; otherwise Minnesota and Illinois might object to the Boilermakers' championship claims.

MACCABEES AND WONDERBOLTS TO BATTLE SUNDAY

Having beaten Sparta to take the National league lead, the Maccabee All-Stars soccer team will try to conquer the Wieboldt Wonderboldts at Kuppenheimer stadium, 19th street and Keeler avenue next Sunday.

It will be an interleague affair, the Wieboldts having dropped out of the National league after the Kladno riot and joined the Major league.

The Wieboldts, who are the former Brickies, haven't lost a game in Chicago since October of last year and are aiming for the national championship this season. With the addition of Scotty Nilsen, who has scored 26 goals, and Bill Watson, the Wonderbolts appear to be the best team in the Middle West. Watson and Nilsen were members of the national champion St. Louis Stix last season.

The Maccabees have four former members of the Wieboldts—the Waldrom twins, George Hay and Louis Fisher. All of them played important rôles in the defeat of Sparta Sunday.

HASKELL INDIANS WIN, 13 TO 7, FROM SOUTH DAKOTA

Lawrence, Kas., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Haskell institute defeated the University of South Dakota, 13 to 7, in a football game that featured today's program of the fiftieth anniversary and homecoming celebration at the Indian school here. Wilson Palmer scored the winning touchdown in the fourth period, climaxing a sustained march and breaking a 7 to 7 tie.

Both teams scored touchdowns and extra points in the second quarter. Haskell registered first when Palmer drove over the goal line after a series of line smashes. Otto Smith made the extra point.

The Coyotes rallied and tied the count when Insley scored on a pass from O'Connor, who kicked the extra point.

BADGERS GET ONE TOUCHDOWN; NOW THEY WANT MORE

Start Practice for Illini Battle Saturday.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Their long touchdown famine having come to a happy ending with Lynn Jordan's 99 yard run against Michigan Saturday, the Badgers this afternoon opened practice for the homecoming battle with Illinois at Camp Randall Saturday.

A few of the regulars who played the entire game against Michigan, among them Capt. Jack Bender, Mario Pacetti, and Milt Kummer, were excused this afternoon, while the rest of the squad started the campaign to stop the powerful Illinois air attack.

Pleased with the showing of the sophomores against the Wolverines, especially full back Eddie Janowski, Bob Null and Stan Haukedahl at the ends, and Big Ed Christiansen at tackle, Coach Doc Spears said he was not planning any change in the Wisconsin lineup.

Saturday's game will be the 18th in as even a rivalry as exists in the conference. Wisconsin has won 8, Illinois 7, and 2 contests ended in ties.

ILLINI GET NEW PLAYS.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Spurred by reports of Wisconsin's strength, Coach Bob Zuppke today, instead of giving the Illinois regulars a day off, ordered them to report in suits and learn new plays devised for use at Madison.

Zuppke was pleased when nearly a full complement of first-stringers appeared in suits. Even the co-captains, Jack Beynon and Chuck Bennis, who were not in the best of condition last week, were ready for practice.

After a brief rehersal of the new stratagems, the regulars were dismissed and Zuppke turned his attention to reserves, who scrimmaged against each other. John Theodore, sophomore full back, who participated in the varsity drill, was used in the scrimmage and will be ready for the Badger battle.

Bill Smith, junior squadman, hitherto unheralded, was used at one tackle position. Smith weighs nearly 200 pounds and was sized up by Zuppke as a possibility to strengthen the line against the Badger attack.

OHIO AIMS AT HIGH SCORE.

Columbus, O., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—The Ohio State football team is expected to be in almost perfect condition for its most important game, the annual Michigan contest, next Saturday at the Ohio stadium.

None of the players who took part in the game with Chicago was hurt seriously and in addition Ohio's star ball carrier, Jack Smith, was in the lineup at the start of the session.

The Buckeyes spent most of today's practice on new offensive formations designed to work against the fauits of Michigan as reported by scouts of the recent Wolverine contests.

Ohio State, criticized for running up a score of 76 to 0 against Western Reserve and a score of 33 to 0 against Chicago, left no doubt as to the procedure in the Michigan game should the opportunity arise to run up a big score.

Huge placards were distributed throughout the training quarters today containing the following inscriptions—"Michigan, 86; Ohio State, 0—1902," and another "Michigan, 60; Ohio State, 0—1905."

MICHIGAN HOPES FOR BEST.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Faced with the problem of getting his team ready to meet Ohio State, one of the best elevens in the conference, after having lost to Wisconsin, supposedly the weakest, Coach Harry Kipke allowed his regulars to do nothing more than run signals this afternoon.

All the first string men were on hand except Capt. Tom Austin and Willard Hildebrand, and they were kept away because of classes. Kipke had Russ Fuog, a center, in Austin's right tackle berth, and Bud Hanshue at Hildebrand's position, left guard. John Regeczi took his regular place in the backfield, but Chris Everhardus occupied the left half berth of Whitey Aug. Jennings and Sweet were the other two backs.

Kipke was still unprepared to say whether Regeczi would start against Ohio, and left it clear that if the Muskegon Heights senior did not start, Everhardus and Aug would be the half backs.

The second and third teams scrimmaged against a freshman eleven.

Reports of the men who scouted Ohio did not leave the team a whole lot to hope for, especially in view of the fact that the Buckeyes have some old scores to even. Sideline talk was to the effect that Michigan would win a moral victory if it held Ohio to three touchdowns.

De Paul Eleven Leaves Today to Play Texas Tech

De Paul university's Blue Demons will head for their last football roundup of the season today when they entrain for Lubbock, Tex., where they will meet Texas Tech Friday afternoon.

Led by Coaches Jim Kelly and Ben Connors, the entire group of De Paul players—twenty-eight in number—are scheduled to arrive at Lubbock Thursday noon. They plan to work out that afternoon.

The Demons came through their Niagara game, which they won, 18 to 7, in excellent physical shape.

Coaches sent the Demons through a brisk drill yesterday. They concentrated on a suitable defense for Texas.

Harold Carlson, Dinney Reid, and Capt. Phil Krause won praise for their line play against Niagara and Walt Loess starred at full back. This was his first appearance at the position. He had been shifted from a half back job.

Ray Durkin, quarter back, was also prominent in the victory while Willie Phillips turned in his usual hard running game.

Purdue Seeks to Increase Scoring Drive

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Increased scoring punch was the aim of Coach Noble Kizer as he sent Purdue's reserves through an extended scrimmage session in preparation for the intersectional battle with Fordham at the Polo grounds in New York Saturday.

The starters in the Iowa game were excused from drill, but Kizer wasted no time launching workouts for the remainder of the squad.

"Yardage and first downs don't count in the scoring column," Kizer said as he reviewed the Iowa battle, during which Purdue chalked up 26 first downs and gained more than 500 yards, from which activity only two touchdowns were manufactured.

No injuries of any consequence were reported as a result of the Hawkeye battle, in which Purdue maintained its share of the Big Ten leadership. The Boilermaker squad is expected to be at full strength for the Fordham game.

FORDHAM SEES VICTORY.

New York, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—The Fordham Rams began a week of heavy practice today for their impending intersectional battle with Purdue university on Saturday in a higher spirit than has prevailed at daily drills since the season opened.

Coach Jim Crowley had the entire squad on Fordham field for about two hours. Every player seemed confident of a triumph over the Boilermakers when they meet at the Polo grounds in the fourth intersectional engagement for Fordham this year.

After redeeming themselves by their two comebacks against Tennessee and West Virginia, the Bronx forces looked toward a fitting climax for the home season this week-end.

For the most part, it was the first string eleven which came in for attention. Crowley devoted more than an hour to polishing the regulars' offensive and defensive.

Joe Miniaci and Joe Bulkie, two star backs who were injured in the closing minutes of the game with West Virginia, returned for action, but were not occupied in any heavy work. Both had sustained wrenched legs, but after a day's rest appeared fit again.

SABIK OUT AT INDIANA.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Because his team was mainly on the defensive last week-end against Minnesota, Coach Bo McMillin turned entirely to offensive tactics today in Indiana's first workout for the intersectional game with the University of Maryland here Saturday.

Adolph Sabik, senior half back, played his last game against Minnesota, it was learned today. In his first play he suffered a recurrence of an old knee injury which will keep him out the rest of the season. Wendel Walker, quarter back, and Red Stevenson end, who were left at home to recuperate from injuries, were back in uniform and are expected to play Saturday.

CENTRE BEATEN BY BOSTON IN LAST PERIOD, 7-0

Newton, Mass., Nov. 12.—(AP)—The Colonels from Centre college out played the Boston College Eagles most of the way again today, only to lose out, for the fourth consecutive year, by a 7 to 0 margin before a small crowd of 7,500.

The game was almost a duplicate of the last three. The Colonels, after blowing their two scoring chances early, kept the Eagles tied down until they tired late in the final period.

Cecil Hamilton, the Centre quarter back, kicked outside on his 47 yard line, starting point of Curran's second long dash into Kentucky territory. He moved to the Colonels' 25 yard line on two rushes and then, after taking a lateral from Bernie Moynahan, Boston quarter back, he tossed a scoring pass to Ed Anderson, and end replacement.

ROOKIE CIHOCKI IS FIRST TO SIGN CUB CONTRACT

The first 1935 contract was received yesterday by the Cubs from Ed J. Cihocki, 24 year old infielder, who was drafted from the Syracuse club of the international league at the close of last season. Cihocki, who bats and throws right handed, broke into professional ball in 1931 with Harrisburg of the New York-Pennsylvania league. In 1933 he was given a trial with the Philadelphia Athletics. He is 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 160 pounds.

Player Hit by Ball May Lose Sight of One Eye

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Physicians here feared today they would be unable to save the sight of Bill Garson, Janesville high school guard, who was struck in the left eye by a place kick while blocking the try for point in the game with Beloit high school Saturday. Garson's eyeball was split.

DEAR Wake: Before discussion, which should never have opened, is closed on the incident, let me answer the Clinton, Ia., contributor who intimates Minnesota Gophers manhandled Oze Simmons of Iowa because he was a colored boy and therefore calls them poor sportsmen.

Here is the answer: Willis Ward, colored, great Michigan end, played every minute of the Minnesota-Michigan game, although several of his teammates went out under the terrific Gopher play.

After the game half the Gopher team crowded around and congratulated Ward on his fine play. "He's a great football player and a swell boy," commented Bob Tanner, his opponent. The boy who cannot take it in football will never go very far. Minneapolis.

This season there have been more than the usual number of charges of gridiron roughness. Several penalties have been inflicted. I think it's just the greater fierceness of play. Invariably it's some star who is roughed. That's to be expected, because he's the chap to be stopped.

An opponent cannot approach a slippery, dodging ball carrier, say "Tag, you're it," and expect him to stop. He has to smack him down. If he didn't the runner might say, "Phooey for you and your tag," and speed on to a touchdown. I don't believe there's unnecessary roughness intentionally. Certainly no coach would teach it. Grid Enthusiast.

Didn't Coe and Carleton establish some sort of a record on a muddy field Nov. 3, when Carleton punted thirty-six times in the game and Coe thirty? Kohawks carried the oval only three times in the entire first half.

This Wake Is Conducted By Harvey T. Woodruff. Help! Help!

The Run of Sonny Dunn.

Now the game stood at thirteen-seven,
And the time two minutes to go—
A riot of joy was breaking
As gains swung to and fro.
Five yards by their plunging full back
Increased the gathering woe.
Their chance again, would they make it?
The crowd stood up on tiptoe!

The roar of that crowd grew louder,
Colors flashed in the sun;
The coach caught the home town spirit
And rushed in Sonny Dunn.
A whistle, a lineup, a scrimmage,
A pass to the ten yard line.
That pass intercepted by Sonny,
Then a run that was going fine;
Twenty, forty, sixty, hurricanelike he tore!
Eighty, ninety, a touchdown!
A place kick and the winning score!

NO POST-SEASON GAME, PRINCETON CHAIRMAN SAYS

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Student agitation for a post-season charity football game between Princeton and either Minnesota or Pittsburgh was unofficially answered tonight by Prof. Burnham N. Dell, chairman of the Princeton university council of athletics, who intimated that Princeton's policy against post-season games would not be changed.

Petitions requesting the council on athletics to allow the undefeated Tiger eleven to play with Minnesota or the Panthers after the regular schedule were circulated on the Nassau campus this morning. They bore more than 1,000 signatures.

Prof. Dell said that a statement clarifying the council's position on the subject might be issued when the petition is formally presented, but he intimated strongly that to allow a post-season game would involve breaking the "Big Three" agreement among Princeton, Yale and Harvard, and that Princeton officials were not disposed to do it.

Tilden Passes Defeat Davenport Preps, 7-0

Davenport Ia., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Tilden Tech of Chicago defeated the Davenport High school eleven, 7 to 0, today before an Armistice day crowd of 2,000. The touchdown was scored in the second quarter on a pass from Boettcher to Lazzari. Another pass from Boettcher to Lazzari was responsible for the extra point.

Crane, Fenger Play Saturday at Stagg Field

Athletic officials of Crane Tech and Fenger yesterday agreed to play their semi-final game for the Chicago Public High School league football championship at Stagg field Saturday. In the other game, Lane Tech and Lindblom will meet at the new Lane athletic field, Western avenue and Addison streets.

Jerry Freedman, Mount Carmel center, and Sylvester Lulinski, right tackle, were injured in the Mount Carmel-Leo game last Sunday. However, both players are expected to be in the starting lineup against St. Rita Sunday.

Twenty-five thousand student tickets for the charity football game for the city high school championship will be placed on sale at all public and Catholic schools tomorrow. The proceeds of the game, which will be played Dec. 1 at Soldiers' field, will be turned over to Mayor E. J. Kelly's Christmas benefit fund.

Final arrangement for an intersectional game between Harrison Tech and Greenville, Tex., High school will be made today. The game will be played in Greenville Nov. 24. Greenville, Texas Interscholastic league champions last year, last Friday captured the Texas district championship, defeating Sulphur Springs.

The postponed game between St. Philip and Weber will be played Nov. 24. The contest originally was scheduled for two weeks ago, but was moved up to allow St. Philip to meet Mount Carmel in a charity game.

Leo, surprise victor over Mount Carmel Sunday, will meet De Paul Sunday in the final east section game of the Catholic league. De Paul lost to St. Rita Sunday, 27 to 20.

HAWKS TO MEET MAROONS IN NEXT GAME THURSDAY

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—The Chicago Blackhawks are taking advantage of the seven day respite between their opening game with the St. Louis Eagles last Thursday and the second at Montreal against the Maroons next Thursday to utilize the ice of the Forum to perfect themselves in combination plays and maneuvers. The physical condition of the team is good, Manager Clem Loughlin said.

With the long forty-eight game grind under way, a comparison of this season's first five games with the first five of 1933-34 [with two teams—Montreal Maroons and New York Americans—still to stage their first contests] augurs for a record breaking scoring season. Last season twenty-one goals were scored in the first five games. In the same number of games to date this season, twenty-seven goals have been chalked up.

The league record for scoring was established in 1929-30 by the Boston Bruins, who made 179 goals. However, under the present rules, the Toronto Maple Leafs last season established a record of 174 tallies.

MANTHA'S RIBS BROKEN.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.—(AP)—George Mantha, left winger of the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey league, fractured three ribs in practice here today and is lost to the club for at least two or three weeks.

Mantha was tripped by his older brother, Sylvio, and went crashing into a goal post. Armand Mondou will take his place when the Canadiens face Detroit Saturday.

This is the third season in succession in which Mantha has suffered broken bones.

Act Quiets Rumors of Devaluation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—The remnants of government restrictions on exportation of capital from the United States were junked today by the treasury.

The move put a temporary quietus on rumors that the dollar will be devalued again in the near future. Removal of foreign exchange control props would not be feasible if the government were contemplating further monetary experimentation, observers here and abroad pointed out promptly.

Since the banking collapse of 1933, individuals and business houses have had to obtain licenses from the treasury for foreign exchange transactions. This licensing system was scrapped today, and hereafter persons may transfer funds out of the United States without obtaining official permission. The licensing control, however, has been practically inoperative for some time.

Money Movement Free.

"This permits people to take their money out of the country when they want to," Undersecretary of the Treasury Thomas J. Coolidge explained.

Although some observers saw great significance in what they called the "lifting of the embargo on exports of capital," Coolidge predicted that the treasury's move will have little effect on international money markets.

Practically a free movement of money out of the United States has been permitted for many weeks, he revealed, because the treasury has been granting licenses whenever they were requested. No request for a license has ever been rejected. He characterized the junking of the licensing merely as "doing away with red tape."

Some Expect Flight.

Some experts foresaw a great outward movement of capital from the United States, but the majority pointed out that the treasury would never have taken such a step if it was not confident that there would be no flight of the dollar. Removal of the licensing was taken as another sign that the administration believes the new 59 cent dollar no longer needs artificial props in the foreign exchange markets.

The treasury order, approved by President Roosevelt, which did away with the last government exchange controls, substituted a reporting system whereby the treasury will keep in touch with gross money movements out of the country.

Silver Prices Bound to New High Mark for Year at London

New York, Nov. 12.—[Special.]—While the silver market here observed a holiday the price of the metal in London suddenly soared to a new record price for the year, bringing a stampede of buying into the Montreal silver futures market. In London the price jumped 1¾d to 25¼d. In Montreal silver futures soared 220 to nearly 250 points, the sharpest movement in a day since the Montreal silver futures market opened three weeks ago.

London described the advance as being caused by heavy speculative buying in a market rather bare of supply. Montreal said United States government buying was responsible.

Bought for India.

Local bullion brokers who were at their offices today declared that the London view was correct and added that considerable of the purchases in the British center were for Indian account.

The Indian purchases coincide with some fair sized orders for other speculative accounts which were placed "at the market." When this is the case nowadays in the silver market, especially when some portion of the world is observing a holiday, the buyer of the silver usually has to pay a price sharply above that quoted during the last previous full business day.

No U. S. Buying Expected.

United States government operations in London were considered possible but not probable. Lately foreign shipments of silver to the United States for treasury account have been small.

By purchasing so much new production and through acquisition of so large a proportion of stocks of the metal the United States government has been indirectly the main influence which has lifted the price more than 100 per cent and which is making easier successively higher prices.

Dollar Eases Against Pound.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The United States dollar eased slightly today as the pound closed at $5.00¼ as compared with the Saturday close of $4.99¼. The Belgian cabinet crisis was responsible for a weak trend in gold currency after a steady opening and continental offerings caused a gradual setback.

ARMOUR EXPECTED TO ELECT PRESIDENT AT NOV. 23 MEETING

Election of a new president of Armour & Co. at the November directors' meeting appeared likely yesterday with announcement that the meeting will be postponed to Nov. 23 to permit Frederick H. Prince, Boston capitalist and largest stockholder of the company, to be present.

The meeting was to be held next Friday, but it will be adjourned a week following receipt by Philip Reed, vice president and treasurer of the company, of a message from Mr. Prince that he is sailing from Europe and said he can attend the meeting if postponed till Nov. 23.

Conjecture as to the most likely successor to the place occupied by the late T. G. Lee still revolve around P. D. Armour III., a director of the company and grandson of its founder; William S. Clithero, vice president and former assistant to Mr. Lee, and Mr. Reed.

Steel Institute Estimates Operations at 27.3 Pct.

New York, Nov. 12. — (AP) — The American Iron and Steel institute today estimated operations of the industry at 27.8 per cent of capacity, compared with 26.3 per cent a week ago. A month ago operations were at 22.8 per cent and a year ago at 27.1 per cent.

Weekly Tobacco Price Average Reported Lower

New York, Nov. 12. — [Special.] — The Stich index of weekly average tobacco prices, based upon the 1926 average price of 27 cents a pound as 100, eased last week to 95.2.

Plan to Use Idle in Work for Destitute

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—(AP)—A plan designed to put millions of unemployed into jobs at lathes and looms, counters and benches is gradually taking form in the process of evolving a social security program.

Various ramifications of the stupendous task will be discussed Wednesday, but there is little likelihood that more than a slight indication of the trend of thought will be disclosed until much later in the month, perhaps not before December.

Tackling the problem from an emergency rather than a permanent point of view, the Federal Relief administration was disclosed today to have marshalled a vast plan for re-self-financed workshops. In them will be manufactured a wide variety of goods for the needy unemployed.

Workrooms for the manufacture of men's and boys' suits and overcoats and womens' coats.

Workshops to produce cotton trousers for the needy at a rate of 200 pairs each per week.

Saw mills and planing mills for the production of materials to build and repair homes for the destitute.

Hand operated brick making plants, each capable of turning out 25,000 brick a week to be used in construction by the needy unemployed.

REVEALS TEN RAILS DEFAULT ON RFC LOANS

Jones Starts Probe of Carrier Status.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—What to do with the railroads whose income is not paying their expenses? This is the question which Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, today set his experts to solving.

Jones launched his investigation simultaneously with a disclosure that ten railroads, which have borrowed 55 million dollars from the RFC, are in default on their interest payments to the RFC.

Officials shied away from the suggestion that the RFC might foreclose on or take over these defaulting roads. They insisted that the RFC loans are too small a part of the roads' indebtedness to permit any such action.

May Use Data in Congress.

Jones explained his railroad inquiry by saying that it is intended to furnish him with data which he can use if congress quizzes him this winter on the railroad situation. He admitted also that he may transmit his report to President Roosevelt.

Recently the RFC has indicated a disposition to force roads in which it has an interest and which are not earning enough to meet their bills into mergers with other and stronger rail systems. This same plan may be behind the new study.

Jones announced the ten roads defaulting to the RFC on their interest and the amount of their loans as follows:

Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, $13,410,000; Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee, $1,150,000; Chicago and Eastern Illinois, $5,760,000; Missouri Pacific, $23,134,800; St. Louis and San Francisco, $5,190,000; Western Pacific, $3,063,000; Central of Georgia, $2,894,000, and Tennessee Central, $147,000. In addition, two small roads, which Jones did not name, are in technical default.

No Previous Inquiry.

Jones pointed out that the RFC has made no previous inquiry into the railroads as its rail loans are made on certification by the interstate commerce commission.

The RFC also made public its October report today, showing that since the corporation was formed it has authorized advances totaling 8 billion 416 million dollars. Of this sum 4 billion 609 millions was loaned to various businesses, and 2 billion 252 millions, or 49 per cent, has been repaid. The other billions have either been advanced to government agencies which will not repay them or they have not been drawn down by the borrowers.

Member Bank Loans Show Little Change

The federal reserve board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in ninety-one leading cities of Nov. 7, issued yesterday, showed no change in total loans and investments, but decreases of $29,000,000 in net demand deposits, $12,000,000 in time deposits, and $27,000,000 in reserve balances with federal reserve banks.

Holdings of acceptances and commercial paper increased $4,000,000 in the New York district and $7,000,000 at all reporting member banks. Real estate loans showed little change for the week, while "other loans" declined $16,000,000 in the Boston district, $6,000,000 in the Chicago district, and $30,000,000 at all reporting member banks.

Holdings of U. S. Issues Up.

Holdings of United States government direct obligations increased $26,000,000 in the New York district, $7,000,000 in the Chicago district, $6,000,000 in the San Francisco district, and $44,000,000 at all reporting banks, and declined $6,000,000 in the Boston district.

Holdings of obligations fully guaranteed by the United States government increased $12,000,000 in the New York district, $4,000,000 in the Cleveland district, and $21,000,000 at all reporting banks.

Western Lines Report Loss in Last Week's Trafic

Continued declines in freight trafic last week were reported yesterday by three leading carriers. The Chicago and North Western reported a total of 23,391 cars, against 24,639 in the preceding week, and 22,661 in the corresponding week of last year. The Milwaukee had a total of 24,402 cars, against 24,913, and 22,304. The Santa Fe reported 24,430 cars, against 25,800 a year ago.

WINNIPEG GRAIN PRICES DECLINE IN LATE SELLING

Losses at Liverpool Are Influence.

Winnipeg, Ont., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain exchange closed today at the lowest levels for the day as last minute selling provided the only active spot in an otherwise dull market. Closing prices were ¾ to ⅞ cent lower.

Fluctuations throughout the day had been narrow with trading the slowest in days. The close in December options was at 77½ cents, May, 82⅛ to 82¼ cents and July 83 cents. The disappointing action of the Liverpool market influenced selling.

Exports 200,000 Bushels.

The market was supported principally by export sales of less than 200,000 bushels. Hedging sales against week-end country deliveries amounting to 1,000,000 bushels of new crop wheat were not especially heavy.

Final quotations on oats were ⅝ to 1 cent lower, rye ⅝ to 1 cent lower, and barley ⅜ to ⅝ cent lower. There was complete indifference shown to restrictive measure of 5 cents per bushel fluctuation on flax, which went into operation yesterday. Flax futures held steady and were about unchanged from the close for the preceding day during most of the session.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅝ to 1⅛ pence lower, although gains had been expected. The market was said to be affected by larger world shipments last week, lack of demand from continental sources and larger supplies on ocean passage, the latter running ahead of a year ago.

'34 Christmas Club Savings 370 Millions

New York, Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Christmas clubs throughout the country will distribute $369,800,000 to about 7,500,000 members through some 5,500 banking institutions within the next two weeks, it was estimated today by Herbert F. Rawll, founder and president of Christmas Club, a corporation.

The average amount received by members this year will be $48.25. The total distribution is about 6 per cent higher than last year. There was a slight decline in participating banks because of mergers in many communities.

Mutual Banks Gain.

As a group, the mutual savings banks show an increase both in the number of Christmas club depositors and the total accumulation, and several of the leading commercial banks show increases of more than 20 per cent over a year ago.

New York leads other states in the distribution, with about $96,000,000. Pennsylvania follows with $39,200,000. The metropolitan area of New York City will receive about $60,000,000.

Estimate on Uses.

Mr. Rawll estimates the distribution will be used about as follows:

Permanent savings	25%	$ 96,000,000

Market Holiday

All principal financial institutions, markets, and exchanges, with the exception of live stock, were closed yesterday in observance of Armistice day.

8 CLOSED BANKS IN GROUP OF 20 PAY 'DIVIDENDS'

Three Making First Condition Report.

Payments to depositors were made by eight of the 20 closed banks for which reports of the quarter ended Sept. 30 were made public last night by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett. Three were making their first returns since closing. Four in this group still have repaid nothing. Two show attorneys unpaid.

The Northwestern Trust and Savings, largest of the defunct outlying state banks, returned $1,997,181, or 20 per cent from a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan of $2,034,497. This brings total repayment to 50 cents on the dollar, but depositors can expect nothing more unless and until the RFC is repaid $2,017,740 plus interest. All remaining assets are pledged against the loan, on which $16,757 has been repaid.

Lawyer Is Paid $33,000.

Attorney Louis J. Behan was paid another $33,000 for a total of $213,000 obtained from the Northwestern receivership—$1 for every $37 of the $7,975,413 receipts. Nearly $59,000 more was spent to protect assets, for a total of $961,622 against $475,003 received from this source. Expenses took another $13,000. Cash was up about $48,000 for a balance of $222,459 held in trust to repay loans, etc.

The next largest repayment was $411,480 to depositors of the North Avenue State, raising returns from 25 to 45 per cent. An RFC loan

WOODMEN PLAN NOVEL PROPERTY REORGANIZATION

Minority Gets 3 Buildings and Society 15.

A plan of reorganization, believed to be without precedent, has been worked out by the Modern Woodmen of America. Under it the fraternal insurance society will effect an exchange of interests whereby it will obtain clear title to fifteen properties while minority certificate holders will take three.

At present the Woodmen control operations of eighteen hotels and apartment hotels through trust managers. They own 60 to 80 per cent of all certificates of beneficial interest in each, in addition to sizable mortgages for cash advanced in previous reorganizations which followed default of the bonds of the several properties.

Minority Gets Three Buildings.

In the comparatively simple exchange, minority certificate holders in the fifteen properties to be taken by the Modern Woodmen will acquire the interest relinquished by the Woodmen in the other three properties.

The net result of the trading will be acquisition of three properties, free of mortgage or other debts, by those who previously held minority interests in eighteen buildings weighted by mortgages. Earning sheets indicate that distributions to certificate holders will be possible immediately, whereas no payments were in sight so long as the mortgages and interest charges remained against the properties.

At the same time, the Woodmen will have their mortgages liquidated and be free to dispose of fifteen properties or operate them at a profit.

Names of Three Properties.

The three buildings to be taken by the minority group are the Fleetwood, Keeler, and Midway-Woodlawn. Based on income for the year ended April 30, 1934, the net income of the three would be $21,252 with mortgages removed and interest charges saved.

Because the reorganization plan is without precedent, the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee for all eighteen trusts, has declined to rule on the exchanges. Accordingly, David Levinson, attorney for the Woodmen and author of the plan, will institute court proceedings today for guarantees of title and formal ratification of the plan. Only thirteen of the 1,600 certificate holders registered objections to the plan, as compared with the 50 per cent needed to block the reorganization.

The fifteen buildings to be taken by the Woodmen are the Astra, Drake, Drexel Court, Drexel Parkview, Grosvenor, Hotel Bernard, Hotel Wimbledon, Ingleside Court, Logan Vista, Monrovia, Nautilus, Saranac, Shirley Arms, Whitfield, and Wicks.

Mortgages aggregate more than $800,000. The Woodmen also own 32,793 of a total of 40,711 certificates of beneficial interest issued by the fifteen trusts, one for each $100 bond

CHICAGO GASOLINE PRICES NOT AFFECTED BY STANDARD BOOST

Chicago gasoline prices will not be affected by an advance of 3-10 of a cent announced yesterday by Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The advance applies only to tank wagon and service station prices where markets are normal. No attempt will be made to change the status of subnormal markets where price cutting wars raged during October.

The advance applies to Standard's territory of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas, and Missouri. Continental, Shell, Sinclair, Pure Oil and other major companies announced that they will meet the advance.

MAGILL RESIGNS SPECIAL POST ON TREASURY STAF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Prof. Roswell W. Magill, special treasury brain truster on tax matters, has resigned, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., announced today.

Prof. Magill's resignation came as he concluded a study of British incove tax procedure, one of the most burdensome on small incomes that has yet been devised anywhere in the world. His study is believed to preface New Deal adoption of similar tax methods.

"I had hoped to be able to continue my work for you this winter upon the treasury's legislative program," Magill, who is a professor at Columbia university, wrote Secretary Morgenthau, "unfortunately the pressure of my work here will not permit me to be in Washington for the necessary conferences and hearings."

Prof. Magill's work will be handed over to Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the treasury, and Robert Jackson, counsel of the Internal Revenue bureau, Secretary Morgenthau said.

International Paper Lifts 1935 Newsprint Prices

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 12.—(AP)—In a letter to its customers, over the signature of J. L. Fearing, vice president, the International Paper company of New York announces an increase in contract prices for newsprint of $2.50 a ton for the first six months of 1935 and a further increase of not more than $2.50 for the second six months. "The present level has remained unchanged for over a year and a half in the face of constantly increasing wage levels for materials and supplies," the letter stated. "Little or no return is being earned on the hundreds of millions of dollars of capital invested in the newsprint industry."

Illinois to Receive Relief Bond Issue Bids on Nov. 22

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Bids on the $30 000,000 unemployment relief bond issue ratified at last week's election will be received by the state Nov. 22. The bonds will be a 20 year serial issue dated Dec. 15, with an interest rate of not more than 6 per cent. The bond issue will retire $28,500,000 of state revenue notes sold this year to finance relief expenditures.

PRICES OF HOGS RISE DESPITE BIG RECEIPTS

Hog prices advanced another 5 to 10 cents yesterday despite the pressure of the biggest Monday receipts since June 4. The Chicago run at 33,000 showed an increase of 44 per cent compared with the previous Monday, and was larger than on the corresponding day in 1933.

The bulk of yesterday's supply of good to choice 210 to 450 pound butchers sold within a narrow range of $8.15 to $8.30, including the processing tax of $2.25 to the federal government. Most of the light new crop hogs weighing 150 to 190 pounds ranged from $7.25 to $8.05, tax included. The average of all droves, tax included, was $8.10, highest since Oct. 12 and 60 cents higher than two weeks ago.

Pressure of receipts yesterday proved too great a strain for the cattle market which had improved during last week on lighter runs. Prices in some classes fell 15 to 25 cents, and many parts of the yards were selling medium and common steers as much as 25 to 40 cents under a week ago.

The lower trend in lambs was reversed on the second lightest Monday receipts since Aug. 20. Prices advanced 15 to 25 cents and finished strong at the highest point of the session. Top lambs brought $6.85.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The following figures on hog prices include $2.25 per hundredweight collected by the federal government as processing tax. There is no processing tax on cattle or sheep. The price quotations given below are per 100 pounds of live animal.

8 CLOSED BANKS IN GROUP OF 20 PAY DIVIDEND

Three Make First Report on Condition.

netted $468,105 of total receipts of $530,510. An $88,100 chunk went to protect assets, which now have cost $352,600 against $200,100 returns. Another $10,000 was paid Attorney Frank A. McCarthy. Other expenses were $6,000, leaving $15,000 added to the cash account.

Pays Its First Dividend.

Morgan Park Trust and Savings paid its first dividend—$135,763 or 25 per cent. Receipts of $128,250 in the quarter included $101,928 from the RFC. Cash, all in trust, was reduced $23,200 after payment of $3,000 to attorneys, $6,000 to protect assets, $2,100 in expenses, and $4,600 on borrowed money.

An initial payment of 20 per cent or $26,337 by the Northbrook State was made possible through a $33,200 loan from the RFC. Other collections were less than $800. Secured claims of $7,550, interest of $1,000 and expense of $1,894 were paid, leaving cash $2,850.

Norwood Park Trust and Savings made the other first payment—$17,609 for 25 per cent — through an RFC loan of $10,751. The bank now owes the RFC $26,704. Other collections enabled the addition of $2,600 to cash after paying $7,700 more to protect assets and $2,800 other expenses.

RFC Loan Help.

An RFC loan of $72,589 and other receipts of $3,000 were utilized to pay North Town State bank depositors $44,004 and raise total return from 32 to 40 per cent. Protection of assets cost another $3,700 for a total of $18,225, against return of $8,671 from this source. Fees and expenses were but $1,750 and cash was increased $26,150.

Two banks which paid depositors without RFC help were Melrose Park and Maywood State. The latter returned $44,325 to raise its total from 5 to 10 per cent. Expenses and protection of assets ran $5,500. With receipts of $17,500 cash account was dipped into for $32,300. The Melrose bank, with collections of $33,500, was forced to take $12,900 from cash account to pay $9,900 to protect assets and $3,800 on other items. It returned $32,685 to depositors, raising the dividend total from 20 to 25 per cent.

Ten Banks Owe RFC.

Ten of the twenty banks now owe RFC and must set aside all future collections for repayment. Further dividends are possible in these cases only through new loans or after repayment.

Negotiations are being made for a new loan for the Madison Square State, which has repaid nothing to depositors. Two other loan applications are pending—for the Montrose Trust and Savings, which has returned nothing, and for the Noel State, which has paid 10 per cent.

Brief summaries of banks not covered above:

Lyons State—Stagnant. Cash up $1,200 from collections of $2,600. Repaid 20 per cent; prospects discouraging, with book value of the remaining assets only equal to the balance due creditors.

Madison-Kedzie Trust and Savings—Receipts $86,650. Cash, in trust for claims, up $11,000 after paying $10,200 claims, $6,900 to attorneys, $26,450 interest, $21,800 to protect assets, and $10,000 expenses. Closed July 6, 1933. First dividend prospect dimmed by $1,133,500 owed on borrowed money. Losses slight.

Madison Square State — Receipts $10,700. All but $450 taken by disbursements, including $8,800 on claims.

Marquette Park State — Receipts $9,626. Cash up $2,150 after expenses including $5,085 to protect assets.

Marshall Square State.

Marshall Square State — Receipts $32,750. Cash up $25,600 after expenses including $3,660 to attorneys.

Mid-West State—Stagnant. Collections $222 in three months! No attorney fees paid. Owes for loan.

Millard State — Receipts $13,427. Cash up $10,800 after expenses paid.

Montrose Trust and Savings—Stagnant. Receipts $1,042. Cash cut $794. RFC loan only hope for early dividend; remaining assets and liabilities show poor comparison.

Morton Grove Trust and Savings—Stagnant. Collected $1,167; cash cut $1,392.

Mount Greenwood Trust and Savings—Receipts $3,256. Cash down $350 after expenses and payment of $2,887 dividend money already due.

Evans-Wallower Lead.

Investors' Guide: Please send me information on Evans-Wallower Lead.—J. H. W.

Answer: Evans-Wallower Lead company mines, concentrates, smelts, and refines zinc. Its properties are about 80 miles west of Joplin, Mo. It does not own the land which it mines, but leases it on a royalty basis. Its present leases expire in 1943.

The company has been unable to earn a profit during the last five years. It lost $53,000 in 1933, against losses of $111,000 in 1932, $319,000 in 1931, $660,000 in 1930, and $283,000 in 1929. Profit in 1928 was $185,000.

On Dec. 31, 1933, current assets, including cash of $43,000, totaled $136,000, and current liabilities were $20,000. Profit and loss deficit was $252,000.

There are outstanding 25,000 shares of 7 per cent $100 par preferred on which nothing has been paid since Jan 1, 1930, and 615,000 shares of no par common on which nothing has ever been paid.

Both the preferred and common are quite speculative.

Wisconsin Hydro Electric.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me information on Wisconsin Hydro Electric 5s?—Miss C. A.

Answer: Wisconsin Hydro Electric company operates 7 hydroelectric and two gas plants, supplying electricity, water, and gas to a group of small communities in the agricultural and dairying sections of western Wisconsin. It is an operating company, controled by Eastern Minnesota Power corporation, which is a subsidiary of Utilities Service company.

For the six months to June 30, 1934, operating revenues totaled $322,000 and charges were covered 1.37 times. Operating revenues for 1933 were $637,000, against $694,000 in 1932 and $734,000 in 1931. The company covered its interest charges 1.32 times in 1933, 1.56 times in 1932, and 1.69 times in 1931.

On June 30, 1934, current position was satisfactory. The $2,878,000 5s, due 1947, constitute the only funded debt of the company. They are secured by a first mortgage on all its assets. The bonds are somewhat speculative.

Santa Fe Stamped Bonds.

Investors' Guide: With reference to Santa Fe adjustment 4s, due 1955: What is the difference between the stamped bonds and the unstamped bonds?—O. V. J.

Answer: Interest on Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway company stamped adjustment 4s, due 1955, is payable semi-annually, May 1 and Nov. 1, up to 4 per cent a year out of surplus net earnings. Interest on the unstamped bonds is payable only once a year, on Nov. 1.

Prepare for Recovery NOW!

A day after the overwhelming New Deal Victory, the Hon. Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Commerce, delivered what we regard as one of the most significant addresses of recent months. From it, we extract these paragraphs:

"Unhesitatingly, I state that we are not going to have a dictatorship to the Left nor an autocracy to the Right. The Roosevelt plan is simply to put business back on its feet under an equitably administered system to safeguard every segment of our social and economic life, equalizing, as far as it is possible, the opportunities for making a livelihood and of safeguarding this to every individual, whether he be employer, employee, or consumer."

* * * *

"The program of the President is designed to control and battle against rather than to bring about further regimentation."

* * * *

"Reforms in the old order do not mean any general and sweeping application of reform measures, but the initiation and adaptation of changes in the light of demonstrated failures under the old conditions in the past. Those old and new factors that have stood the test successfully will remain intact."

* * * *

"We must not assume that the Administration seeks a rise in all prices. Any such impression is incorrect. The real problem is that of equalizing prices as nearly as possible and eliminating the existing disparities."

* * * *

"The government must encourage business profits in order that the government itself may survive and function. The increased indebtedness in this emergency period can be met gradually, as business gets on its feet, earns profits and divides the same equitably and justly with the government to balance its budget. This does not mean that business will be shouldered with excessive taxes for it is plainly evident that this would prevent the return of normal and prosperous conditions. Sound taxation is just as much a key to recovery as any other single factor and a planned program must seek to levy additional taxes if found necessary, only to the extent that business can carry the increase without obstructing the processes of recovery."

* * * *

"As soon as future relief requirements can be determined the major portion of these expenditures should be assumed by the states and localities, with Federal financial assistance supplied only in those instances where the situation cannot possibly be met without Federal aid. We need to discourage the growing tendency to 'let the Federal government do it.' If national credit, confidence, and the self-respect of the individual and the community are not to be impaired, these practices and tendencies must be stopped. Uncertainties as to future demands and requirements must be eliminated as rapidly as possible so that business can plan for the future."

* * * *

"We must keep in mind that citizens cannot possibly demand rights unless they are willing to assume responsibilities inherent in those rights. To illustrate, if we wish to exercise the right of not working, that is to strike, this right should be safeguarded; but in so doing we should demand the right not to strike, that is, the right to work without molestation. In the relationships which develop between employer and employee, it is mandatory upon both employers and employees to live up to their part of the agreement determined upon. Each must be just as responsible to the public and must be held to just as strict accountability as the other."

* * * *

"Today actual business conditions are better than business sentiment. Many of the forces of recovery have already been released. Now is the time to get down to facts and get down to work."

That, we have every reason to believe, may be accepted as the keynote of the Adminstration's attitude toward business.

And that attitude, we are confident, cannot fail to allay much of the fear that has been entertained concerning the government's credit, the uprising of labor and the dangers of further radical economic experimentation. It is almost certain to result in rising business volume and therefore in stronger and more active bond and stock markets.

We believe, therefore, that the investor now should take stock of his situation in the light of the new outlook — should make such reconstruction of his portfolio as is necessary to gain full advantage of the opportunities that lie ahead.

An Opportunity for the Investor

If your securities amount to $10,000 or more, send us a list of them, including amounts held, prices paid and any other relevant information. We will tell you which we feel are outstandingly attractive — which are safe to hold but less attractive — which should definitely be sold.

You are assured that this organization, the largest of its kind in the world, will regard your list with strict confidence. Nor will you be obligated in any way, other than to allow us to lay before you the facts about the service we render investors.

Now is the time to act, for with recovery there will be opportunities aplenty for those who buy and hold the right securities. Write today to Standard Statistics Company, Inc., 176 West Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

The Standard Statistics Company

This organization of over 1,100 employees has been providing factual and interpretive information to investors, banks and institutions for over a quarter of a century.

Here, this vast problem of scientific appraisal of the ramified forces at work to influence security values, is split up among hundreds of highly trained specialists. We have facilities that no other organization in the world possesses.

Our advice is unbiased, authoritative. We have no securities to sell, and we hold no favor for any particular investment.
